Washington, D. C., March 21 [Special].—Lifting the curtain on the extent to which the United States will contribute food to Europe, Herbert H. Lehman, director of the united nations' relief and rehabilitation administration, said today that for the next three months UNRRA will need 1 billion 876 million pounds, and that 42 per cent of this must come from this country.

Herbert H. Lehman.

Lehman said that the United States contribution will amount to 787,920,000 pounds of food of various kinds. Included in this total, he said, are 5,181 tons of canned meat and 57,386 tons of fats and fat-cuts. The tons he referred to are metric tons of 2,204.6 pounds.

In Addition to Lend-Lease.

The UNRRA food distribution to Europe is separate from, and in addition to, the government's allotment of food to European countries thru lend-lease. The office of war information announced Saturday that for the months of April, May, and June lend-lease meat shipments to Russia would total 300,000,000 pounds and to Britain 25,000,000 pounds.

Lehman said that approximately half of the tonnage of the UNRRA food program for the coming quarter will be in bread cereals and dried peas. He said Canada would contribute 38 per cent of the UNRRA's food needs, thus making combined United States and Canadian quotas total 80 per cent. This would leave only 20 per cent to be supplied by the United Kingdom, Iceland, Brazil, Australia, Newfoundland, South Africa, India, Ceylon, North Africa, Peru, Colombia, British West Indies, and Mexico.

The UNRRA food shipments will supplement existing food resources of 60 million persons classified as war victims, Lehman said. For every pound of food the UNRRA is asking from the United States, civilians of this country will receive about 60 pounds, he asserted.

37,067 Tons of Sugar.

In addition to meat, the UNRRA food demands upon the United States for the quarter, figured in metric tons, will be, he said:

Grain, flour, and other bread cereal products, 176,959; beans and peas, 50,394; milk, 48,361; canned fish, 14,855; sugar, 37,067; cheese, hard, 490; dried eggs, 1,537, and other items, 3,186.

Lehman said the UNRRA has up to this time shipped no meat overseas, and that the meat requests for the quarter will take one pound out of every 350 pounds of the nation's remaining civilian supply.

From 8,000 to 9,000 tons of soap will be needed from the United States by the UNRRA for the quarter, Lehman said. He said this amounts to three-tenths of a pound per person for the quarter in countries requiring UNRRA assistance.

Suburbs Urge Safeguards in Transit Plan

BY FRANK HUGHES.

Officials of Chicago suburban villages and towns, who are taking an active interest in the Kelly-Green plan for a county-wide public traction authority, said yesterday they believe the authority and its seven man board—to be appointed by the mayor and governor—ought to be hedged about with safeguards to protect the interests not only of suburbanites, but of Chicago riders as well.

This was disclosed in a survey of several northern, western, and southern villages and towns within Cook county, where transportation would be affected by the authority. Some of the suburban officials see a ray of hope in the authority plan for improvement of interurban lines serving the communities.

Service Called Pathetic.

There is almost universal agreement that the steam railroads and their electrified branches, which would be exempted from the traction authority's jurisdiction, are giving suburban riders excellent and efficient service. The complaints are directed against the interurban electric lines, surface lines, and the branches of the Chicago Rapid Transit system which serve suburban communities in what one spokesman said was a "pathetic" manner.

Officials of the interurban lines have refused to comment on the public ownership plan and its possible effect on the service their lines give, contending that the consolidated traction lines would not compete with them.

The comment of Louis Ancel, Maywood village attorney, who has taken an active part in the hearings on the proposed legislation to create the county traction authority, was typical. He said he believed that the traction authority ought to be set up on a "metropolitan area" basis rather than county-wide, so that suburban towns outside of Cook county could benefit from traction authority improvements, if any are forthcoming.

"The West Town railways, which operates street cars and buses thru Maywood, simply has not been doing a job," Ancel said. "It has gone from one receivership to another. It uses old, dilapidated equipment cast off from the Chicago Surface lines. The Rapid Transit or 'L' system certainly has not been hauling passengers in a modern transportation manner. It uses old, hazardous wooden coaches and packs the riders in, overcrowding them miserably.

Cites Poor Operations.

"The whole condition of interurban transportation is pathetic, except for the steam railroads. Even tho the Rapid Transit and the West Town railways were limited in means, they could have improved the service with intelligent operational leadership, which they have never had. The same thing applies to the Chicago Surface Lines.

"The West Town Railways has 3 million dollars in bonds coming due soon, and I see no hope whatever of picking up the money to refinance them. The system will have to go back into receivership again. The Rapid Transit has no hope at all of coming out of the bog because it can't get financing. Private ownership simply can't get the money to buy new equipment and modernize.

Urges Strong Check.

"We hope that in time people also won't have to pay an extra fare of 10 cents from Austin av. to Maywood," he said, "and that the additional fare collected by the Rapid Transit at Des Plaines av. can be eliminated. Chicagoans can ride a much greater distance—all over the city, in fact—on street cars for only 8 cents."

Ancel said he would prefer to see a traction authority which would embrace not only the Rapid Transit and Chicago Surface lines, but also the West Town Railways, the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee, and the Chicago, Aurora & Elgin interurban systems, offering rehabilitation for all of them.

FIVE WOMEN'S DRESSES HELP WIN A BATTLE

Camden, Me., March 21 [Special].—Last June Mrs. Jean Van Loan took some clothes to a dry cleaner. Then she visited her husband, Pvt. Floyd A. Van Loan, at Camp McCain, Miss. When she returned, she learned the clothes had been shipped to her at the camp. In the ensuing four months she tried in vain to trace her wearing apparel. In November her husband wrote her:

"I was sitting comfortably in a rain drenched foxhole 'somewhere in Germany' when a box was handed to me. Postmarks showed it had followed me by way of Scotland, England, France, Holland, and Belgium. Thinking it was food from home, you can imagine my surprise on opening it to find five of your summer dresses and two coats."

"Arrival of that package," added Van Loan's commander, "was the best morale booster my men could have had. We were about to attack Aachen, the men were tense and worried. When the dresses arrived, they started to laugh and kid your husband. The tension was broken. . . . As you know, we took Aachen."

Today Mrs. Van Loan received the dresses, a bit mildewed.

Correspondents Get Hint to Quit Berlin, Says Report

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 21 (AP).—Swedish and other correspondents in Berlin have been told to prepare for departure for southern Germany near the Swiss border if they intend to continue work, it was reported today. This was taken as a possible indication that the German government, or at least the foreign office and press department, might evacuate Berlin.

Cafes Desert La Guardia to Close Up Early

New York, March 22 [Thursday]—[Special].—New York City's leading night spots late yesterday deserted Mayor Fiorello La Guardia in his personal extension of the amusement curfew, to the utter confusion of thousands of frolicking civilians and service men. The swift turn of events followed the fiery little executive's assertion in defiance of Presidential disapproval that he is running New York.

The mayor appeared to be left "holding the bag," almost alone in favor of his order of last Sunday that extended the nation-wide midnight curfew to 1 a. m. for New York City, a move many now believe was motivated by politics.

Owners of clubs, cafes, and restaurants decided to abide by the midnight curfew ordered by War Mobilizer Byrnes. The reversal was led by the Allied Food and Entertainment Industries of Greater New York, 35 members of which voted to instruct all members to close promptly at midnight.

Others Fall in Line.

The action followed a day in which, hour by hour, more hotels, movies, night clubs, and other entertainment establishments fell in line behind the Byrnes order and decided not to use the mayor's proclaimed "hour of tolerance."

All except a few Broadway area night spots had shut down at midnight or shortly thereafter this morning as soon as they could get rid of their obviously baffled and loath-to-leave customers who thought the La Guardia extension was still the rule.

Admittedly a factor in the desertion from La Guardia was the order of military services to their personnel to observe the Cinderella curfew. Times Square last night saw more military police and shore patrol arm bands than ever before.

Shift Brings Confusion.

As the night spots disgorged their crowds, the area returned to the state of confusion it had known previous to last Sunday. Thousands swarmed along the sidewalks and choked subways. All night restaurants, exempt under the Byrnes request if they customarily catered to all-night trade, were jammed. Taxis were at a premium again.

But the night club men put it this way: "You can't chuck uniformed men out and let civilians continue to play."

Billy Rose, president of the Allied Food group, declared, "I know we're letting the mayor down," but added, "my allegiance to my country goes beyond my allegiance to the mayor."

Late yesterday the navy department in Washington announced instructions to all naval districts within the United States to have navy personnel obey the midnight closing all over the country. The navy's action duplicated that of the army.

Face Report to Superiors.

It was understood that navy enforcement by shore patrols would be similar to army enforcement. Shore patrols will warn curfew breakers that it is midnight or after and order them to leave. If an individual refuses, the patrolman will take his name, rank, serial number, and organization and forward the information to his commanding officer for disciplinary action.

La Guardia's boast concerning his power over Gotham was made when he was questioned by reporters for his reaction to President Roosevelt's expressed support Tuesday of the midnight closing for the whole nation.

"He's running the country, I'm just running the city," La Guardia replied.

Political implications of the mayor's attempt to override the midnight curfew were being widely discussed. The most common interpretation was that it indicated he would be a candidate for reëlection to a fourth term this fall and that he was bidding for popular support.

Nazi Peace Offer Handed to U. S. Envoy, Paper Says

LONDON, March 22 [Thursday]—(AP)—The London Daily Telegraph today published under a Paris date line a dispatch saying that Eduard Hempel, German minister to Eire, had approached Premier Eamon De Valera with peace proposals which were turned over to the United States minister in Dublin. The British foreign office said it had no knowledge of any such proposals and expressed belief that it would have been informed promptly of any such development.

ENEMY BURNS ISLE'S CAPITAL BEFORE FLIGHT

40th Division Wins Second Air Field.

MANILA, P. I., March 22 [Thursday]—(AP).—Iloilo, 70 per cent devastated by Japanese torches but its good harbor intact, fell to Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush's 40th infantry division Tuesday, two days after the invasion of Panay Island, headquarters announced today.

[Iloilo, pronounced ee'lo-ee'lo, is the shipping center of the western Visayan group, and had a pre-war population of 90,000.]

The captured Iloilo airdrome was rapidly being put into condition as the doughboys seized the heart of the capital of Panay. A second air field, Santa Barbara airdrome, eight miles inland from Iloilo, was captured. It had been by-passed by troops rushing 25 miles inland the second day of the invasion. One pocket of 200 to 300 resisting Japanese was broken up at Pavia.

With strong guerrilla aid, the Yanks were spreading out over the coastal plain northwest of the city, seizing more villages and cleaning up scattered Japanese remnants.

Resistance Crushed.

Gen. MacArthur said the Japanese garrison at Iloilo—the greatest concentration of enemy troops on Panay—had been routed and except for minor pockets all organized enemy resistance on the island has been crushed.

He paid tribute to guerrillas operating under Col. Macario Peralta Jr., who he said had virtually cleared the interior and coastal sectors of the island before the American invasion Sunday. Peralta was awarded the distinguished service cross.

Iloilo's big airdrome, one of the prime objectives of the invasion, was seized on Monday. Japanese aircraft from this airdrome had harassed American shipping thru the central Philippines to Manila.

Guerrillas Seize Port.

On Luzon, the 33d infantry division moving north along the west coast reached the big port of San Fernando, which guerrillas captured Monday after wiping out the Japanese garrison.

Other elements of the 33d were moving east from captured Bauang toward Baguio, summer capital of the Philippines and supposed Japanese military headquarters.

East of Manila, MacArthur announced the collapse of the entire Antipolo-Wawa line, popularly called the Shimbu line, with the capture of 256 vehicles and great quantities of other material.

Cavite province, MacArthur reported, now has been cleared of Japanese except for scattered remnants "now in flight." This province forms the southern jaw of Manila bay.

A night counter-attack against Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st division on southwestern Mindanao was easily repulsed as the doughboys continued their general advance northward from captured Zamboanga.

Reds Massing on Oder; See Berlin Drive

LONDON, March 22 [Thursday]—(AP).—The Germans said last night that Russian shock troops had begun new attacks west of the Oder river within 32 miles of Berlin while soviet units to the north hurled shells into flaming Stettin from siege lines less than three miles from the Pomeranian capital and port.

The German radio said Marshal Zhukov, apparently seeking to widen his bridgeheads across the Oder, was striking in battalion strength southwest of Klenitz, on the river's west bank 10 miles northwest of captured Kuestrin and 32 miles east of Berlin.

Russians Mass Forces.

Both Berlin and Moscow reports said Zhukov was moving up forces along the central and lower Oder before Berlin and Stettin for momentous drives westward.

One German commentator said that the 1st White Russian army was massing anti-aircraft batteries and fog making machines and was working around the clock to throw more bridges across the Oder in the 16 mile wide Frankfurt-Kuestrin sector.

Also girding for the great all-out soviet offensive toward Berlin and Dresden, Marshal Konev's 1st Ukraine army was reported ready to vault the Neisse river in an assault toward Cottbus, big communications center 47 miles from the reich capital, and toward Spremberg, 13 miles to the south.

Gain in Baltic Pockets.

Fresh Russian gains were reported in the little pocket still held by the Germans southwest of Koenigsberg in East Prussia, and between imperiled Danzig and Gdynia, key German naval bases on the Baltic to the west.

Red air force planes sank three German transports of 5,000 to 6,000 tons each in the port of Pillau, 25 miles west of Koenigsberg on the Samland peninsula, the Russians said. This would indicate that German evacuations still were being made from the East Prussian capital. Two larger German transports and an enemy patrol ship were sunk by Russian planes in the area of Bornholm Island in the Baltic.

Russian troops forged a powerful 25 mile siege arc south and west of Danzig, pushed a new spearhead within six miles southwest of the former free city and drove within two miles of cutting the vital Danzig-Gdynia coastal road, Moscow announced.

Peril Danube Stronghold.

Far to the south another soviet army attacking within 58 miles of Austria threatened the big Danube river stronghold of Komarom [Komarno] in northwestern Hungary, half way between Budapest and the Bratislava gap to Vienna, Berlin said. One soviet wing also crashed into Szekesfehervar, big road junction 32 miles southwest of Budapest, the enemy said.

Romulo Hails American Policy

Washington, D. C., March 21 [Special].—The "masterpiece of human relationship" achieved by the United States in the Philippines should be emphasized at the allied nations conference in San Francisco, Cal., Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, resident commissioner for the islands, told a news conference today.

Romulo, aide to Gen. MacArthur and secretary of public instruction for his government, has just returned from Manila where he witnessed the scenes of desolation and cruelty as a result of Japanese outrages.

He stressed Filipino loyalty to the United States in unqualified terms, stating that President Osmena made this the first requisite in forming his new cabinet.

Filipinos are "100 per cent loyal," not alone in words "but thru suffering and fighting and living in the hills" for three years, Romulo stated. The government, he added, "is run by Filipinos who can be depended upon for their loyalty."

The Japanese, he continued, "committed a crime of revenge" and consequently what happened in Manila was actually "the price of loyalty to America."

"Maybe I'm a propagandist," Romulo stated. "But if I am a propagandist it is of American policy as applied to the Philippines. That policy is founded on recognition of the inherent right of a people to freedom, and respect for the dignity of the human soul. The future of peace in the Pacific will depend upon how that policy may be applied."

PATTON TANKS PLUNGE THRU LUDWIGSHAFEN

Near New Junction with 7th Army.

PARIS, March 22 [Thursday] (AP).—American tanks crashed thru the great German chemical center of Ludwigshafen on the Rhine today as the United States 3d and 7th armies continued to grind disorganized German forces west of the river in the maw of a disaster that may cost the enemy as many as 100,000 men in killed, wounded, and captured.

Lt. Gen. Patton's racing 3d army armored forces plunged straight thru Ludwigshafen and reached the Rhine inside that city of 150,000 population. They sent another column slashing southward to the highway junction of Neustadt, where it was within 19 miles of another junction with the 7th army—a new giant potential trap around the Nazis.

Prisoners Pouring In.

Prisoners were pouring in by the thousands and, with the exception of a 30-mile stretch where the Germans were clinging to Siegfried line defenses against Lt. Gen. Patch's 7th army, the enemy was in complete rout. The 3d army alone had seized 4,170 square miles and 3,275 German towns and cities since it started its present offensive on March 13. Since March 3 the 3d army has seized 5,230 square miles and 4,225 places.

As this phase of the allies' great western front offensive raced toward its conclusion the Germans said that American, British and Canadian forces north of Cologne were about to open a new all-out attack across the Rhine "at any hour." An Associated Press dispatch said the Nazis were moving great numbers of troops into the area.

Activity in the North.

A German broadcast said the German high command expected the allies to attempt to land parachute troops in the area and had "made necessary preparations."

Lt. Gen. Hodges' United States 1st army troops pushed out more than three miles at the northern end of their Remagen-Erpel bridgehead east of the Rhine and seized more than seven miles of the southern bank of the Sieg river, extending from the Rhine to the town of Niederpleis, five and a half miles east of Bonn. Troops in the bridgehead were reinforced by armor for the first time since the original crossings two weeks ago.

The advance, made by doughboys of the 78th division against light resistance, gave the bridgehead forces a solid left flank along the Sieg and heightened their threat to the industrial Ruhr district. The bridgehead now is at least 25 miles long and nine miles deep and is crammed with American power.

Make Three Counter-Attacks.

German infantry led by tanks made three new counter-attacks against an American held air field near Eudenbach at the northeast corner of the bridgehead, but all were decisively beaten off. Doughboys fighting east of the superhighway took Sand and Waschpohl and fought into Elsbach and Rubhausen, a mile farther north.

Other sectors of the bridgehead were quiet, and there were indications that the Nazis had abandoned hope of driving the 1st army back into the Rhine. Hodges' troops took 1,549 prisoners on the narrow front on Tuesday. A German broadcast estimated that 150,000 men now were engaged on each side in the bridgehead battle.

Many Still Uncounted.

The 3d army ran another 8,229 prisoners into its stockades on Tuesday and an estimated 6,000 remained to be tabulated for the day. That brought the 3d's estimated total for the week since the crossing of the Moselle to around 50,000 captives — 30,000 in the past 48 hours.

Seventh army tabulations were

Patton's Forces Forge New Trap Around Nazis

far from up to date, but when the mop-up is completed it is possible that the two American armies will have eliminated 75,000 Nazis in prisoners alone. The German 1st and 7th armies virtually had been written off in the latest distaster.

Patton's 3d army, still running wild, made advances of as much as 11 miles during the day, cleared 20 towns and entered four. Thousands of prisoners were taken.

Blow Up Ludwigshafen Bridge.

Ludwigshafen, fourth big German city entered or taken by the 3d army in two days, was pierced by an armored division which headquarters has not identified. Another column of the same division also reached the Rhine a mile north of the city after an eastward thrust of 7½ miles.

Fleeing German troops blew up the imposing bridge which connected Ludwigshafen with its twin industrial city of Mannheim on the east side of the river.

Other 3d army tanks stampeded the Germans between the Rhine bank cities of Worms and Mainz, overrunning town after town. However, Mainz itself still was largely in enemy hands.

Neustadt, important highway center 15 miles southwest of Ludwigshafen and 13 miles west of the Rhine at Speyer, was entered by the 10th armored division, which yesterday had smashed thru Kaiserslautern.

Fight to Hold Corridor.

This drive within 19 miles of the 7th army threatened to crush thousands of German troops against the saw-toothed line of Lt. Gen. Patch's American and French forces now fighting inside the Siegfried defenses between Lauterbourg and Pirmasens.

In that area, where the only semblance of organized German resistance west of the Rhine was being displayed, Nazi regular troops were trying to hold open an escape corridor to the river.

The Germans succeeded in preserving most of their positions on the eastern flank facing Maj. Gen. Edward Brooks' 6th corps, but the zigzag line gradually was caving in at the west and in the center.

The 71st division cleared Truiben, five miles southwest of Pirmasens, and the 14th armored division gained an important objective by seizing Steinfeld on the east side of Wissembourg gap, north of the Bienwald [forest] and 13 miles west of the Rhine. The 7th army's bag of prisoners for the day appeared likely to exceed 6,000.

Cuts Across Pocket.

One column of the 26th infantry division cut across a pocket that was closed late Tuesday in the first linkup of the 3d and 7th armies and joined forces with Gen. Patch's troops at Ottweiler, north of Neunkirchen, which had been by-passed.

The two small pockets of enemy troops thus formed were being cleaned up leisurely and jointly by forces of the 3d and 7th armies. There was no possibility of escape for the Nazis in this rich industrial area immediately north of Saarbruecken and Zweibruecken.

The 7th army's 45th infantry division enveloped and drove into the rubble heap that once was Homburg on the eastern boundary of the Saar. The 63d division captured St. Ingbert and Limbach, just southwest of Homburg.

To the east disorganized Nazis still were trying to hold some semblance of a line, but the 103d division drove steadily northward thru the Hardt forest and at last report were more than four miles north of Wissembourg in the gap leading to Landau. French troops had crossed the Lauter river and seized Berg, across the Rhine from Karlsruhe.

BOOTY LINES ROADS

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 10TH ARMORED AND 80TH INFANTRY DIVISIONS, Kaiserslautern, Germany, March 20 [Delayed]. — Our party drove 250 miles today—most of this in Germany—and saw what happens when a once-great army falls to pieces before the onslaught of a greater army tremendously aided by its air force.

The day was sunny and bright, with so many civilians abroad that the whole effect was a false one of some nation-wide holiday that brought every one outdoors.

But it was no holiday for the Germans. The only persons actually merry were the newly freed "slaves," the Russian, Polish, and French men, women, and children who are their own masters at last. The so-called "master race" was too busy to issue any orders.

In New Role as Refugees.

The German citizenry was either digging thru the wreckage of its smashed towns to see what could be salvaged, plodding down the roads like the refugees of other countries in years past, digging holes to bury dead horses, digging up posts which had been used to make road blocks in every town, moving from homes temporarily to make room for American units, or just standing, staring in silent amazement at more motorized equipment than most of them ever knew existed.

Dead horses—hundreds of them—smashed equipment from tanks to guns to little wooden wagons were everywhere down all roads, their numbers increasing as we approached the Rhine.

Poles and Russians, most of whom already were carrying huge bundles of personal equipment, were happily poking thru wrecked German trucks in search of something else of value to add to their packs. Most of these people—officially known as "displaced persons"—were walking. But some few rode horses and we even saw one small group riding elegantly along a famed Nazi autobahn [super-highway] outside of Kaiserslautern atop a little diesel powered car which looked as tho it should be rolling down railroad tracks somewhere.

Piles of Ammunition.

Nearly every clump of woods we passed held undamaged piles of Nazi ammunition or burned and exploded piles that had been hit by bombs or strafing. At one place dozens upon dozens of horses grazed quietly in the woods, relieved of their appointed task of pulling ammunition wagons. And everywhere along the roads under guard or untended, by the hundreds or alone, came the prisoners—young and old, military and unmilitary looking—with others walking in from the woods and fields to swell the number.

We followed a friendly vehicle thru a bumpy, wooded road and suddenly found ourselves on the autobahn. As we turned into it G. I.s in a truck ahead cheered at the sight of the best road they had seen since leaving the United States.

There was no trouble in getting into Kaiserslautern except for a short detour necessitated by the fact one overpass of the autobahn was either demolished by the Germans or by American bombs.

City Badly Damaged.

Kaiserslautern was badly damaged by the air force bombing, but no further damage was added today, since the city fell virtually without a fight. What impressed us most about the city was the trivial fact that some one had cut a steak sized slice of meat from a freshly killed horse in the middle of the main street.

We found American armor a few miles beyond the town after passing a still burning Sherman tank behind which lay a terribly mangled body of an American soldier. An 88 mm. shell had scored a direct hit on the tank.

In the town of Frankenstein we worked our way thru a traffic jam by following a medical peep which was en route to pick up a wounded German on a side road. As they were lifting him onto the vehicle two enemy soldiers came into view, trundling a little barrow on which lay a wounded Yank.

He said weakly that he was shot thru the lung and had been spitting blood all morning but "these guys [indicating the Germans] did a good job."

Take Two Prisoners.

When the medical peep left with the two wounded we found ourselves with two Nazis on our hands and Charles Hacker, Acme photographer from New York City, said: "Hey! One of those guys still has a rifle!"

So we took his rifle, which he seemed surprised to find still slung around his neck, put both prisoners on the peep hood, and rode them back into town.

Somewhere in this vicinity we met a Chicagolander, Pvt. Bob Crespi, who found we were from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and said: "Mention this peep will you? I'm its fifth driver. It's hit five mines but is still going. It has more shrapnel holes than any other peep in the 80th division."

We also saw Pvt. Lawrence Fralick of Bagley, Wis., who showed us a torn sleeve where a machine gun bullet had ripped it March 13.

"On the way back to an aid station," he said, "a mortar landed in front of me, scratching my nose and then three 'screaming meemies' hit the aid station, wrecked the building, and they had to move."

We ran for our peep as the column began to move and Crespi's voice came faintly saying: "Hey, mention that the peep's named Bette. That's my wife's name."

4 ARMORED UNITS SCRAMBLED IN PLUNGE TO RHINE

WITH AMERICAN ARMOR AT LUDWIGSHAFEN, Germany, March 21 (AP).—Lt. Gen. Patton's newest and still unidentifiable tank division slammed into this Rhine city today after probably the wildest scramble in the history of armored warfare. It was like hitting a fresh egg with a hammer, with the resultant mess.

Four armored divisions with single track minds—to get to the Rhine and chew up as many German forces as possible—ran all over one another's toes in a hectic race, but no one got sore.

Besides this new armored outfit, the 10th, 11th, and 4th armored divisions swarmed over all roads to the Rhine in the comparatively small area from Ludwigshafen to north of Worms. Yet when the time came, all the pieces in this massed armored movement fell exactly into place. It is not far from the truth to say that the new tank division rushed into Ludwigshafen to get out of the way of the enormous concentrations of tanks and infantry pushing from behind.

FCC HEAD BALKS AT U. S. HAND IN WIRE MONOPOLY

Porter Picks Flaws in Navy's Proposal.

BY ROBERT YOUNG.

Paul A. Porter.

Washington, D. C., March 21.—Paul A. Porter, chairman of the federal communications commission, is opposed to the navy's plan to let the government share in the management of a proposed privately owned monopoly of all United States overseas communications, he said today in testimony which he began presenting at a senate subcommittee hearing.

He said he recommends complete consolidation, but regards government participation as unworkable.

"I feel strongly that this limited marriage between government and private business will not in practice result in the advantages claimed for it, but to the contrary will have many disadvantages," Porter said. "I am sensitive to the objectives of the navy department's proposals to make certain that the interests of national security are properly safeguarded, but I disagree as to the practicability of the plan suggested."

"Anomalous Pattern."

The navy plan had been presented by Secretary of the Navy Forrestal earlier in the hearing being held by a senate interstate commerce subcommittee investigating postwar international communications programs. Forrestal urged the merger of 13 American radio, telegraph, cable, and press wireless companies into a corporation which would have as five of its 20 directors representatives of the war, navy, state, commerce, and post office departments.

Porter said he agreed with the principle and necessity of unification, but called the navy plan "an anomalous pattern" of a privately owned corporation, sponsored by the government, co-managed by private owners and the government, yet supposedly subject to existing measure of regulatory control.

The FCC chairman said the "deficiencies" of the navy proposal included a tendency to divide government regulatory authority which would result in confusion; participation by government directors in the affairs of the corporation would destroy the relationship of a federal regulatory agency to a private monopoly, and the public might be misled in the purchase of securities of the corporation because the government's position on the board of directors might create the impression that the government is insuring the purchasers' risks.

Wants Central Authority.

"Sound public administration would seem to me to dictate that the authority should be centralized and repose in an expert body charged with responsibility of enforcing the standards which congress must write in the legislation creating a monopoly in this field," Porter said.

He said the responsibilities of the government directors for the prosperity of the company could not be separated from their responsibility with regard to national interest and, accordingly, conflicts would arise.

Public interest would be better protected by an "arms-length relationship" between the government and the corporation, than by intimate government participation in corporate affairs, Porter said. Other procedures can be worked out to make certain that important military and diplomatic matters are given consideration, he suggested.

Opinion Not Completed.

Porter anounced to the subcommittee that the FCC's final opinion in the controversy as to what form the proposed consolidation should take will be postponed until after all interested parties have presented their views at the hearing. Porter did not complete his formal testimony today and will continue tomorrow.

The FCC chairman told the subcommittee that at almost every stage of congressional consideration of communications legislation since 1910, the question of international merger "has consistently been in the foreground as a problem vitally affecting the development of a sound and orderly communications policy for our country."

During a discussion of maps and charts of international communication systems introduced by Porter, Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont], subcommittee chairman, asked the FCC chairman if it is not true that the British control most of the press communication outlets overseas.

Praises Press Wireless.

Porter said this is not true, and added that the wireless system organized by newspapers and press associations has done "a great job" with low rates and efficient service. He said the American Press Wireless offers service superior to the British communications organization.

"I don't see much excuse for including the press in a merger," Wheeler declared. "Why risk the danger of putting the press at the mercy of a monopoly? Perhaps low rate press traffic would receive less consideration than other traffic which is more profitable."

Porter replied that if the press is included in a consolidated system, low rates and efficient service will not be sacrificed because it is important that the United States receive the best and fastest news service possible. He asserted that if the press is not included, unity of American communications overseas would be impaired.

U. S. Not Ready to Compete.

In answer to a question from Sen. Capehart [R., Ind.] as to whether the proposed merger would be in the national interest "or just another government bureau," Porter replied that unification is necessary to American peace and security.

Sen. McFarland [D., Ariz.] asked if the United States is ready now to compete with other nations in the world communications field. Porter said this country is not yet ready and told the committee that Great Britain, in particular, has had consolidated communications for several years and is ready to reorganize the system on a more efficient basis.

In discussing the British system, Porter said it had encountered financial difficulties and government aid was necessary.

NEARING NEW RECORD AS DRIVE FOR PAPER DRAWS TO A CLOSE

Pupils in Chicago's public elementary schools will close tomorrow a five week drive for waste paper which school officials believe will set a new paper collection record.

Collection in the first three weeks of the drive reached an average of 1¼ million pounds a week and last week 1,354,810 pounds was collected, said Don C. Rogers, assistant superintendent of schools. The previous record was 6,486,583 pounds collected in a six week drive which ended Feb. 16.

Fifty boys and girls who lead the entire city in the campaign will be guests of school, war production board, and waste paper salvage committee officials at a dinner to be held in the Morrison hotel. The pupils will receive gold medals and the 25 top schools in the city will receive WPB citations. Leading schools in the nine elementary districts will receive special awards.

EXPOSE REDMAN MONOPOLY PLEA IN RCA ADDRESS

Rear Adm. Joseph R. Redman, director of naval communications, now urging a communications monopoly before a senate subcommittee, was exposed yesterday as having advocated foisting such a monopoly on the nation under cover of war time conditions. Adm. Redman put forward his plan last Dec. 1 at the anniversary dinner of the Radio Corporation of America, which would be the chief beneficiary of the organization of such a monopoly.

It was revealed yesterday that Adm. Redman said then:

"The time to reorganize and rearrange affairs is after a great upheaval has taken place, such as a great war which has disrupted our usual mode of living. It is at a time like this that we can make the changes that are difficult to bring about during normal times. . . . Therefore, let us be prepared with an appropriate program to accomplish our objectives.

Envisions Central Switchboards.

"I am sure that we can all agree that there is no more need for highly competitive services, such as the press, to establish and operate their own stations than there is for them to build and operate wire telephone or telegraph lines. . . . Our objective must be to have the communications companies provide the circuits to the customers and then let them compete among themselves as to who scoops whom.

"I envisage a remarkably efficient and modern international communications system. I can see great central switchboards on which terminate the various circuits, each circuit operating thru filters dividing it into many channels for all classes of service."

Adm. Redman, who now talks of the advantages of monopoly in communications, has not always been one of its prophets.

Accused FCC of Bungling.

Testifying privately in March, 1943, before a house committee investigating the federal communications commission, the admiral said that the commission's foreign broadcast intelligence service was of no value to the navy, and charged that federal communications commission bungling caused a naval mishap in Alaskan waters.

He referred to the activities of the commission as "amateurish."

Subsequently, his secret testimony before the committee was commandeered by the White House, after which, it was charged by Rep. Miller [R., Mo.], a member of the committee, that President Roosevelt sought the retirement of Adm. Redman in a letter of memorandum to the navy department. It was charged that former Chairman Fly of the FCC obtained a copy of this memorandum and showed it to other persons as a warning of what might happen to persons who testified against the commission before congressional committees.

Adm. Redman was not retired. But since then, there is no instance on record in which he has said or done anything calculated to offend or vex the New Deal.

Press Communications Assailed.

He testified Tuesday that permitting the press to retain its own international communications system, now functioning efficiently, would "impair" the unity of the proposed communications monopoly.

The government seeks to merge all present communications facilities, including cables, telegraph, radio, and press wireless in one organization, the merger to be mandatory, on terms laid down by congress.

The scheme contemplates that the unified corporation would be privately owned, but that one-fourth of its 20 man board of directors would be representatives of the government, representing the war, navy, state, commerce, and postoffice departments.

Sees Profitable Operation.

In response to questioning, Redman denied that this would constitute government control, asserting that the primary duties of the government representatives would be to protect American interests in military and diplomatic matters during times of national emergency.

Redman gave it as his opinion that such a corporation should be able to operate profitably without federal aid, which would indicate that the government representatives on the board would be given a voice in a private enterprise in which neither they nor the government had a financial stake.

RADIO EXECUTIVE PROTESTS FCC PLAN FOR SHIFT IN FM

The future of frequency modulation [FM] is being risked on the word of one radio expert who is in opposition to seven other authorities, E. F. McDonald Jr., president of Zenith Radio corporation, asserted in a telegram sent yesterday to Sen. White [R., Me.] and other members of the senate committee on interstate commerce. McDonald added that if the federal communications commission goes thru with its proposal to shift FM from its present allocations of 42-50 megacycles to 84-102 it will delay the FM art from two to five years.

McDonald asserted that only K. A. Norton, attached to the army, of all the experts called to testify at the present hearings supported the FCC views and that all others testified the proposed move was unnecessary.

McDonald said that the shift would move FM into "untried and unproven" channels, would be "a disservice to the public."

NO SANTA CLAUS IN LEND-LEASE, HALIFAX SAYS

Holds Gifts to Britain Helped Defend U. S.

Tulsa, Okla., March 21 (AP).—Complete human freedom and the right of all peoples to live unstalked by constant fear for centuries to come are far bigger issues than partisan questions of who is helping whom at this time, British Ambassador Halifax told a press conference today.

"That freedom and right are what your country and mine and our allies are fighting for," said the ambassador, "and together we have saved them."

Halifax was replying to questions based on an editorial printed today in the Tulsa Tribune in which he was asked to "convince us of the sincerity and honesty of the good will you exercise your rhetoric to radiate."

Recalls War Debts.

The editorial called attention to war debts, past and present, as well as urging the British official to "go back and tell all the king's horses and all the king's men that the good will is here, but it is not over there."

To which Halifax replied that "this is the kind of stuff that pulls away from any understanding of the truth."

"We must all give what we can in this kind of war. Any careful study of the lend-lease agreement will reveal that the United States is no Santa Claus bringing gifts to England.

Defended the U. S.

"What you have sent and lent us was for the defense of your land which surely would have been attacked had England fallen in the beginning."

"In this time of rocket bombs and such certainly we are seeing that the future holds no place for the isolationist."

England, the ambassador said, has nothing to be ashamed of as regards her part or contributions to the war.

Earlier in the day Halifax and his party were guests at the famous Woolaroc ranch of Frank Phillips, oil man, near Bartlesville, Okla.

DULLES REFUSES VANDENBERG BID TO PEACE PARLEY

Washington, D. C., March 21 (AP).—John Foster Dulles, New York lawyer and international affairs consultant, has informed Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] he wishes to have "no official status" at the San Francisco world security conference.

Dulles, who was Gov. Dewey's foreign affairs adviser in the last Presidential campaign, said he would continue to serve the cause of peace in various "nonofficial capacities."

Vandenberg had suggested Dulles serve as adviser to the senator, a member of the American delegation to San Francisco.

Belated Honeymoon

Capt. James Robinson and his wife, Ensign Patricia Robinson, in Chicago for honeymoon yesterday.

Capt. James Robinson, 26, of Cleveland, O., a veteran of 34 months overseas with the 8th air force and his wife, Ensign Patricia Robinson, 26, of Alliance, O., began a belated honeymoon in Chicago's Edgewater Beach hotel yesterday. They were married in San Antonio, Tex., on Jan. 10, 1942, but because the Mustang pilot was in the final phases of his army training, they never were able to take a honeymoon trip, he explained. Capt. Robinson holds the distinguished flying cross and air medal with six oak leaf clusters.

Ensign Robinson, who is stationed at Terminal Island, Cal., is a mere 4 feet, 10½ inches, and her husband is one-half inch over six feet.

URGES U. S. PRESS GIVE TRUTHFUL VIEW OF RUSSIA

MOSCOW, March 21 (AP). — The magazine War and the Working Class exhorted United States newspapers today to "give true and complete information about our country." The magazine accused a section of the American press of "falsifying" reports about the soviet union during the last quarter of a century.

"The soviet people are surprised at many fantastic statements of soviet life and ways appearing in the foreign press," the article said. "For a quarter of a century a considerable part of the American press has poorly informed the American public and falsified information about the soviet press. A certain part of the American press continues until the present day to act in this manner."

The magazine cited a recent article by Prof. Warren B. Walsh of Syracuse university in Princeton university's Public Opinion quarterly, which said public opinion polls indicated that only one American in 10 was even reasonably well informed concerning the soviet union.

CHICAGOAN SEES NAZI BLUFF; 208 THROW IN CHIPS

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 83D DIVISION IN GERMANY, March 21.—How a Chicago youth outbluffed a Nazi major was told today when the 331st regiment released the story of Pvt. Harold Ableman, 5444 N. Spaulding av., who helped capture 207 Germans and their company commander.

The Yanks were halted in their advance on Niederkassel when firing ceased and a Nazi officer emerged from a trench, waving a sword.

Lt. Kenneth Bergquest of Linden Hills, Minneapolis, Minn., detailed Ableman, who speaks fluent German, to lay down his rifle and go forward to see what the German wanted.

Nazi Demands Surrender.

"I giff you finf [five] seconds to surrender in name of Der Fuehrer," screamed the Heinie major.

Ableman just smiled contemptuously. "I came to accept your surrender," Ableman said, and before the major could reply, continued, "We got you surrounded, and if you don't quit we'll start fighting immediately."

"Impossible. You are my prisoner—I vill kill you if you don't come mit me," snapped the major.

Nazi Fails to Shoot.

But Ableman took a deep breath, turned around, and started back. The officer did not shoot.

Lt. Patrick Murphy, Flint, Mich., company commander, ordered firing resumed, but before half a dozen shots were fired a white flag waved from the Nazi trench and the crestfallen major and 207 of his men filed out as prisoners.

ROOSEVELT AND WIFE WILL BE HOSTS TODAY TO BRITISH ROYALTY

Washington, D. C., March 21 (AP).—Gov. Gen. Athlone of Canada, and his wife, Princess Alice, will be greeted with military honors when they arrive at the White House tomorrow afternoon.

They will come by special train from Canada for a visit of several days with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. After ceremonies on the White House lawn they will meet members of the cabinet and other high American officials.

A number of social engagements have been arranged, including a dinner which the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will give Friday evening.

PAPER ODYSSEY TYPIFIES RAIL VICTORY IN WAR

9 Cars Show How Great Job Is Accomplished.

BY CHARLES BALLENGER.

Each day 17,000 freight trains are moving on the nation's 235,000 miles of railroad trackage to haul an average of more than 5 million tons of food, industrial products, and military supplies. An equal number of trains are hauling daily 2 million passengers and 500,000 troops and equipment.

However, even these figures are an inadequate index to the tremendous job of transportation accomplished by the American railway system since the attack on Pearl Harbor. After emerging from a depression which left even major railroads in receivership and with obsolete rolling stock and equipment, the railroads have met a demand for passenger service 80 per cent higher than in 1939 and a freight volume 90 per cent higher than that of 1939.

Compared with World War I., passenger travel has increased more than 125 per cent and freight volumes have jumped 82 per cent, altho the railroads are now operating with 500,000 fewer men and 600,000 fewer cars than they had in 1918.

How Railroads Do Their Job.

To find out how the railroads accomplished this staggering task of war time transportation, a shipment of nine freight cars of newsprint, carried by rail from Thorold, Ont., to Chicago, was followed by a Tribune representative.

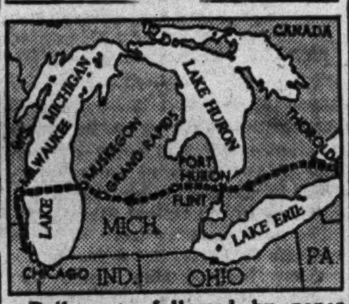
The nine cars, loaded with 270 tons of newsprint, or about enough paper to print a single issue of THE TRIBUNE, started their journey in the yards of the Ontario Paper company in Thorold.

The paper, manufactured by the Ontario company, a Tribune subsidiary, from spruce wood cut on Tribune timber lands near Baie Comeau, on the St. Lawrence river in Quebec, had been loaded in a matter of hours; the railroads "stretch" the number of freight cars by not allowing them to remain in loading stations longer than absolutely necessary.

Hooked onto a drag of 45 other cars carrying everything from "reefers" — refrigerated cars — to flatcars, each loaded with war products, the cargo of paper left the assembling yards just as dusk made the winking lights of the signal boards stand out.

Engineer Al McMillan, a veteran of 35 years on the rails, waited in the cab of the huge engine known as the Northern type freighter for a clear board and the highball that would allow him to open throttle and proceed.

Route of Paper



Rail route followed by paper en route from Thorold, Ontario, to Chicago.

At exactly 8:30 p. m. the red light on the board alongside the switching track turned to green.

"Clear board," shouted the head-end brakeman, the train crewman who rides in the engine with the engineer and fireman. "Clear board", echoed McMillan. At the rear end of the train the brakeman waved his lantern up and down in the traditional highball signal.

McMillan gave the engine power and the train began to move. Manifest freight No. 564 had started on the first leg of its 571 mile trip to Chicago.

More Cars to Be Added.

Moving along the tracks of the Canadian National railway, No. 564 pounded into St. Catharine's, Ont., exactly on schedule. Ahead a green light flickered to red and a lantern waved back and forth, horizontal to the ground. With air brakes squealing, No. 564 was stopped. More cars were to be taken on in the freight yards.

One reason why the railroads have accomplished their task was immediately apparent here. Within eight minutes the yard crew, aided by the tail-end flagman and the conductor, had broken up the freight, added three cars and were ready to give the highball.

Pounding along thru a warm early spring night, Engineer McMillan opened his throttle wide. At times the train reached the statutory freight train speed limit of 60 miles an hour.

Where Speed Gets Dividend.

"Make the trip fast," McMillan explained later, "and your engine and crew can be back on the rails with another train just that much sooner."

Outside of Hamilton, on the western tip of Lake Ontario, a new reason for speed developed. Behind No. 564, one of the Canadian National's crack passenger trains, the International Limited, was swinging to the main line tracks on her way from Toronto to Detroit.

According to schedule, the passenger train was supposed to pass No. 564 between Paris and Dorchester. No. 564, however, was not required to "get in the hole"—pull to a siding—until the Limited was less than nine minutes behind.

Freight Train Wins Race.

Flashing thru Paris and then Woodstock at top speed, No. 564 raised the gap to 12 minutes. McMillan decided to race the Limited to Sarnia, the border town across from Port Huron, Mich., the end of his run.

A yellow caution light forced the freight to lessen its speed. The Limited was just nine minutes behind. Then the gap widened again, then narrowed. But by the time the waterspout at Kingscourt had been passed, it was apparent that No. 564 had won the race. The passenger train was nine and a half minutes behind and couldn't pass any longer. The freight pulled into Sarnia at 1:50 a. m., three hours and 15 minutes ahead of schedule.

The nine paper cars, along with the other freights in the drag, were scheduled to go thru the Hole, the international tunnel between Sarnia, in Canada, and Port Huron, at 6 a. m. Exactly on schedule, the electric locomotive began pushing the train beneath the river connecting Lake Huron with Lake Erie.

Train Heads for Ferry.

On the American side, after custom inspection, the train was remade and a Grand Trunk Western freight engine was attached. The dispatcher's schedule put No. 564 on the road at 11:55 a. m. and by 11:54 the train was moving up the tracks bound for the car ferry at Muskegon, Mich., on the eastern shore of Lake Michigan.

Passing along the Grand Trunk tracks thru Durand, Flint, Owosso, and Grand Rapids, the freight gained half an hour on its schedule. At Grand Rapids, the train turned northwest for Muskegon, where it was scheduled to meet the car ferry, operated by the Grand Trunk railway, at 1:30 a. m. Ahead of schedule, No. 564 steamed into Muskegon at 11 p. m. The ferry was also ahead of schedule and loading began immediately.

The ferry, which is in operation the year around, has a capacity of 23 to 32 cars, depending on the size of the freights. It is operated essentially as a freighter, but can carry 16 passengers.

Milwaukee 80 Miles Away.

At midnight the ferry, the City of Milwaukee, pulled out for the 80 mile trip across the lake to Milwaukee, Wis.

Docking in Milwaukee at 6:10 the next morning the 27 cars in the ferry, including the nine paper cars, were pulled off immediately and taken to the assembling yards to be made into a new train for Chicago.

Four hours later, a new train of 76 cars, with the 27 from the car ferry, was made up and ready for the last leg of the journey.

The efficiency of both the boat and train crews on the Michigan and Wisconsin sides of the car ferry saved nearly three hours operating time, enough time for a fast freight train to make the trip from Chicago to Milwaukee.

Right on Time to Proviso.

Pulled by two engines, the freight train made a fast trip down the main freight line of the Chicago and North Western railroad, reaching the Proviso classification yards, 13 miles west of Chicago, on schedule.

These great yards, the largest in the world, were recently rebuilt and modernized so that they now can handle 25 per cent more traffic than before the war.

They are capable of classifying from 6,000 to 10,000 cars from 28 railroads daily, sorting them out of incoming trains and making up outgoing trains. The 230 miles of track in the yards are shaped like an hour glass with a round hump at the waist; from this it gets its name of a hump yard.

Law of Gravity Helps.

Trains to be sorted are pushed up to the hump and at the summit the cars are released to roll down into the fan shaped array of 59 tracks on the other side. Above the hump, which is at Central av. and 69th st., the yard master opens and closes switches, guiding the rolling cars into the tracks indicated by the classification orders sent him by teletype.

The nine paper cars, however, did not need sorting over the hump, because they had been hooked on the end of their train to save time at the terminus of the run.

A powerful new Diesel switch engine immediately took them off the train and began pulling them along the C. & N. W. main line tracks to the switching system under the Merchandise Mart. Then an electric locomotive took them along the north bank of the Chicago river to the Tribune warehouses east of Michigan av., where they were unloaded immediately so the freight cars could go back in service.

The railroads had completed another war time job—and done it well.

MINISTER STRESSES BRITAIN'S NEED FOR POST-WAR EXPORTS

LONDON, March 21 [Reuters].—Colonial Secretary Stanley said here today that after the war Britain would have to depend as never before on her export trade.

Speaking to the London Rotary club, he pointed out that in two wars colonial peoples had come to Britain's aid. They were not conscripted for the fighting, he said, and there was not one man in the colonial empire now fighting for Britain who had needed the "spur of compulsion."

"Yet hundreds of thousands are sharing in our struggle. When people have done that for us we should try to see that they have a better world," Stanley declared.

SAARBRUECKEN, PRIDE OF NAZIS, NOW SKELETON

'Sacred' Soil Churned by Bombs, Shells.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAARBRUECKEN, Germany, March 21.—This once flourishing city, where the Nazis recorded a triumph in the Saar plebiscite of 1935, is a broken place today. Allied bombing and shelling have left it a ghastly skeleton, a place where crumbling, gutted buildings sway above rubble littered streets, where many dead lie in the wreckage, and where mining and industry are stilled.

Once the population of Saarbruecken was 135,000. Today there were fewer than 1,000 civilians in the city—the others were dead or had fled eastward with the German army—and those who remained gave us sullen looks.

Ex-Captives Have Their Day.

Once the Nazis had brought here many Italian, Russian, and Polish prisoners of war to work in the mines. Several thousand of those captives, now liberated, wander the streets, drinking, shouting, cursing, and spitting at the buildings where the Germans had held them in bondage.

On the morning of Jan. 15, 1935, in the auditorium of the red sandstone Evangelical meeting house on the Nauwiesestrasse, a plump, little man rose and read the result of the plebiscite — 90.3 per cent for the return of the Saar to Germany. He was Dr. Rodhe, Swedish president of the plebiscite committee, and his announcement brought cheers from the massed Germans policed by the Gestapo.

A plaque topped by a stone swastika was placed later on the outside of the building. It told how an "overwhelming majority gave back this sacred ground to Germany."

"Sacred Ground" Churned Up.

Now that meeting house is windowless, having been ripped by bomb fragments, and some of the "sacred ground" is in ungainly heaps about it. The plaque has been subjected to earthly indignities the last few hours.

Sunlight streamed unbarred into the auditorium thru huge holes in the roof. The floors have buckled from concussion. Winds playing thru the halls rippled Nazi banners until they were torn down for souveniors by American soldiers.

The Germans defended Saarbruecken strongly for months; yet at the last they pulled out without a fight and the 70th infantry division of Lt. Gen. Patch's 7th army came in from the west yesterday.

The eight bridges across the Saar river, which runs east and west thru the city, had been blown up by the Germans, but an engineer battalion commanded by Maj. Orville Munson, Wessington Springs, S. D., quickly constructed a serviceable span. Among his men are Pvt. Martin F. Bucholz, 3520 Chicago rd., Steger, Ill., and Pvt. Harry E. Elliott, Albion, Ill.

Frederick Statue Marred.

Near one destroyed bridge on the north bank of the river is a statue of Frederick the Great on horseback. Frederick's fierce glare is still intact, but the back of his bronze pants and the rear end of the bronze steed have been mangled by bomb fragments.

The Horst Wessel platz and the Adolf Hitler platz near-by were also smashed by bombs, as were most of the churches. The town hall was not so badly damaged as other structures. In the top story was found evidence that the Germans had used the location for an observation post.

The military government staff which took over Saarbruecken is headed by Lt. Col. G. Kelly, Rochester, N. Y. It includes Capt. Bernard M. Nagel, 5401 Winthrop av., Chicago, formerly with the Chicago city water works department, and Lt. Rex M. Smith, Antigo, Wis.

Kelly said that there is no serious civilian problem, a bakery was functioning, and some food stocks had survived the bombing and shelling. Welcomed by dry American throats, a few breweries are ready to reopen.

War Developments in the Philippines

NAZI HOMELAND RAIDED BY 7,000 ALLIED PLANES

LONDON, March 21 (AP).—In the greatest coördinated aerial assault of the war, more than 7,000 allied war planes, including nearly 3,000 heavy bombers, battered the reich today. Mosquitos then dropped block busters on Berlin for the 30th consecutive night.

Lancasters carrying 11 ton volcano bombs and escorted by fighters attacked an oil refinery at Bremen. The big bombers, numbering more than 800, flew thru heavy flak. Another force of R. A. F. Lancasters with 11 ton bombs smashed the Weser river bridge at Bremen.

Mosquitos of the tactical air forces, in a low level attack, destroyed virtually every building at Gestapo headquarters in Copenhagen, Danish capital.

Attack 11 Airdromes.

Some 1,300 Fortresses and Liberators escorted by 600 fighters ripped nine airdromes during the morning. In the afternoon 100 Liberators attacked two other air fields, all in the Muenster area.

Mitchell and Boston medium bombers attacked the Bocholt and Borken rail yards while more than 300 Marauders, Invaders, and Havocs battered roads and rail lines in the Muenster area.

Nine bombers and 10 fighters were missing from the day's operations but the 8th air force claimed 12 enemy planes—all jet propelled—were destroyed in the air and an additional 43 and six gliders were destroyed on the ground.

Ninth air force fighter-bombers ranged to the north attacking trains on the main lines into the Ruhr-Duesseldorf-Dortmund areas as well as keeping up attacks on the roads on which the Germans are fleeing from the Palatinate.

Bomb Jet Plane Base.

Liberators of the 15th air force flying up from Italy bombed the Neuberg air field, a jet propelled aircraft base 50 miles north of Munich.

Fortresses of the 15th struck natural oil refineries at Kagran and Vosendorf in the Vienna area where gasoline and lubricating oils for German divisions on the southeastern front are produced.

Other allied planes based in Italy battered the Brenner pass rail line, attacking rail yards at Brennero in the pass.

One hundred Fortresses and Liberators escorted by 100 Mustangs attacked the Vomag war plant near Plauen on the Czechoslovakian border where tanks, engines, and other military equipment have been produced. Jet planes swirled thru the bomber formation and two were knocked down. Seven others were destroyed en route to the target.

1,200 AMERICANS, FREED BY REDS, REACH NAPLES

NAPLES, Italy, March 20 [Delayed] — (AP). — Approximately 1,200 Americans, the first large group of freed prisoners of war to be evacuated since the Red army overran their prison camps in Germany arrived in Naples today for transhipment to the United States.

The vast majority were eager to continue on home, but a few hardy warriors insisted they would like nothing better than to rejoin combat outfits in Italy or Germany immediately.

Red Cross girls were on the pier, handing out sweaters, toilet kits, and doughnuts.

TELLS OF BERLIN RIOT AGAINST NAZI OFFICIALS

Party Men First to Flee Russians, Writer Says.

[The writer of this article, for 17 years Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper the Stockholms-Tidningen, has just returned to Stockholm.]

BY CHRISTER JAEDERLUND.

[Copyright: 1945: By the Associated Press.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 21 (AP).—A train from Bydgoszcz bearing local Nazi party leaders arrived recently at a Berlin railway station while thousands of the capital's residents stood outside.

The smartly uniformed leaders, who were the first to leave Bydgoszcz, in northwestern Poland, as the Russian army approached, carried all their luggage and were met by a fleet of motor cars. Their situation contrasted sharply with the misery of other refugees.

The Berliners spoke their minds. The crowd grew so threatening the party leaders became nervous and ordered the guards to fire into the air.

The affair became so widely known that the leaders had to pay with their lives. They had broken the one condition under which Hitler allows his Nazi comrades liberties at the expense of the population—they had been found out.

These Berlin people were no rabble. Their attitude represented the true feelings of the German nation and they had to be calmed. Hitler therefore ordered the execution of the Bydgoszcz party leaders as deserters.

Country One Vast Camp.

Germany has become a vast refugee camp and the refugee problem is one reason for the cleavage that has developed among the Nazi party, the army, and the ordinary civilian.

I saw an example of this cleavage when I traveled on a refugee train from Sorau, at the Silesian front, to Berlin. Our train was scheduled to start at 10:30 a. m., and the people of Sorau tried to storm aboard, but they were fended off by armed party men and policemen who formed a cordon around the station. Three hours later Russian tanks reached Sorau's outskirts and only then was the evacuation permitted to begin.

The next, and last, train steamed out at 3:30 p. m., while street fighting was in progress. This time the population was allowed to board it freely because the party bosses and police had vanished.

Accused as Deserters.

The train was three-quarters full of soldiers who were departing on their own. The soldiers and the women in the crowd argued heatedly. The women shouted "deserters." The soldiers said that they had no more ammunition.

I never have heard such bitter criticism of the party as when our group of refugees joined others from different sectors after we had changed trains.

"Naturally," said one, "the party men loaded their property into moving vans and drove off. We were forbidden to pack at all and at the last moment had to escape across the fields as best we could."

The refugees also were bitter against the German soldiers who, they all said, plundered German towns.

All over Germany great caravans of refugees are inching along. Fifteen miles a day is about all they can cover.

Collapse Surprises Hitler.

Evacuation on the eastern front, which was marked by panic and confusion, showed that Hitler was surprised by the sudden collapse of the Vistula front. He had sent such large forces to the west for the Ardennes offensive that the eastern defenses were seriously weakened.

Hitler gave orders that no province was to be evacuated without his personal approval because he feared it would cause panic. The ban prevented the proposed preparatory organization. Refugees from the east were counted in the millions, yet they constituted only a fraction of the masses which could have fled if the authorities had coöperated a little.

For instance, evacuation of Lodz was not permitted until Russian tanks were sweeping past the city.

Party officials were the only persons not compelled to await official evacuation orders. They tipped one another off on the Russian advance and packed their documents and furniture in closed vans. Civilians had to await the official order and in large towns all they usually received was a notice informing them that an evacuation train would leave in two hours.

BRITISH TO TAKE COUNCIL SEATS IN JERUSALEM

JERUSALEM, March 21 [Reuters].—For the first time, British subjects will serve as councilors of Jerusalem as a result of a decision communicated by the high commissioner, Field Marshal Gort, today.

This decision has been reached, added the statement, "in order to afford the recognition and representation which his excellency has decided are due to the interest of the mandatory holy city."

The decision regarding the future constitution of the municipal administration of Jerusalem provides for the adoption of a system of triple rotation by which the mayoralty is filled during successive years by Moslem, Jewish, and Christian councilors.

26 DOUGHBOYS AND 1 GRENADE TAKE NAZI TOWN

Sergeant of Chicago Leads Captors.

KAISERSLAUTERN, Germany, March 20 [Delayed] (AP).—This vital road and rail center fell today to one hand grenade and 25 doughboys.

Tech. Sgt. Byron Hoover.

A city with a peace time population of 61,000, Kaiserslautern long had been figured by Lt. Gen. Patton's strategists as a tough nut to crack.

But Patton's armor stirred up such bewilderment and terror that an American party led by Technical Sgt. Byron Hoover, 1529 Thorndale av., Chicago, moved in and took over almost without a fight.

Armor Whizzes on Thru.

Actually the first Americans into Kaiserslautern were members of the armored task force "Cherry," named for Lt. Col. Henry T. Cherry of Augusta, Ga. But his 10th armored tanks swept thru the city and eastward at a 25 mile an hour clip. The job of taking over the city was left to 25 infantrymen.

"The streets were deserted at first," Hoover said. "But then the people started coming out and we had a real chore on our hands."

More Officers Arrive.

Hoover's men, a platoon from the 317th regiment of the 80th infantry division, captured a colonel, four majors, five captains, 10 lieutenants, 20 noncoms, and 66 privates in one batch by throwing a hand grenade thru a window of a building where the Germans were hidden.

For about an hour Hoover was in charge in Kaiserslautern, where 45,000 civilians had remained. Then Col. N. A. Costello of Arlington, Va., commander of the 319th regiment of the 80th division, took over.

"A few snipers provided the only opposition we found," Hoover said.

Besides Hoover the doughboys who took Kaiserslautern included Sgt. Frank Soos, Gary, Ind.; Pvt. Pack Magnuson, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Pvt. George Dequis, Pontiac, Mich., and Pvt. Sam Yuratovac, Chicago.

HOLDS SEVERAL HONORS.

Tech. Sgt. Byron Hoover, 31, is the holder of the Purple Heart, bronze star, and silver star, all acquired since the D-day invasion of France. He was wounded in France about seven months ago. His wife, Mary June, is the daughter of Charles P. Jasper of 1529 Thorndale av., for whom Hoover managed a Miami Beach, Fla., hotel before entering the army three years ago.

U.S. NEGROES WIN 1ST TEST BY FIRE EAST OF RHINE

WITH U. S. 1ST ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, March 21 (AP).—Negro infantry men who left their jobs in rear echelons and volunteered for combat duty are fighting on the 1st army's bridgehead east of the Rhine—the first time Negro troops have been used in combat on the western front.

The army is keeping close check on the Negro platoons, since this is the first time they have been placed in the same divisions with white soldiers on the fighting front. Weekly reports are to be made on their morale, fighting ability, casualties, and the number of Germans they capture.

"All our reports so far have been good," said Capt. Edward Finnegan of New York City.

Win Wisconsin Man's Praise.

Praise for the Negroes came from Tech. Sgt. Casper F. Koch of Beaver Dam, Wis., who helped lead a Negro platoon into action four days ago against the town of Berghausen.

"We didn't want to give them too tough a job in their first fight," Koch said, "so our platoon went down a street where there were only about nine houses. We didn't think there would be many Germans in them.

"In the first house the Negro boys captured 11 Jerries and killed two. By the time they'd gotten to the end of the street they had captured 53 prisoners and killed I don't know how many.

"They worked perfectly. They are eager to learn and ask a lot of questions. When you tell 'em to take an objective they want to know what to do after they get there."

Asked Chance to Fight.

These Negro doughboys asked for the chance to fight. Many of them voluntarily gave up their stripes as staff sergeants and technical sergeants to get into the fighting. They are fighting as platoons under white officers who have had combat experience.

The army has moved cautiously in breaking its long established tradition of keeping white and Negro units separated, and the Negro rifle platoons are being fed into divisions gradually, with one platoon to each regiment now in action.

When the Negro platoons arrived recently at one veteran division's location, each member got a personal letter from the commanding general along with the divisional shoulder patches. They then were greeted personally by regimental commanders. This is the identical welcome given to all white reënforcements.

As yet the army has set up no replacement pool for the Negro platoons. When their fighting strength is reduced to such a level that they are unable to function as units, then remnants of two or more units will be reorganized into a full strength platoon.

HUGE QUANTITY OF RAIL BOOTY TAKEN BY YANKS

PARIS, March 21 (AP).—The American 1st and 9th armies have captured a huge quantity of railroad equipment undamaged by the Germans in their flight across the Rhine, supreme headquarters disclosed tonight.

The booty included 2,500 freight cars—350 of them loaded with coal and coke—45 locomotives, several roundhouses and repair shops, one car manufacturing plant, and uncounted quantities of railroad tools, machinery, and supplies. Another 2,000 freight cars and 40 locomotives needing only minor repairs were expected to be in use in a few weeks.

Maj. Ray A. Garrigus of Lansdowne, Pa., traffic officer of the 708th railroad operating battalion, estimated that the windfall would save more than 5,000,000 man power hours of labor and would release thousands of tons of shipping space for other purposes.

YANK FLYERS RIP WAKE, KURILES, YAP AND BONINS

Army, Navy, and Marine Planes Raid Islands.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, March 22 [Thursday] (AP).—The Bonins, the Kuriles, Wake, and Yap Islands were raided by American planes in a series of attacks extending from March 19 thru March 21, a navy bulletin announced today.

Liberators pounded an air field on Chichi in the Bonin islands, north of Iwo, Tuesday. The following day, Mustang fighters newly based on Iwo, went after barracks and radio installations on Chichi.

Navy search Venturas and army Mitchells and Liberators hit Paramushiro in the Kuriles Monday.

Marine fighters, divebombers and torpedo planes sent rockets and bombs into piers and buildings on Yap in the western Carolinas Wednesday. Navy search planes touched off a big explosion in an attack Tuesday on Wake.

Over 1,000 Planes Strike.

The United States 5th fleet's strike with 1,000 or more planes into the Japan Inland sea Sunday and Monday, crippling 15 to 17 enemy warships, fulfilled almost to the hilt the American navy's promise of aggression against the Nippon homeland.

With a Tokyo radio admission that Vice Adm. Mitscher unleashed his task force planes only 60 miles off Japan, about all that remains to complete the American promise is direct naval bombardment of Japan's home coast.

Flyers of the task force, part of the 5th fleet commanded by Adm. Spruance, in two days of searching the 240 mile long Inland sea, hit the enemy fleet in its home bases, Fleet Adm. Nimitz said.

Sink Six Freighters.

The Yank airmen also destroyed 475 enemy planes and damaged more than 100, sank six freighters, and destroyed shore arsenals, shops, and oil storage facilities.

None of the American warships was lost, but one was seriously damaged and others received minor damage by enemy air attacks, Nimitz said. All damaged ships made port under their own power. Yank aircraft losses were "extremely light."

Tokyo radio broadcast a Japanese imperial headquarters claim that Nipponese were in pursuit of the United States force "fleeing southward," and had sunk eight American warships and damaged at least two others in three days.

"Dig Out" Jap Units.

The American thrusts were in line with Adm. Halsey's promise that "we're going to have to dig out" Japanese navy units.

Halsey commanded the United States 3d fleet in the battles of the Philippine sea and Leyte gulf last fall. In the Leyte gulf battle 24 Japanese warships were sunk, 13 probably sunk, and 21 damaged.

MUSTANGS NOW USING AIR STRIP ON IWO ISLAND

IWO ISLAND, March 21 (AP).—Two army fighter squadrons—one of P-51 Mustangs, and the other of Black Widow night fighters—are today operating from Iwo Island's Motoyama air field No. 1, the closest United States air base to Japan's homeland.

Pilots said these were the first Mustangs to be used in Pacific combat.

Both groups came in as finishing touches were being put on the air strip which was wrested from the Japanese at the outset of the battle.

The first Mustang to land was piloted by Brig. Gen. Ernest E. Moore of Shreveport, La., commanding general of the 7th fighter command. One mishap marked the arrival of the planes when one hit a soft spot in the runway and nosed partially over but the pilot was unhurt and plane damage was slight.

Other Mustang pilots arriving were Capt. John A. Piper of Chicago, Lt. Charles J. Cameron, Chillicothe, Ill., and 2d Lt. Oliver E. O'Mara, Kenosha, Wis.

JAP WAR CHIEFS VOICE FEARS OF YANK INVASION

San Francisco, March 21 (AP).—Renewed invasion fears were voiced over the Tokyo radio today by Premier Kuniaki Koiso and War Minister Gen Sugiyama, who brought pressure on the imperial diet for passage of an emergency measure designed to turn Japan into an armed camp under virtual military law.

Premier Koiso was quoted as appealing for a "burning determination to defend the nation." He added: "There will be no unconditional surrender." He informed Japan that the loss of Iwo Island, 750 miles from Tokyo, "is the most unfortunate thing in the whole war situation."

Sugiyama said the requested emergency measure was "absolutely necessary" because it was evident "the Japanese homeland will become a battlefield."

IWO PROVES JAPS CAN'T STOP U. S. SAYS ADM. KING

Washington, D. C., March 21 (AP).—Capture of Iwo Island has again taught the Japanese that "nothing he can do is capable of stopping our relentless advance," Fleet Adm. King said today in a message to Fleet Adm. Nimitz.

Adm. King's message, as passed on by Adm. Nimitz to all personnel under his command, said:

"I express to you my admiration for the performance of the forces under your command in the capture of Iwo Jima. Their constant courage and determination in so difficult a struggle is an inspiration to the nation. On that bristling fortress the lesson was again taught to the Japanese that nothing he can do is capable of stopping our relentless advance to his innermost strongholds."

BOMBINGS WON'T MAKE JAPS QUIT, COL. LANZA SAYS

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

Japan's greatest handicap in obtaining Chinese sympathy and assistance is her own record. Her treatment of the Chinese has been so outrageous that she has come to be detested thruout that vast and densely populated country.

Still, Japan has been able to raise Chinese troops. According to reports from Chungking they numbered 500,000 last summer. There has been no reliable estimate since that date. These troops, usually referred to as puppet troops, have fought loyally for Japan against the armies of Chungking and Yenan [Communists]. Whether they would fight similarly against the allies is anybody's guess.

Prepares China's Defense.

Foreseeing an allied invasion of China, Japan has been making extensive preparations to meet it, in addition to her home defense.

China has all the resources of minerals and foods required for modern warfare except oil, which is present, but in undeveloped fields. Japan has arranged for all that is necessary for her military needs, and has established synthetic oil plants. According to Japan's own reports, her forces at home and in China are completely independent of any importations by sea.

On the whole, Japan believes it is in good shape to meet an invasion, and that it can repulse it, if it is made in Japan. If it takes place in China, Japan needs time to improve communications and develop war industries. For this purpose the island possessions which she still holds are being treated as outposts, whose mission is to delay the invaders. The Japanese will keep the war going in the Philippines and in Burma as long as they can.

Supplied by Barges.

To supply her detached stations, Japan depends on surface barges mostly of cheap wood construction which travel at night from one island to another.

If an invasion of China becomes necessary, the action of Russia is of paramount importance. If Russia joins in the war, it will be in position to attack Manchukuo and Korea. The latter country would supply excellent bases for assembling troops for an invasion of Japan.

If Russia does not join in the war, Japan expects the allies to seize Formosa. From that island it is only about 100 miles to Fukien province on the China coast. It is not unlikely that the allies might invade China in that sector. Japan has been increasing her air fields, her garrisons, and her roads in Fukien to be prepared for that eventuality.

Discounts Bombing Benefits.

Japan hopes that the war in Germany will last at least thru 1945. This would give that much time to make further preparations to meet an invasion, and if possible obtain more coöperation from the Chinese.

Bombing of Japanese cities should be discounted as tending to end the war. Most war industries are out of those cities. Not even the complete destruction of Tokyo, Osaka, Kobe, or other large centers would induce the Japanese militant parties to sue for peace. It is more likely to cause an intensifying of the hatred between Japanese and Americans.

LEADER OF IWO JAPS KILLED DURING FINAL CHARGE, TOKYO SAYS

San Francisco, March 21 (AP).—A Japanese Domei news agency dispatch broadcast today by Tokyo indicated that Lt. Gen. Tadamichi Kuribayashi, commander of the Japanese garrison on Iwo island, was killed March 17 after he had sent "most profound regrets" to the emperor for loss of the island.

The general promised, according to the broadcast, that in death he would "turn into a spirit" to "become the forerunner of the imperial army's rally with increased force."

Domei said the message was sent before he led Japanese troops into a "final charge" on March 17.

[A navy bulletin issued at Guam March 18 reported that on the previous day mortar fire broke up a group of 150 Japanese "observed attempting to organize in the northern part of the island."]

DEFLATION EDICT GIVES BRUSSELS RIGID CONTROL

Purchasing Limited, All Accounts Blocked.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, March 21.—Belgium has been in the limelight in recent weeks over the deflation measures which were adopted last October. Under the drastic decree measure all accounts were blocked, and every one had to turn in his hoarded bank notes for stamping. Each person was in consequence limited in his purchasing power to a very small amount—something like 3,000 francs.

Belgian monetary circulation, thru this measure, was reduced from about 100 billions in October to 47 billion at the end of February.

New issues of bank notes now are mostly advanced for paying allied troops. It is illegal for troops to possess foreign money.

Van Acker Gives Promise.

An iron control is exercised over exchange. The stock exchange is closed and banks can do no trading in foreign notes. Opinion is still open as to whether this deflation measure has been a success and what has been its exact effect on the country's prosperity.

At any rate, Premier Van Acker, who is a Socialist and who runs a National Union cabinet with Liberals, Catholics, and Communists in it, promises there will be no new deflation measures without popular consultation. Rightist politicians are credited with schemes to organize the economy in another way, and unblock all funds. Very likely, nothing much can be done until after an armistice, for the presence of allied troops complicates all economic and financial problems.

When Belgium was liberated last September, the ghost government which was sitting in England under Hubert Pierlot came back and took over. Pierlot and his government lasted only four months.

Forced Out in February.

He was responsible for the deflation measure, but there was discontent against him for not alleviating food supply difficulties. He was forced out in February after demonstrations in the streets by Communists and Socialists.

Achille Van Acker of Antwerp replaced him with a coalition government. Van Acker governs mostly with the consent of the Liberals, who hold the balance of power between right and left. Rightist politicians in recent days have been sniping heavily at Van Acker and his hold on power, according to some observers, is somewhat dubious.

But with the vote of plenary powers he gained last week he seems to have been temporarily fortified. They say in Brussels that his regime is temporary, and that a real basis of government cannot be decided until the war when Belgian prisoners come back.

Van Acker's name is associated with the far-reaching social security plan which was adopted as a law on Jan. 1. It goes, in its ramifications, far beyond the Beveridge plan in England. It will take a year to apply the plan, according to government officials.

What the Plan Provides.

The plan calls for payment of 60 per cent of salary during incapacity for whatever reasons, also carries unemployment indemnities and family allocations, and has a special statute for coal miners, who get special attention. The spirit of the Van Acker plan is "to guarantee all economically feeble Belgians against misery," I was told.

Van Acker took office Feb. 15. He announced immediately a program to provide a better food supply, eliminate the black market, centralize the mining industry administration, with coal as the first on the program; eliminate unemployment, organize a new Belgian army, increase the war effort and clean up finances.

It is perhaps significant that after a few weeks Van Acker found he could not carry out this program without getting for himself dictatorial powers. At the same time his parliament voted to raise its salary by 50 per cent. The Belgian deputies, that is, raised their pay from 42,000 to 62,000 francs [$840 to $1,240] monthly.

Van Acker has promised he will not be a dictator, and has given some guarantees. He says what he wants to do especially is clean out the black market, punish traitors, and reform the public administration offices, which presently are terrifically overmanned. For instance, it is said that in order to get thru any measure affecting the coal industry, one must pass thru 45 administrative bureaus.

There is, of course, a big program of nationalization of industry on here. Just now a bill for nationalizing electric power production is before parliament. But at the same time, progress is being made in reducing unemployment. It is announced that as of March 5, unemployment was down to a little more than 200,000, a decrease of 18,000 in one month.

The Belgians have definite international political aims. One sees few Belgian soldiers in national uniform in the streets, but included in Van Acker's cabinet is a ministry of national defense, which is resolutely trying to reorganize the army. The Belgians would like to have a part in the occupation of Germany.

The aim is to have a Belgian army as big as before the war, under Belgian command. They are calling for the return to Belgium from England of all members not needed there.

It appears certain the Belgians will have an important part to play in the future in that organization of small states along the Rhine and Scheldt, which will include the project of setting up a new Rhineland state split from Germany.

ALLIES REPORT PARTISANS FIGHT NAZIS IN ITALY

ROME, Italy, March 21 (AP).—Bitter fighting in western Liguria between 500 Germans and Italian patriots was reported today in a 15th army group bulletin.

Increased activity by patrols in German held northern Italy was said to have forced the Germans to divert front line troops to combat the partisans and to protect supply and communication areas. The bulletin said few details of the clash in western Liguria, between the allied front and the French frontier, were available. Clashes between patriots and fascist troops in Varese province in the vicinity of Crosio della Velle, also were reported.

Action on the allied battle front was limited to patrol clashes.

Old Bonds Once Worth 220 Millions Scrapped

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 21.—Two tons of wastepaper, representing canceled state bonds and coupons once worth $220,959,279.50, were contributed to the Springfield Boy Scout troops' paper drive today by State Treasurer Becker. Destruction of the canceled securities was authorized by a 1943 law. Witnessing the ceremony in Becker's office were Gov. Green and Auditor Lueder.

MANILA, HUNGRY FOR NEWS, GETS ONLY LITTLE BIT

BY WALTER SIMMONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., March 21.—Newspapers are on a hand to mouth basis in Manila so far as newsprint and ink are concerned and only 14 daily and weekly publications remained today after The Free Philippines, the OWI sponsored newspaper, went out of existence. It suspended publication yesterday. The Leyte-Samar edition of the newspaper also stopped publication.

The OWI said officially that since the news is adequately covered in other publications it could better divert its energies into other fields.

News hungry Manilans can purchase papers printed in English, Tagalog, Chinese, or Spanish. Most of the papers receive terse digests of world news from one of three large American press services. Rarely are stories more than one paragraph long, regardless of their importance. Local news with the exception of Gen. MacArthur's daily bulletin, which usually is printed in full, is handled with equal brevity.

Smaller Papers Published.

Before the war, the Bulletin, the Free Press, and the Tribune were Manila's largest newspapers. So far the Free Press and the Tribune have not announced plans for reopening. The Bulletin plans to resume as soon as facilities permit. It already has been granted a quota of 180 tons of newsprint every three months.

Meanwhile, the smaller newspapers, operating on a shoestring and usually consisting of only two tabloid size pages, hope to serve most of the readers. Most of them do not know from one day to another where their newsprint is coming from. The black market price is 25 pesos [$12.50] a ream of 500 sheets of standard newspaper page size or smaller. Ink is selling for six pesos [$3] a pound on the black market and there is little to be had.

Type Set by Hand.

Because of the absence of electric power and destruction of pre-war presses and linotype machines, newspapers are set by hand and run off on hand powered presses. They contain little advertising.

Reading the Manila papers these days only makes one hungry for fuller presentation of news. The troops are luckier—they have the Chicago Overseas Tribune, Time, and Newsweek. This week the Overseas Tribune distributed 10,000 copies to the troops while Time distributed 400, and Newsweek, 2,500.

FLYNN IN ROME; MAY URGE RED, VATICAN PACT

Audience with Pope Scheduled.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, March 21.—Edward J. Flynn, who accompanied President Roosevelt in an unofficial capacity to the Yalta conference and later spent some time in Moscow, arrived in Rome today and became a guest of Ambassador Alexander C. Kirk pending an audience with Pope Pius XII.

Time Not Disclosed.

The time of the audience was not made public. An official release said Flynn "will call on Pope Pius XII.," but Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, made no mention of the audience in a front page story on Flynn's arrival.

The pope received Myron C. Taylor again this morning, but it was believed unlikely Flynn's visit was discussed because the President's personal representative to the pope was presenting Edward E. Hunt, chief of the Italian division of the foreign economic administration, and Mrs. Clare H. McNair, widow of Gen. Leslie J. McNair.

Speculate on Pact.

Flynn's arrival reawakened speculation as to a rapprochement between Moscow and the Vatican, with President Roosevelt acting as intermediary. Informed opinion summed up Vatican aspirations—in event negotiations eventuate—this way:

The Vatican would seek a diplomatic understanding whereby Russia would recognize the Vatican's right to deal in religious and ecclesiastical matters with the millions of Roman Catholics in those areas of eastern and central Europe now occupied by the Red army—that is, in Poland, the Baltic states, Hungary, and possibly those parts of Germany and Austria occupied by the Russians.

There have been no diplomatic relations between Russia and the Vatican since 1917.

TIRE STRIKES HIT ARMY HARD, SAYS GENERAL

Traveling on Thin Margin, Asserts Sayler.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 21.—Strikes in America curtailing tire production are "raising hell" with the army program for keeping men and supplies rolling ever deeper into Germany, according to Maj. Gen. Henry B. Sayler of Huntington, Ind., chief of ordnance in the European theater.

Maj. Gen. Sayler.

"We are riding toward victory on inflated rubber," said the Hoosier general, "and the farther we go the bigger becomes the transportation problem. We are traveling on the thin margin between requirements and supplies of tires so that any cutback of imports from the United States raises hell with our calculations.

"Roads near the front are littered with shell fragments deadly to tires. We are putting big magnets on the trucks to pull the scrap metal from the mud but a flat tire still is a major strategic and tactical problem. We must have full coöperation from the home front."

French Economy Disrupted.

Military requisitions have disrupted transportation for the French civilian economy resulting in serious fuel and food shortages. With the expansion of the liberated area, the requirements for essential civilian uses are increased. The army also appreciates the necessity of maintaining efficient motor transportation in America.

"We are not out of the woods in whipping the tire shortage, but we have made progress," Sayler said.

Seven French tire factories are getting into production with their output divided by the high command among the army and civilians. The United States army is operating three recapping centers and is setting up three more.

A visit to a tire reclamation post found American ingenuity and energy repairing military equipment with an efficiency that might be emulated on the home front.

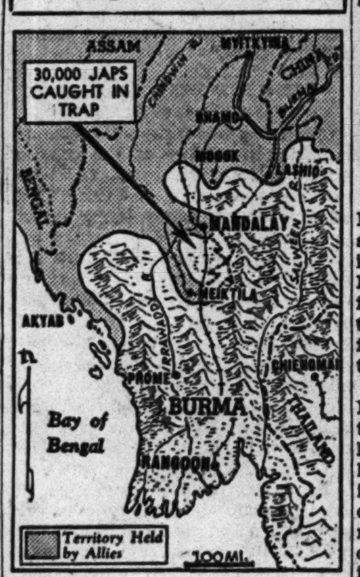
"Nothing like it in the United States," said Sgt. Erwin Rapoport, who three years ago was working in his father's tire shop in Kansas City, Mo. "Shops like this could keep the trucks, buses, and all the essential automobiles in America operating for the duration."

Recaps Increase Mileage.

Lt. Henry C. Damron, in charge of the operation, said that synthetic rubber recaps were delivering 90 per cent of the mileage obtained from new natural rubber tires. He confided that this experience has determined his post-war enterprise. On equipment improvised and set in operation 17 days after the Americans entered Paris, 90 soldiers and 200 French laborers are repairing 3,000 to 4,000 inner tubes weekly in this one shop.

The soldiers are working 12 hours a day with one day off in 10 at the average pay of $114 a month. The Frenchmen are paid $4 for eight hours under rates fixed by France. The equipment is operated 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Japs in Pocket



CALCUTTA, March 21 (AP).—Allied ground troops increased their pressure on 30,000 Japanese squeezed in the 75 mile deep pocket between Mandalay and Meiktila today as fighter planes slashed at the enemy's major escape route from central Burma to Thailand.

Operating out of newly-won Mandalay, British infantry men mopped up in the area south of the ancient city, pushing the enemy toward Meiktila, which is held by other British forces. The fall of Meiktila several weeks ago cut Japanese escape routes to the south, leaving the enemy the choice of retreating eastward over rugged mountains or fighting to the finish.

In low level strafing attacks R. A. F. and American pilots shot up Japanese troops and transport in central Burma and attacked Chiengmai, in north central Thailand, terminus of the Bangkok rail line, almost the sole exit for Japanese fleeing before the allied drive.

Plan 'International FBI' to Nab War Criminals

LONDON, March 21 (AP).—Formation of an international counterpart of the United States federal bureau of investigation to seek out and arrest war criminals and Nazis regarded as dangerous to peace was reported under consideration in responsible quarters today. The organization, which probably would operate eventually from headquarters in Berlin, would be composed of expert investigators drawn from all allied nations.

ASSERTS BURMA LOVE FOR JAPS TURNED TO HATE

Altho the Japanese treated the Burmese kindly at first, their subsequent conduct was the same as in other conquered countries, John Duncan Miller, who has just come from India and Burma to take over the directorship of the British Information services here, said yesterday at his first press conference.

In the reconquered parts of Burma, he declared, it was found that the people had been mercilessly robbed of their possessions. Rehabilitation of the country will be impossible, he added, until the port of Rangoon is retaken, for the mountains of needed supplies—especially clothing—cannot be shipped in by air.

Early Collaboration Gone.

After a taste of Japanese rule, Miller thought, the Burmese have learned that the old British regime was not so bad after all. He said it was difficult to find a pro-Japanese Burma native now. This was in answer to a question as to what change had taken place since the Japanese conquest, at which time tales of collaboration between the Burmese and the advancing Jap armies were rife.

The Burmese are so desperately in need of clothing, Miller said, that they probably would bring a ruby out of hiding to exchange for a few cotton handkerchiefs if they got the chance.

Takes Office April 16.

Miller's appointment as information service director takes effect April 16. He will succeed Graham Hutton, who established the office here in 1941 and who is going home to England for reassignment in July. He is taking a three months' rest, on medical advice, before sailing.

Miller's wife, Madeline, will join him here shortly. The couple has one child, a son, Timothy.

U. S. SUBMARINE BARBEL LOST, NAVY REPORTS

Washington, D. C., March 21 (AP).—The submarine Barbel is overdue from patrol and presumed lost with its officers and crew, normally about 65 men.

The 1,525 ton vessel, commissioned last year, was commanded by Lt. Comdr. Leroy Raguet. She was the 34th American submarine reported overdue and presumed lost, and the 40th lost from all causes, including four sunk and two destroyed to prevent capture. It was the 273d naval vessel of all types lost in the war.

Comdr. Raguet was a son of Capt. Edward Cook Raguet, United States navy. He assumed command of the vessel last December.

BELIEVE RUSSIA WILL ASK TURKS FOR CONCESSION

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 21.—Russia's unexpected action in denouncing her nonaggression pact with Turkey yesterday was considered in some diplomatic circles here tonight as a piece of political blackmail launched in preparation for demands for concessions from Ankara. Turkish quarters in London were frankly nervous at Moscow's abrupt move which came without advance notice to American or British governments.

Tho Russia was under no obligation to inform her western allies of her contemplated diplomatic maneuvers in eastern Europe, it had been generally expected here since the Crimea conference that the Reds would attempt to dovetail their activities into those of the other members of the Big Three rather than continue to ignore them.

Dardanelles a Question.

One commentator saw the Russians' move as an indication that all is not well, politically speaking, in eastern Europe.

The question of controling traffic thru the Dardanelles, which is in Turkish hands under the Montreux convention of 1936, was believed likely to loom large in any new Russo-Turk pact.

With Russia in an extremely strong military and political position, observers here believed Premier Stalin may feel the time is ripe to move for control of the entrance into the Black sea. It was considered significant that Russia's note to Turkey terminating the pact recalled that "great changes have taken place, particularly since the second World war."

The most important of these changes is the great increase in power of Russia since the soviet-Turkish friendship and neutrality pact was signed in 1925. The treaty would have been up for its fourth renewal next November.

New Demands Hinted.

The soviet foreign affairs information bureau explained thru Tass, official soviet agency, that the treaty no longer "corresponds to the new situation and needs serious improvement" which gave rise to the belief Russia is preparing a new set of demands to submit to Ankara. Numerous unfriendly references to Turkey in the Russian press and on the radio have made it evident for some time that relations between the two countries were far from satisfactory, at least as far as Russia was concerned.

M'NUTT APOLOGY ASKED ON WMC JOB DRAFT PLOT

New Man Power Bill Is Called 'Holy Terror.'

BY PHILIP DODD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—Sen. Chandler [D., Ky.] declared today that War Man Power Chairman McNutt should "apologize to the nation" if drastic man power controls have been imposed by the administration to gain support in congress for compulsory labor legislation, as charged yesterday by the WMC labor-management policy committee.

"This is a very serious charge," Chandler said in an interview. "If it is true, McNutt should apologize to the nation."

The labor-management committee's report was on the controversial labor diversion program instituted by the WMC to provide workers for tire cord plants in New Bedford, Mass. It charged the New Bedford problem was "singled out to be used as a guinea pig to attempt to persuade the country and the congress . . . that compulsion must be accepted."

McNutt Adamant.

McNutt, in a public statement, did not comment on the committee's charge. He asserted that until local groups submit a better plan he would continue the WMC program of ordering workers in less essential New Bedford textile plants to work part time in the tire cord mills.

Other developments in the man power situation today included:

1. Copies of the "compromise" man power bill, drafted by Sen. Austin [R., Vt.] were distributed to members of the house-senate conference committee, who discovered the measure not only would impose rigid controls over workers in industry but would permit the drafting of labor to work on farms.

2. An official of the United States civil service commission told the congressional joint economy committee that the federal government has a better record for man power utilization than many industries and that no additional steps are necessary to regulate hiring of federal employes.

Charges Nurses 'Rejection.'

3. The senate military affairs committee, at a hearing on the nurses' draft bill, was told by Rep. Bolton [R., O.] that the army has rejected nurses volunteering for service for "unimportant and rather absurd reasons."

4. Chairman Mead [D., N. Y.] of the senate war investigating committee disclosed that the WMC has agreed to consider modification of its critical job area classification system in the light of changed war conditions.

Altho Mead declined to explain the possible modification in detail, it was understood WMC is studying a plan whereby labor shortages and surpluses in industrial areas might be broken down into groups such as skilled and unskilled workers in various lines. At present, the WMC system is to classify a particular area as a tight or plentiful labor market on an over-all quantitative basis, without regard to the quality and type of labor.

Would Set Up Pools.

The Austin man power bill—described by one conferee as "a holy terror"—would empower War Mobilizer Byrnes to certify man power needs of critical war plants, critical labor shortage areas, and farm areas declared short of help by the department of agriculture, to the director of selective service.

Draft boards would then set up categories of men between 18 and 45 from which men would be called up and directed to report to government referral agencies for assignment to factories and farms.

BIDDLE'S AID FINED $10 FOR GUTTER FIGHT

Washington, D. C., March 21 [Special].—A $10 fine was slapped on William Power Maloney, special assistant to United States Atty. Gen. Biddle and former prosecutor of the mass sedition trial, on his conviction in Municipal court today of disorderly conduct for his gutter rolling act of last week with a Chinese.

Maloney chased three Chinese out of a downtown Washington store and clinched with one of them, Dr. Stephen Pan, vice director of the museum of Chinese culture. He was on top of Dr. Pan in the gutter of a busy street intersection when police broke it up.

Judge John P. McMahon said in imposing sentence that "it's just a case of having a bad temper and of having lost your head." He dismissed a similar charge against Dr. Pan. Evidence showed Maloney became embroiled with the Chinese after his wife had argued with one of them over who was going to buy a wristwatch they spied simultaneously at the store's jewelry counter.

THE QUESTION.

Would you let your wife give you a shave?

WHERE ASKED.

People's Gas & Light bldg., 122 S. Michigan av.

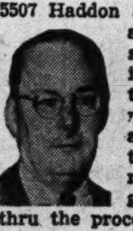
THE ANSWERS.

Anthony Plazibat, fitter, 2915 Shields av.—Women are nervous and shaky. I'm afraid that if I let my wife shave me, she'd cut me up. They usually have their mind on whatever they aren't doing. I might let her shave me with a safety razor but with a straight edge—never! I'd prefer just to let my beard grow.

J. A. Pink, assistant superintendent, 5702 N. Melvina av.—O, brother! What a question! Never! I think more of my face than to let some one else hack it up. Maybe she could do it, but honestly, I really wouldn't want to take the chance. If she could do the job I know it'd take her too long and I don't have the time.

Nick Kozlowich, janitor, 4120 W. 24th st.—I know my wife has never shaved any one and doesn't know how it's done. Due to her lack of knowledge of this particular art, I'd say I wouldn't want her to practice on me. On the other hand—if she were a lady barber and knew how it was done, I'd be glad to give her the job.

George J. Sinda, elevator operator, 5744 Melrose st.—Why, yes. It would be a sort of a thrill, to see if she knew how—maybe. If she could, it'd be her job from now on. It'd be a good chance for her to get even with me if she has any grudges against me. I'd certainly be at her mercy. On second thought, no!



H. A. Cowan, purchasing agent, 5507 Haddon av.—No, not even on a bet! I have trouble shaving myself. Shaving is a delicate art that one acquires after many years of patience and endurance. I don't think I'd like to submit my face to a beginner again. I went thru the process once when I was a beginner.

ARMY TO STRING 'PHONE WIRE AT FRONT BY PLANE

New System May Save Many Lives.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 21.—The army air technical service command today permitted disclosure of the first detailed description of a system for establishing communications soon to be put into use on the battlefield and destined to save the lives of many soldiers.

With apparatus perfected in coöperation with the Bell Telephone laboratories, the army is prepared to put into combat use a system in which low flying airplanes will string up to 16 miles of telephone wire along any type of terrain.

Saves Precious Time.

Within a matter of minutes, rather than hours or even days when installed by foot soldiers under fire, telephone conversations may be carried on between combat teams on the ground after connecting telephone apparatus carried by them with the ends of the wire.

The wire is wound crisscross in coils that are arranged in series in cargo planes, spliced in advance, and carried thru a pipe that protrudes from a rear door of the plane.

Dropped by Parachute.

When the plane passes the spot on the ground where telephone communication is needed, a weighted parachute to which the end of the wire is attached is dropped from the plane. The plane then proceeds to the location of a command post or other area, meanwhile playing out the rest of the wire.

Ground forces then quickly connect their telephone apparatus to the two ends of the wire and communication is established.

Because of poor flying weather, Col. L. T. Jones, commanding officer of the Fort Dix, N. J., air base, today called off a scheduled demonstration of the system from the air.

FEAR NEW DEAL PLANS TO ADMIT HORDE OF ALIENS

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—Congressional alarm was voiced today that New Deal plans for a world state envision opening the gates of America to hungry hordes of aliens.

As a result, the house rules committee approved the first congressional study in 30 years of this nation's immigration policy after a clash between Rep. Cox [D., Ga.] and Rep. Sabath [D., Ill.].

The resolution which received indorsement authorizes a sweeping investigation by the house immigration committee into post-war migration trends. Other nations at the peace table, the resolution noted, will undoubtedly exert tremendous pressure in favor of world free migration, with a view to pouring excess populations into the broad lands of the United States.

Warns of Pressure.

Rep. Mason [R., Ill.] urged approval of the inquiry. He noted press dispatches from occupied German territory in which liberated French, Polish, and Russian members of German labor battalions were quoted as saying they would rather go to the United States than return to their home countries.

"The pressure to let down the bars after the war and permit unrestricted immigration will be terrific," he told the committee. "We have bills now before our committee to abolish immigration quotas. Yet congress has done absolutely nothing in the way of a comprehensive study of post-war immigration policy."

"How are you going to build a world state and yet stop any one from coming in?" asked Rep. Cox sharply. "Haven't we already started taking in the scum of the earth?"

Against World State.

"I'm opposed to a world state," said Mason. "We have the problem of getting rid of prisoners of war, refugees, and undesirables as well as studying the problem of permitting others to come in."

Rep. Sabath asked Cox what he meant by "scum of the earth."

"Just look about you," said the Georgian. "When you see the group playing a major part in the affairs of the government you wonder if something awful hasn't happened to your country."

"They're among the best people," said Sabath.

"The best that Moscow can send," retorted Cox.

"Not So Bad"—Sabath.

"They're not so bad that come from Russia," said Sabath.

Chairman Dickstein [D., N. Y.] of the immigration committee told the committee he had been amazed to learn that German prisoners of war were being educated to a preference for remaining in this country.

Rep. Brown [R., O.] said the Geneva convention would force the return of all prisoners of war to their own countries after the war. Mason remarked that "other conventions are coming up which may upset the Geneva rules."

LET YANK SIT AT PEACE TABLE, HARRIS DEMANDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 21.—A demand that a service man, with a rank not higher than sergeant, sit with the American delegation at the peace conference was voiced today by Rep. L. C. Harris [D., Granite City] in a resolution introduced in the house. It was referred to the executive committee.

"The American forces have carried the fight to the enemy on every field of battle and in a manner unsurpassed by the soldiers of any other nation," Harris' resolution read. "The resolute courage and firm determination of the American privates and noncommissioned officers have in large part been responsible for the success of American armies."

ILLINOIS COAL SHIPMENTS TO LATINS STOPPED

Complaints Voiced by State Towns.

Shipments of Illinois coal to South American ports, particularly Argentina, have been stopped, it was disclosed yesterday by Illinois coal men. The fuel originally was moved to South America under government directive to replace coal formerly supplied by Great Britain.

T. E. Gorman, executive secretary of the Illinois Fuel Merchants' association, said that stories telling about the shipments to Latin America were of great assistance to the industry because they caused "coal users to voice their opinions with proper officials" and this resulted in ending the shipments.

Illinois Towns Deprived.

In the period that coal was moving to Latin America, Gorman estimated, 25,000 tons were shipped monthly to Argentina and Brazil. He said that numerous Illinois towns during the severe cold weather of last winter reported they had insufficient coal or none at all at a time when the Illinois mines were supplying Latin America.

Some coal operators were opposed to the South American shipments because it was taking away fuel from Chicago and other consumers. Because the coal was shipped under government directive it gave the Illinois operators little opportunity for developing prospects who after the war would be in the general market for fuel.

Warning Given by Mayor.

Mayor Kelly yesterday held a meeting in the Union League club at which he told coal industry leaders and allied business men that a declining coal production threatens the nation. The mayor said he would appoint a committee to plan a conservation program directed at all home owners, as well as industrial plants.

Joseph Harrington, acting coördinator of the bureau of mines fuel efficiency program for the Chicago area, said that coöperation with the conservation program would cause a 10 per cent saving in coal.

"Everything's settled," Louis said. "There's no chance for a reconciliation." He was in Chicago on a five day furlough.

Judge John A. Sbarbaro in Superior court continued the divorce case to today at the request of Mrs. Louis' attorney, Aaron H. Payne. It had been scheduled for yesterday. Sgt. and Mrs. Louis [whose real name is Barrow] were married Sept. 24, 1935, and separated Oct. 2, 1943. They have a child, Jacqueline, 2.

PARLEY MAY BE LAST CHANCE FOR SECURITY: EDEN

GLASGOW, Scotland, March 21 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Eden told the Scottish Conservative party conference tonight that the San Francisco world security conference opening April 25 would be a new experiment in international practice which "may well prove to be the world's last chance."

The foreign secretary, who will head Britain's delegation to the Golden Gate meeting, hinted at some form of link-up among European powers in which Britain would play a hand. Declaring that Britain always had opposed domination of Europe by any one power, he added:

"We are determined that Europe shall only be united by the free will of its separate states. When that happy day comes, we shall, we hope, be in partnership with it."

Seeks Single Empire Voice.

Eden indicated that the whole British empire might seek to speak with a single voice at the world conference. The purpose of the dominions' meeting in London early next month, he said, was so all would be "made fully aware of each other's point of view before we join the other united nations at San Francisco."

Eden said, however, that it had never been Britain's policy to "create coalitions against great European powers unless they have pursued a policy of aggression."

Touching the problem of voting and veto powers by the big nations in the future world security organization, as agreed by the big three at Yalta, he commented: "I would not say we have found a final solution.

Share for Smaller States.

"There can be no freedom in the world unless the smaller states can be joined with the great powers in protection of their common interests. Their right to have their own way of life must be respected. They must have their due share in making the great decisions.

"But one fact stands out. Responsibility and power must be related if institutions are to survive the test of experience. But if this is true, it is also true it is the duty of all great powers to use their exceptional strength with restraint. It is excellent to have a giant's strength but it is tyrannous to use it like a giant."

REDS HIT VETO CRITICS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Criticizing advocates of a change in voting procedure at the coming San Francisco conference, the Moscow radio declared yesterday that attempts were being made, under the guise of a "sincere regard for the small countries" to "return the future organization of security to the evil days of the league of nations."

"The future international organization of security," the broadcast asserted, "can in reality insure the interests of the small countries only if it becomes an effective organization. That is, if it will be built on the same foundation on which is being built the great structure of our common victory; that is, on agreement and unanimity and the close collaboration of the main great powers of the anti-German coalition."

ORDER MENTAL TEST FOR WIFE.

A mental examination was ordered yesterday by Judge Jacob M. Braude in Women's court for Mrs. Anna Sims, 22, of 4212 Greenwood av., who on Tuesday night swallowed poison in her home after a quarrel with her husband. The hearing was continued until March 28.

TOLEDO MOVIE'S OWNER HALED BEFORE WMC

Just Try to Close Me, Curfew Officials Told.

Toledo, O., March 21 [Special].—Validity of the midnight curfew was formally challenged here today by a theater operator who dared the government to apply such threatened sanctions as cutting off his electric power.

"I will run my midnight show as usual, and if you try to stop me I'll take you into court," Area War Man Power Director Ralph O. Snyder was told by the belligerent and determined theater man, Jack O'Connell, who appeared with his attorney at the WMC headquarters for a hearing in response to a summons sent by registered letter.

Theater Open Till 5 A. M.

For the last two nights, O'Connell has ignored the curfew to run a midnight to 5 a. m. show in his Loop theater, located at 417 Superior stret in the heart of the downtown district. This morning an audience of 300 persons watched a showing of a film called "The Last Ride" and most of the patrons wore badges proclaiming them to be late shift war workers.

O'Connell was ordered by Snyder to appear before him at 10 a. m., but the theater man protested that this was too early in the day for him because he was a night worker. He finally agreed to visit Snyder at 1 p. m. When he did so he was accompanied by his attorney, Richard S. Cole.

When Snyder called the hearing to order he had two colleagues at his side.

Talks of "Exemptions."

"We have asked you here to talk this thing over reasonably," Snyder said. "We want to get at the facts, and I will say at the outset this curfew is not such a rigid thing that in proper cases exemptions cannot be made."

"What do you mean exemptions?" O'Connell demanded, and flashed before Snyder's eyes a telegram he had received a short time before from War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes.

This wire from Byrnes was a belated reply to a telegraphic appeal for an exemption sent to Washington two days ago by O'Connell. It stated, "Regret that exception cannot be made for your theater."

"Who are you to talk about making exemptions?" O'Connell shouted, waving the telegram. "Your boss tells me in this wire he won't exempt my theater. Are you bigger than he is?"

O'Connell then said he would willingly close his theater at midnight if shown any proof that such action would help the war effort. He announced that he believed himself fully as patriotic as Snyder and said his son, fighting in Germany, wears the silver star.

"You can't give me proof that I am hurting the war effort because it isn't true," he shouted. "I don't hold with Mayor La Guardia of New York, but I believe I have a right to run a place where night workers can get some recreation. I've had hundreds of calls the last two days praising me."

Byrnes Statement Cited.

Snyder tried to calm O'Connell down by telling him he had statistics to show that absenteeism in Toledo war plants had dropped since the curfew from 10,000 man hours per day to 9,000 man hours.

"My theater doesn't cause absenteeism," O'Connell answered. "Let's find out what you are going to do. Shut off my electricity? Stop the railroads from bringing me films?"

Atty. Cole interposed a reminder that Byrnes, in the case of New York City, had confessed himself powerless to enforce the curfew.

Snyder, who yesterday had told newspaper men he already had certified O'Connell's curfew violation to Washington officials, replied that he would "proceed with certification thru proper channels," adding that he would do so with the expectation that sanctions would follow.

The hearing broke up on this note. Cole said he was prepared to ask an injunction against any attempt by a federal agency to prevent O'Connell from receiving his films from regular transportation agencies or from obtaining electricity. Snyder and O'Connell shook hands, but O'Connell returned to his theater and hung out a sign: "Midnight Show Tonight as Usual."

White House Gets Army Civil Bill of $112,450,940

Washington, D. C., March 21 (AP).—A bill appropriating $112,450,940 to finance civil functions of the war department for the year starting July 1 was passed today by the senate and sent to the White House. It carries $44,508,000 for rivers and harbors; $24,172,000 for general flood control; $30,000,000 for flood control on Mississippi tributaries; $2,050,000 for flood control on the Sacramento river, California, and $3,150,000 for the New York and New Jersey channels.

WOMAN HANGED WITH BELT.

Thank heavens you've come for your dog, Mrs. Digby!

TELLS SOLDIERS HERE TO LEAVE TAVERNS EARLY

Will Not Use M. P.'s to Enforce Curfew.

Military police will not be used in Chicago to enforce compliance with the midnight curfew, Maj. Gen. Russel B. Reynolds, commanding general of the 6th service command, announced yesterday. However, he ordered all army personnel to leave cafes well before the midnight closing hour to avoid complications.

The use of military police in this area is unnecessary, Gen. Reynolds said, because the proper closing hour is observed in all cities under his command. For the last two days the army police have begun enforcing the midnight curfew in New York by ordering military personnel to leave cafes at 12 o'clock rather than at Mayor La Guardia's private 1 a. m. curfew.

Cafes Draft Formal Protest.

Meanwhile, members of the Chicago Cafe Owners' association made preparations to protest formally against the additional hour of lucrative pleasure allowed New York tavern owners by the La Guardia edict.

The board of directors of the association will meet at 2:15 p. m. today in the offices of Thomas Rosenbery and Milton Raynor, attorneys for the association. Points of discussion will be the possibility of enlisting the aid of the Illinois congressional group in Washington to see that Chicago gets an equal status with that of New York and a general survey of the effects of three weeks of early closing.

A spot survey of several of the smaller taverns in and around the loop indicated that the curfew has done little to conserve coal and light.

Opening at Earlier Hour.

"Sure, we're closing at midnight," a Clark st. tavern owner said, "but we have to pay our bartenders for an eight hour day, so we open up a couple of hours earlier."

Another small tavern keeper said he had discharged one of his bartenders and was working behind the bar himself. He said he is opening at 9 a. m. instead of 11 as formerly. The discharged bartender is now working in a near-by tavern, he said.

The larger cafes and night clubs will not be able to estimate their savings until the monthly bills for heat and electricity are received.

FOUR STANDARD LEASE CLAUSES HELD ILLEGAL

The Appellate court yesterday held that standard lease clauses providing for double rent in case of a holdover tenancy and requiring the tenant to vacate at the end of the lease without written notice are invalid under office of price administration rent regulations. By its ruling, the court found paragraphs 13, 14, 15, and 16 of the Chicago Real Estate board's form leases violate OPA rules.

The ruling was in a suit by the 222 E. Chestnut Street corporation against William H. Murphy of that address. Murphy refused to sign a lease for his third year of tenancy because a clause had been inserted stipulating the tenant should pay decorating costs in excess of one month's rent.

The decision, however, was based on clauses providing for double rental and waiving notice required by law for eviction proceedings. The court held further that the landlord violated OPA regulations by failing to serve upon the local rent office notice of the filing of an eviction suit. The suit was dismissed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 21.—Gov. Green today signed a bill appropriating $7,884,600 for new hospital buildings at the Elgin, Jacksonville, and Kankakee state hospitals to care for returning veterans and for the establishment of five veterans' rehabilitation centers in downstate Illinois.

The governor also signed six deficiency appropriation bills adding $553,371 to operating costs for the current biennium. Funds were appropriated as follows: Auditor of public accounts, $165,250; attorney general, $143,610; state treasurer, $84,911; superintendent of public instruction, $67,100; secretary of state, $60,000, and the department of agriculture, $32,500.

RINGS AND FUR COAT STOLEN.

A black Persian lamb coat, valued at $1,100, and a wedding band and an emerald ring, valued at $500, were stolen from the home of Mrs. Thelma Fullerton, a secretary, at 5736 Glenwood av., she told police yesterday.

SLATE ROBSON, SCHNACKENBERG FOR JUDGESHIPS

E. J. Schnackenberg.

Edwin A. Robson.

The Republican county central committee will reconvene in its county judicial convention at 11 a. m. today in the La Salle hotel to receive the report of the subcommittee appointed Monday to recommend candidates for the judicial election June 4.

County Chairman George M. Fisher, who also was chairman of the subcommittee in its session at county headquarters yesterday afternoon, said no names of recommended candidates would be announced until the committee makes its report to the convention, but reliable sources indicated the names of Elmer J. Schnackenberg, former speaker of the Illinois house, and Edwin A. Robson of Wilmette will be submitted.

Served 12 Terms.

The subcommittee included Leonard C. Reid, recently named to the Circuit court bench by Gov. Green, among the sitting judges who would automatically be included on a coalition ticket, Fisher said, and selected only two additional candidates out of 41 names offered.

Schnackenberg served 12 terms in the Illinois house from the 13th district on Chicago's south shore. He was Republican leader in 1933 and 1937 and was elected speaker in 1941 and 1943. He is 55 and lives at 9204 Commercial av.

Robson is president of the New Trier Township Republican organization of which Henry A. Gardner is committeeman. Since 1934 he has been campaign manager for the Republican county commissioners from the suburban area.

Robson is Republican minority member of the Cook county civil service commission and since 1941 has been legislative counsel for the county board.

Democrats Also to Meet.

At the same hour the Democratic county central committee will begin its county judicial convention in the Morrison hotel to name three candidates in addition to the sitting judges. Republicans are expected to fill one Circuit and one Superior court vacancy, leaving one Circuit and two Superior court places to be filled by Democrats.

The advisory committee of the Democratic county central committee met with Mayor Kelly yesterday and discussed candidates, but no announcement was made.

There was general agreement among Democratic leaders that the three candidates to be added to the coalition ticket by the Democratic delegates will be Charles E. Byrne, son-in-law of Richard Nash; John M. Tuohy, brother of State's Atty. Tuohy, and former State's Atty. Courtney.

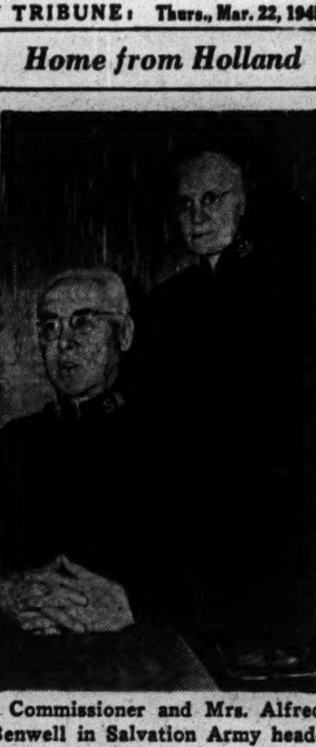
Home from Holland



Commissioner and Mrs. Alfred Benwell in Salvation Army headquarters yesterday.

Commissioner and Mrs. Alfred Benwell, Salvation Army leaders in the Netherlands, yesterday told their experiences during enemy occupation of that country at the weekly Temple corps meeting, 1512 Madison st.

"The Salvation Army was on the job from the moment invasion began. The Netherlands furnished a fat prize for the Nazis since there had been stored enough of everything for a seven year period," Commissioner Benwell said.

The commissioner was forced to assume civilian status by the Germans, but continued evangelistic work to a limited degree. The Gestapo, he said, followed him and his wife everywhere, did not harm them but forbade them to leave Amsterdam. They were repatriated aboard the S. S. Gripsholm Feb. 21.

Nothing to Say

Nora Flynn carrying daughter from plane in Burbank, Cal., yesterday after flight from Mexico City. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Burbank, Cal., March 21 (AP).—Nora Eddington Flynn arrived by airplane from Mexico City today with her infant daughter and 11 pieces of luggage, including a bassinet, but she declined to clear up the marital status of herself and Screen Actor Errol Flynn.

"I have no statement to make," was her stock answer to questions of newsmen who met her plane.

Flynn was not at the airport, altho he lives only five miles away. Nora's father, Navy C. P. O. Jack Eddington, told reporters the actor telephoned him last night to say he couldn't be on hand because of a recurring attack of malaria. Flynn, however, went about his acting duties yesterday at his studio.

The 20 year old Nora spoke with pride of her daughter, Deidre Eddington Flynn, born Jan. 10.

"She weighs eight pounds now and she proved to be a perfect air passenger on the long trip from Mexico City," Nora exclaimed.

PUSSY'S LOOSE— HOUSE BILL WOULD MAKE IT A CRIME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 21.—A new crime—permitting a cat to run at large— would be added to the Illinois statutes under a bill introduced, to the accompaniment of cat calls and barking by legislators in the house of representatives today.

Cats kill birds and should be kept under control, explained Rep. Keller [R., Waukegan] who sponsored the bill with Representatives Gibbs [D., Quincy], Kaindl [D., Chicago], Frasier [D., Marshall], and Thompson [R., Bridgeport]. It would give sheriffs the added duty of registering cats at $1 a head and require any police officer to carry back to the hoosegow any cat minus a leash.

Optimism about its chances was expressed by Keller, who succeeded this week in lobbying thru the house his bill to prohibit the dyeing of baby chicks as Easter decorations.

ILLINOIS SENATE DELAYS ACTION ON REFERENDUM

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 21.—The constitutional convention issue reached the state senate today, but Republican leaders there said they would wait for the house of representatives to act first on the controversial question involving a rewriting of Illinois' basic law.

Sen. Daly [D., Chicago] spokesman for Mayor Kelly, introduced a resolution asking for a 1946 referendum on whether a constitutional convention should be held. Altho Gov. Green is on record for a "con con," no Republican senator has submitted such a resolution.

The senate will sit back and let the house thresh out the issue, said Sen. Carpentier [R., East Moline], chairman of the executive committee which was given custody of the Daly proposal. President Pro Tempore Laughlin [R., Freeport], also speaking off the floor, said that little "con con" sentiment existed in the upper chamber.

Early Hearing Sought.

In the house, Executive Committee Chairman Stransky [R., Savanna] appointed himself chairman of a special subcommittee of five to consider constitutional convention resolutions. Rep. Homer B. Harris [R., Lincoln] house floor leader, said he would ask for an early hearing at which any interested pressure groups could send spokesmen.

The house passed, 135 to 1, the much amended airport authority bill, under which new governmental agencies with power to issue bonds and levy taxes could acquire or construct landing fields.

Under the sponsorship of 79 representatives, two more than needed for house passage, a new legislators' pension bill was introduced. The sliding scale of annuity payments would run from 30 per cent of legislative pay, after 12 years' service, to 50 per cent for 18 years. Senators and representatives now get $2,500 a year. A similar bill is pending in the senate.

Oil Severance Tax.

A 3 per cent severance tax on the production of oil in Illinois would be imposed under a bill by Representatives Monroe [D., Collinsville], Powell [D., Vienna], McDonald [R., Murphysboro], and Nowlan [R., Galva]. It was drafted as a substitute for a royalty tax found unconstitutional in 1941.

Sen. Baker [R., Davis Junction] introduced the bill, agreed upon in advance by county judges and welfare organizations, to amend the adoption laws. Baker said it gave full power to the courts and does not require them to appoint social welfare workers as investigators.

CHICAGO SOLDIER FOUND SLUGGED IN MIAMI; DIES

Miami, Fla., March 21 (AP).—Corp. William Sweeney of Chicago died at an army hospital last night from a fractured skull received, State Investigator Leon Shaffer reported, when he was slugged by an assailant in Bayfront park.

Military police found Sweeney and another soldier, Sgt. Scott M. Hummel of Louisville, Ky., unconscious and suffering from skull fractures, in different sections of the park Sunday night.

Shaffer and Sgt. John L. Deas of the Miami police homicide squad tonight said a 24 year old veteran wounded in China is being questioned in connection with the sluggings.

Corp. Sweeney, son of Mrs. Roseanna Sweeney of 8127 Drexel blvd., Chicago, served six months overseas.

TRANSIT, SLUM BILLS SPEEDED TO HEARINGS

House, Senate in Race for Passage.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 21.—The Kelly-Green program to aid Chicago went ahead swiftly today in public senate hearings on both the public ownership transit bills and the slum clearance measures.

Traction legislation approved yesterday by the house committee on public utilities today won recommendation for passage from the parallel senate committee headed by Sen. Knox [R., Chicago]. It now appears that the senate is in a race with the house to pass the measures.

Early today it was reported that the transit bills would be held up in committee, but the Republican administration turned the steam on a few reluctant senators to avoid delay. The committee vote was 12 to 0. In addition to the 18 agreed amendments adopted, it was indicated that the bills will be changed to permit the transit board to hold open hearings on its own motion or on the petition of the city council of any municipality in the metropolitan area.

Needs Board Check.

Ald. Merriman, Republican, of Chicago's 45th ward, was one of several city council members at the hearing.

"If this amendment is adopted the bills will be satisfactory," Merriman said. "Don't lose sight of the fact that this plan must be approved by the people in referendum. If an autocratic, burocratic transit board does not have a check placed upon it, I doubt whether the plan will be acceptable to the people."

Three leading Chicago bankers had been invited to testify, but the only one to come here was Irving Porter, vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago.

Liability to Bond Sales.

Replying to a question, Porter said that if appeals from the transit board's decisions as to service are provided for, it would make sale of the bonds more difficult.

Werner W. Schroeder, Republican National committeeman for Illinois, acting as spokesman for Gov. Green, reviewed other traction plans which have been discarded in favor of the Kelly-Green program and said it "holds out the greatest hope for the solution of a vexatious problem."

The bipartisan atmosphere was thick. Sen. Bidwill [R., River Forest] offered an amendment to require that at least one of the seven transit board members be a suburban resident. To the surprise of the galleries, Sen. Daly, Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman, accepted the amendment and it was adopted.

Power to Condemn.

The Kelly-Green housing program would give cities the right to condemn and purchase substandard property. Cities could then use the property or lease or sell it to private interests for redevelopment. Chicago has a 100 million dollar city housing plan.

COURT REVERSES 5 CONVICTIONS IN TUNG OIL CASES

Springfield, Ill., March 21 (AP).—The Illinois Supreme court today reversed the 1943 Tung oil confidence game convictions of five men by a La Salle county Circuit court jury. Its opinion held the men "did not have a fair trial."

The tribunal ordered new trials for S. E. Stewart and Arthur McElmuray, Gulfport, Miss.; Harold E. Livermore, Davenport, Ia., and William S. Livermore, Beardstown, Ill. It held there was no evidence to convict a fifth defendant, George Vasen, La Grange, Ill. All five were sentenced in 1943 to one to 10 year prison terms.

They were indicted in 1941 at Ottawa, Ill., in connection with 1939 transactions involving tung oil lands in the state of Mississippi. They were charged with confidence game in obtaining $12,000 in property and money from Mrs. Fannie Barber, then 87. The transactions involved sales, leases, and rentals of lands for planting tung nut trees.

AURORA-ELGIN LINE EMPLOYES GET PAY BOOST

BOSTON AVOIDS MAILED FIST IN TRACTION RULE

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Among the American cities that have gone into some measure of municipal traction ownership and operation is Boston, Mass.

But Boston did not go the whole way to a publicly owned system as it is now proposed that Chicago shall go, and as New York has already gone. It took a lighter draft of the heady medicine of municipal ownership.

Properties of the Boston traction setup, including subways and elevated lines, street cars, and buses, are part publicly and part privately owned. They are publicly operated and form a network of lines covering a wide suburban area as well as the city itself.

The important thing the Boston metropolitan district did was to create sound credit for its local transportation. The district has taxing power and has exercised it to make up deficits. A deficit is declared when the annual traction receipts are insufficient to pay all operating costs, taxes, interest on bonds, a $5 dividend on common stock, and to set up adequate reserves.

From 1918 to 1943 deficits for which levies were made reached a total of 22 million dollars. Of this 4 millions was repaid. In the same period the district has paid taxes of 42 millions, interest on bonds, and dividends on preferred stock amounting to 93 millions, common stock dividends of 32 millions, and rentals [for municipally owned facilities] of 76 millions. Of this last item 20 millions went to reduce the principle of the investment.

Deficit Occurs First Year.

The Boston metropolitan district was established when it became apparent at the end of World War I. that no new facilities could be financed by private ownership with the prevailing 5 cent fare. In its first year, altho the district lifted fares from 5 to 7 cents, there was a deficit of about 5 millions. The following year, with a 10 cent fare, prosperity came. There were no deficits during the 1920s, but in the depression of the 1930s levies for deficits of 17 to 18 millions were made. Since 1940, while New York has been building up a 50 million dollar deficit, Boston's district has been paying its way.

Investment in the system is now 177 millions, of which the district raised and spent 43 millions, plus about the same amount financed thru renewal funds. The city and state of Massachusetts during the period financed and built special facilities [subways, etc.] costing 69 millions; it is for these betterments that the district pays rent.

Governor Names Board.

Management authority is vested in a board of public trustees, which fixes fares [they are now 10 cents on all but a few cross-town lines], issues bonds, and determines allowances for depreciation. This board is appointed by the governor.

Its acts are reviewed by the state regulatory body, the department of public utilities; the department must approve all bond issues, investigate deficits, and inspect the system to see that safety rules are being observed.

There is also a metropolitan transit council, composed of the mayors and town officials in the district. It has advisory powers as to fares and extensions.

Interest Rates Are Low.

Because it has taxing powers behind its securities, the district can borrow at low interest rates. It customarily charges the operating agency 2 per cent more for use of the money. Proceeds of this brokerage transaction have enabled the district to pay off 13 millions of its bonds up to the beginning of 1944. Indications are that this process will be speeded up from now on as amortization reduces the amount of interest payments.

In 1932 the district retired 23 millions of 7 and 8 per cent preferred stock with bonds at a lower interest rate, cutting annual cost by $235,000 and materially reducing federal income taxes.

Operations and service under the Boston plan are reported satisfactory. The district has retired and replaced 306 wooden "L" and subway cars and now has 482 steel cars in service—more than the Chicago "L" can boast.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS 10 YR. RAPE SENTENCE

The Illinois Supreme court in Springfield yesterday upheld the 10 year prison sentence imposed by the Criminal court in 1940 upon William Hanke, an army deserter from Fort Sheridan, charged with rape and grand larceny.

The court also affirmed Superior and Appellate court judgments that Lily Parsons Reighley is entitled to $1,000 monthly alimony payments from her former husband, Reginald B. Parsons, member of a wealthy Seattle, Wash., family.

Also affirmed was the Circuit court conviction of Herman Mueller on a charge of violating the state medical practice act.

THE FACE SAVING BILL.

The man power bill which has gone to conference is described as a monstrosity that includes everything but Presidential stump speeches. We wouldn't feel too sure even about that. The demand for legislation of the sort grew out of a stump speech by Mr. Roosevelt. He first tried it out on congress a year ago. He was disregarded. He returned to the charge in his message to the new congress, Jan. 6, calling for the "total mobilization of all our human resources" as "the most efficient and democratic way of insuring full production."

The confused and sorry piece of proposed legislation now before the conference committee represents the misgivings of congress about the whole thing. Neither in the house nor the senate was there any conviction that the bill was needed for the reasons urged by Mr. Roosevelt. On the other hand, the New Deal majority didn't have enough spunk to drop the matter. The boss was committed to it. So were all of his willing stooges—Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, and the rest. Even the army and navy chiefs of staff were under orders to drop everything and run over to Capitol hill to put in a plug for Mr. Roosevelt's pet idea.

What emerges is a bill intended to save Mr. Roosevelt's face and the face of all his junior grade dictators. There are so many considerations of face mixed up in it that you might fancy that this was Japan. The bill isn't going to accomplish a single constructive thing. It will muddle up the allocation of our labor force even more than the war man power commission and the United States employment service have succeeded in doing so far, and both labor and management predict that it will cut war production, perhaps as much as 15 per cent.

Only one of the many pernicious features of the bill need be cited to indicate how burocrats can warp the administration of legislation of this kind so that grave inequities are inevitable. The conference bill contains no provision that there shall be uniformity in the application of man power ceilings among competing units in the same industry. The WMC, as the bill stands, could reduce the working force of one employer to a point where he automatically would be unable to continue functioning, while leaving the labor force of a competitor untouched. Political favoritism in the administration of ceiling provisions can lead to the gravest sort of abuses. Even inefficient administration, of which there is no lack in government, could bring the same result.

The debate on this legislation proved that it is a fake, pure and simple. It cannot be justified by any urgency in the present situation of the war. It comes to conference when the Germans are destroyed west of the Rhine and east of the Oder; when the great production potentials of the Saar and of Silesia are lost to Germany; when Rhineland industry has been captured or wrecked; when the Ruhr is under the gun; when the Japanese have been thrown back so that their home islands are under daily attack and their fleet is harried in its hideout in the inland sea, and when, by the account of Lt. Gen. Kenney, the Japs have lost 10,000 war planes in six months and are done as a fighting factor in the air, with the Germans hardly better off.

Even the WMC's own statistics prove that there is no need for any authority to take men from one job and put them in another, on pain of being jailed if they are reluctant. From 1942 thru 1944, the WMC production index rose from 25 to 90, with employment rising in the same time from an index of 65 to an index of 94. Thus, production rose 65 points while employment was rising only 29 points. Output in the war plants bore only a small relationship to the size of the work force.

Taking the average employment for 1943 as 100, and the average production for 1943 as 100, we find that in January, 1944, employment was only 1 point above the average for 1943. That is, the index was 101. Production, however, was 114, or 14 points above the average for 1943. The rate of production was increasing much faster than the rate of employment. On the same basis, in November, 1944, the employment index had fallen to 91, nine points under the 1943 average, but production at the same time had risen to 110, 10 points above the 1943 average. These are the figures of Mr. Roosevelt's own administration.

There never was any serious dispute during the congressional deliberations that a forced labor bill could not be justified by need. All the good evidence was to the contrary. When they lost that round, Mr. Roosevelt's apologists shifted their ground. They said that the legislation was needed for purposes of morale among the troops. The argument here was that the expectations of the fighting men had been aroused by the work draft scheme, and that they would feel let down if it were rejected. During these weeks, while congress was debating, the morale of our men sagged so badly that they threw the Germans across the Rhine, crossed it themselves, virtually destroyed the Jap army in the Philippines, took Iwo Jima, bombed a half dozen of the biggest Jap cities into rubble, and chased the imperial fleet into its hideout. If morale has collapsed, our enemies haven't heard about it.

All that is left is the question of Mr. Roosevelt's prestige. His vanity is such that he can't readily accept a legislative licking. So the American people are supposed to humor him by putting themselves under his dictation, so that he can haul them out of one job, pick them another, or send them to jail, as the whim moves him. It has come to a curious pass when a whole people must get down on hands and knees and go thru antics to keep a crybaby from squalling. That's what this bill proposes. If congress has a spark of gumption left it will tell Mr. Roosevelt to go ahead and bawl, but it isn't going to humor him.

FOR RUSSIAN READERS.

Two books about Russia, recently published in this country, are attracting a great deal of popular interest, but not more than they deserve. One of them is Dr. David J. Dallin's "The Real Soviet Russia" and the other is Mr. W. L. White's "Report on Russia."

We haven't heard of any arrangements being made for bringing out these books in translation in Russia, tho there is no doubt they both would enjoy a stupendous sale. We suspect that the authors, in the interest of Russo-American amity, would gladly forego any royalties to which they might be entitled. Can it be that the commissariat for public enlightenment is yellow and can't take it? Or is it just the paper shortage, the same paper shortage, by the way, that hasn't prevented the soviet government from publishing translations of Saroyan and Steinbeck?

We yield to quite a few people in our admiration for Messrs. Saroyan and Steinbeck, but we don't see how anybody can argue that the fiction turned out by these gentlemen is as worthy of presentation to the Russian people as the serious writing of Dr. Dallin and Mr. White. What's more, the Russian people can't be as interested in Mr. Steinbeck's Okies as in their own political prisoners held to slave labor.

Maybe we're wrong. Maybe Stalin is going to let his people read what Americans know about Russia and its government. We profoundly hope so. As matters stand, the Russian people cannot begin to suspect how deeply their government is distrusted abroad, and why.

A DAKOTAN SHOULD KNOW BETTER.

The effort to jam thru the senate confirmation of Aubrey Williams, darling of Mrs. Roosevelt and the Communists, as rural electrification administrator has produced a studied plan of vilification against those who are seeking to protect the people against Williams and his wasteful ways.

Sen. Bushfield of South Dakota arose the other day to denounce this smear bund, which includes one of his senate colleagues, the disreputable tax dodger Guffey, the professional liar Drew Pearson, and Lowell Mellett, a former White House press agent turned columnist, whom Sen. Bushfield accurately indexed as a "pusillanimous little nincompoop." He likened this crowd to a wolf pack.

We differ with the senator only on the point of zoölogy. As a son of the prairies he must know that the wolf, even alone, can be as formidable as it is treacherous. He could have classified his traducers more accurately as coyotes, those skulking cousins of the jackal that terrorize henhouses and frighten easterners by howling at the moon.

A CHICAGO INSTITUTION.

The Rotary club of Chicago was founded in 1905. Out of it grew Rotary International, embracing 5,500 clubs in more than 65 countries, with a membership in excess of 225,000 business and professional executives. Rotary International headquarters have always been in Chicago, and all of the 3,300 clubs in this country, as well as those overseas, identify Chicago with leadership in this movement.

Now Denver, in Colorado, is seeking by means of various inducements and circulation of promotion literature to persuade Rotary headquarters to leave Chicago and relocate in that city, which rates a modest 24th among those in this country. The Rotary International board is to meet here May 23 to reach a decision.

Chicagoans should endeavor to persuade the board that it would be a mistake to take the headquarters from the city in which the Rotary movement has its roots. International headquarters has a staff of 140 handling a budget of 1 million dollars a year. All Rotary literature goes out from here and serves to enhance the city's prestige. Thousands of visitors coming here are members of Rotary. Rotary contributes to Chicago's reputation as a convention center and to the prosperity of our hotels, railroads, air lines, stores, and amusement centers. We feel that the hospitable feeling Chicago extends to Rotary and the fact that the movement is at home here are some return for the advantages the city derives from being Rotary's headquarters. It would be a loss all around if the international board should succumb to Denver's blandishments.

DECLINE OF THE CUSS WORD.

[Peoria Morning Star.]

H. L. Mencken, stormy petrel of American letters, discusses profanity in the Columbia university quarterly, American Speech. He utilizes, in his article, the scholarship and enthusiasm which he typically bestows upon our language. But we find it impossible to share his nostalgic regret on the decline of the typical cuss word since the Civil war, with only faint revivals in the World wars of 1918 and today.

But many might be inclined to share his concern at the substitutes which are replacing cuss words for the purpose of invective. Mr. Mencken lists such tags as plutocrat, capitalist, Communist, Fascist, radical, isolationist, Nazi, and others, by way of illustration.

He is careful to call these words "intrinsically innocuous," tho it is hard to see how Communist, Fascist, or Nazi could be so construed. Certainly in intent and connotation they are, as are some of the others, exceedingly opprobrious. They can accuse a man of anything from smugness to treason.

Used specifically they are useful. But they throw upon their user the burden of proof. This proof the casual user is often unable to give, and the usage is in connection with political rebuff of one kind or another.

General insult may be even preferable to this kind of accusation. Most of us would rather be called a "blank" fool than a Nazi or a Communist. So maybe some kind of the milder cuss word would be better than this vague kind of slander. Either that, or an insistence on a new, particular definition of words.

NEWS FOR DUKE BAKRAK.

Between Coblenz and Bingen, on the left bank of the Rhine, is a small town in the 2,000 pop. class which was not mentioned in the news of the American clean-up in that region, but from the long distance view of this column it is of peculiar interest. Its name is Bacharach, and we suspect that among its medieval inhabitants was a remote ancestor of our contributor, Duke Bakrak, whose real family name is Bachrach. Taking a name from a place of residence was common practice in the bygone times when tax collectors demanded that the plain people call themselves something more than Tom, Dick, and Harry, and so there are quite a few Bachrachs in the Chicago telephone directory, all stemming, we think, from some ancient burgher of Bacharach on the Rhine.

* * *

The Duke will be pleased to know that his town has been captured, altho he has never claimed feudal rights to it. Furthermore, he will be astonished to learn how Bacharach got its name. The noble Romans used to keep a close watch on the Rhine, and to build up the morale of the troops, vineyards were planted. The wine proved much to their taste, and near the present Bacharach they built an altar to the god of winebibbers, calling it in their quaint old Latin way Ara Bacchi. It is easy to see how this name got muddled up into Bacharach. The natives took to the wine jugs so thirstily that they couldn't talk straight.

* * *

Anyway, this is our story, and we're going to stick to it until Duke Bakrak proves that his family name comes from a language more ancient than Latin. We will submit evidence that the wine of Bacharach has been approved by eminent guzzlers. Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, the lofty and pure-minded poet, came back from one of his European tours with a German motto that tickled his fancy. He translated it thus:

At Bacharach on the Rhine,
At Hochheim on the Main,
And at Würzburg on the Stein
Grow the three best kinds of wine.

THE MAGIC KEYS.

My fingers clutch a bunch of magic keys
With power to unlock vast treasuries
Of thought deep-walled within the vaunted mind
Which hold solution to strange mysteries.

Yet I who would draw on these treasured stocks
And try each key, in turn, find none unlocks
A worthy word, or phrase, or paragraph:
"The brown dog quick o'er jumps the lazy fox."

Thus, here I cringe in anger and chagrin
The while I burn the midnight kerosene. . . .
Slam! Bang! Crash! Wham! O, O, I wonder who Would like to buy a slightly used machine?

A Report from Felix the Chef.

The maitre d'hotel called his chef.

"Felix, when do we serve beef?" he asked.

"If we don't violate the law," replied the chef, "we'll serve it every other July, starting in 1946."

"How about sausage?"

Felix replied, "We serve it three times a day. The manufacturers have stepped up production to 88 per cent oatmeal. That's no baloney. We serve it with cream and sugar for breakfast, make sandwich fillers for luncheon, and when fried crisp it has been a good seller in the cocktail bar. No one has guessed what it is."

"What did you make out of the pigs' ears?" continued the maitre.

"Pigs' ears," replied Felix.

"I asked what you made out of them."

"I told you, pigs' ears. A magician couldn't do different. Fried, boiled, baked, or roasted—they're leathery if rare, or gummy if cooked too long."

"Did you get any complaints?" asked the maitre.

"Complaints!" echoed Felix. "No. We never served them. They disappeared after one of the upholsterers asked if he left his glue pot in the pantry."

SPRING SUNRISE.

Morning takes her early dip
At the rock-hewn quarry's lip;
Trails her robes without a sound
Where the morning star lies drowned;
Rose red quarts and lapis cool
Mirrored lie within the pool.
Up the ledges, stone by stone,
Dripping pearls, the night has flown;
Slowly morning climbs and then
Earth's old quarry blooms again.

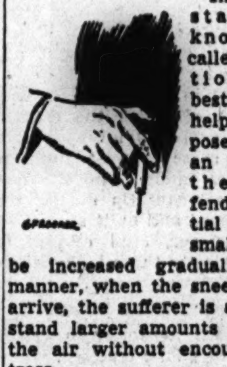
START HAY FEVER "SHOTS" SOON.

LAST week's discussion on hay fever described the various irritants — grasses, trees, and plants. Can anything be done at this time to ease the discomfort occasioned by this annoying condition?



In the present state of our knowledge so-called desensitization offers the best prospect of help. The purpose is to create an immunity to the specific offender. The initial doses are small and may be increased gradually. In this manner, when the sneezing months arrive, the sufferer is able to withstand larger amounts of pollen in the air without encountering distress.

The plan which yields the most favorable results is to begin the injections two to four months in advance of the period in which the attacks are expected. If this therapy is started early enough, in most cases, one hypodermic weekly will suffice.

Should the program be postponed until two or three weeks before the onset of symptoms, daily "shots" may be necessary. Even if nothing is done before the days of high pollen concentration appear, it is still possible to receive some comfort by means of the "co-seasonal method," wherein the inoculations are given thruout the season.

Now and then the "perennial method" is advantageous. Here the injections are continued all year and the time between visits to the physician may be lengthened to three to four weeks. In addition, a greater degree of success may be obtained, thereby enhancing the chances of a permanent cure.

The theory that this type of vaccine may be harmful to the body is entirely unfounded, as children and adults tolerate it well. Approximately 85 per cent of those undergoing treatment can be benefited, ranging from definite improvement to complete relief. It is a common observation of allergists that patients who suffer from asthma associated with hay fever observe marked reduction of their asthmatic wheezing under the desensitization regime.

Prevention is difficult. Since the tendency to hay fever is inherited, the discouragement of marriages between susceptible individuals might be considered for the sake of the offspring. In the light of past developments and future research work in the field of allergy, however, this drastic measure is hardly warranted.

Much experimental work is being carried on with various drugs but, as yet, no panacea has been developed. Each year some new remedy, based on flimsy and unsubstantiated claims, enjoys a brief flurry of popularity before being relegated to the junk pile. A recent example was the widespread excitement about vitamin C. This substance, valuable in scurvy, has little or no effect on hay fever.

AIR GULPERS.

Mrs. B. writes: How does a person know when she swallows air and how can it be prevented?

REPLY.

This can be demonstrated with the use of a stomach tube or X-ray. It is common in general nervous disorders and occasionally in gall bladder disease. The cause must be eliminated. It often disappears when the patient is thoroly convinced of the true nature of the condition.

INVESTIGATE.

I. K. writes: Is a temperature of 97 to 97.8 and a pulse of 120-123 anything to worry about? This happens at 8 p. m. as well as 8 a. m.

REPLY.

The pulse is high. The significance of your condition depends upon the results of a good examination by your favorite doctor.

SLATELIKE TINT.

W. G. writes: What causes a silvery looking skin?

REPLY.

The most common cause is the employment, over a long period of time, of preparations containing silver, such as in the eyes and nose. The occasional use of these chemicals will not produce discoloration.

CAST OUT THE MOTE.

Mrs. O. H. writes: What can be done about a husband who is sweet and kind to other people but nags the life out of his sickly wife?

REPLY.

"And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?"

CONFECTION.

R. C. writes: I am very fond of peanuts. Are they good for me?

REPLY.

This food is rich in fat, protein, vitamin B, and various minerals. It makes a valuable addition to the balanced diet. Of course, too much of any good thing may be harmful.

Hallmark of an American.

The French wife of an American newspaper man works at the Red Cross canteen in Paris along with many other French women. One day while there she got wind of an entertainment scheduled for American troops, but didn't realize it was for Americans only. When she showed up at the entrance at the proper time, an M. P. motioned her away. She stepped back a bit, exasperated, and exclaimed, "Well! Of all the lousy luck!" The effect upon the M. P. was immediate. He bowed and motioned her inside with a flourish. "Sorry, ma'am, didn't realize you were American," he apologized. "Thought you were French."

Unsettled Settle.

The Spearhead, published in Europe by the 83d division, reports that after five years' service in the army with only five days' furlough, Pvt. William C. A G. I.'s 10 Points.

Move over, Miss Daly, Miss Blake, Miss Donnelly, and all others who write advice on how ladies, young or old, can hold their men. This is war, so today this department passes on advice on the subject from the men involved, particularly air force men at five large air fields. Pvt. Kenneth Hughes, who directed the advice this way, calls it the 10 points about a girl that mean most to a G. I. He says they are on-the-beam suggestions. Listening, girls? Here goes:

1. Be neat—a must! Hair carefully brushed. Flowers and ornaments, yes, sir, but sparingly. That healthy, scrubbed look is important, too, and nix on fooling with hair or nails before Joe. Be a finished product. Veto on long fingernails.

2. Be charming. Give out with the smooth talk and smile, but mean it. Be agreeable, sincere; in short, a Right Joe.

3. Develop personality. Display your best points. If you don't know what they are, ask your friends. Every woman has something to make her individual. Be yourself, good-natured; that's what soldiers appreciate most in any woman.

4. Conversation. Many women talk themselves into romance and out. Don't gush. Just keep it in a pleasant, low voice. It's not so much what you say as how you say it. If you can't talk, ask questions and show interest when Joe talks.

5. Dancing. Amen! Know a few smooth routines. Accent is more on sensible than eccentric steps. If you can, teach Joe how to keep off your feet and on his own. Be game for new routines. Men like spunk.

6. Glamor. Hallelujah, this is it! Get it! How? Perhaps perfume, fresh flowers, color, or just being happy will turn the trick. But in clothes, few frills, just good lines. Save the fuss for evening gowns and go the limit there.

7. Write effective letters. Be careful what you write Joe. Write about social events and mutual friends or interests. It doesn't matter if you scribble or write beautifully. It's the letter Joe wants for every day, the big moment of his day. Make that moment happy.

8. Have fun. Show enthusiasm in sports and at social events. Enter into things wholeheartedly. You may surprise yourself by having a heck of a swell time and Joe will long remember such an evening.

9. Good manners. Indeed! Be considerate. Expensive places aren't the only spots for recreation. If you appreciate the date, say so. Act your age about your frolics.

10. Moral: Virtue still rates tops among service men when they get down to basic honesty. Easy conquests are soon forgotten. Every woman writes her own ticket and sets her own value.

LET THEIR BUDDIES BENEFIT.

Chicago, March 9.—Yesterday we received a package that was returned to us from overseas. It was a Christmas package which was mailed to my brother last October by an aunt of ours. This boy has since been reported missing in action. Needless to say, this package made us feel very bad, as we know now that my brother didn't get to enjoy it before he became missing. Our other packages will probably come back, too.

The thought came to me that when a package is mailed to one of our boys overseas and that person cannot be located for one reason or another, it would be a very nice gesture to turn the package over to another boy, one who, perhaps, has no one to send him packages. I am sure that it would also save a lot of valuable shipping space. I don't know, of course, whether this would interfere with the postal rules and regulations.

The sender could put a small notation down at the lower left hand side of the package reading, "If addressee cannot be located, turn over to another soldier."

Surely, any boy would appreciate a package from "over home," regardless of who sent it, and I know that we would have been much happier if our package hadn't come back, but would have been turned over to some boy.

BASIC TRAINING IN BASEBALL.

Chicago, March 8.—An A. P. wirephoto in the press captioned "Getting in Shape" shows Joe Gordon, former Yankee second baseman, and Joe Marty, formerly of the Cubs and Phillies, limbering up on a handball court at Hamilton field, Cal., getting ready for the coming baseball season with the air transport command team. This is just another in a long series involving major league ball players in the services.

Parents and relatives of boys on the fighting fronts around the world feel bitter about this seeming lack of democracy in the service.

The brass hats are not alone doing a disservice to these ball players, but are casting a cloud on our national game. It's about time an official explanation was forthcoming of this apparent feather-bedding.

SOLDIERS AT WARDS, 18 YEAR OLDS IN THE FOXHOLES.

Chicago, March 14.—So the army now states they have less than 100 officers in the 16 seized Ward's properties. Better count 'em again, General, and don't count the WACs or civilian personnel hired by the army. If you count correctly, you'll find over 150. That is quite a reduction, tho, from the 550 officers only that you moved in at the time of seizure.

Those officers could have done much better in the foxholes than high school 18 year old boys. Why not put them there?

The 16 managers ousted for loyalty to their employer must be highly complimented to know that it required over 500 officers to take their places.

DENMARK—IMPOTENT?

Chicago, March 15.—Replying to your editorial of March 16—"Greenland—Invitation to Enemy," and "In helpless Denmark's hands Greenland will be a constant invitation to enemies of the United States. It is a stepping stone from which mass air attacks could be directed against this continent."

What enemies, may I ask, when our boys have finished the dirty job and the "Big Three" solidly established as the guardians of peace? What enemy would manage to set up shop in Greenland? Your attitude has turned aggressive prematurely, it seems, or you wouldn't use the word "impotent" about a nation that managed to attain the highest standard of living in prewar Europe, and that with practically no natural resources; a nation where illiteracy is practically eliminated, and venereal diseases as nearly eradicated.

Hitler couldn't buy the Danes for love nor money. His idea about a "model protectorate" which he tried to test by granting a "free election" after two years of occupation, didn't work. The Danes turned out a record vote—99 per cent against Hitler. Are you aware of the fact that the Danish flag is being counted among the flags of the united nations; that the Danes have destroyed practically every factory working for the Germans; that they are now destroying the railroads despite the fact that there are 12 hostages in chains on every train who are being shot on the spot if anything happens; that the Danes have no government in exile, and persistently refuse to establish one at home as long as the Germans are there.

"Impotent"—Hold your horses. You may serve the allied cause better by giving credit where credit is due. Let the world know—and let it long remember—that no other occupied nation has exhibited a cleaner example on what to do about the stupidity of the "herrenfolk."

When the Germans pressed their demands for enforcement of their "Nurnberg Laws," King Christian spoke for his people: "We never felt inferior to the Jews. If they have to wear a yellow star, I'll wear one, too." The Germans have yet to answer that one.

MEASURES OF DECENCY.

Elmhurst, Ill., March 17.—Since, according to Winston Churchill, "this is a time for grim facts and figures," our mounting casualty lists [over 839,000 to date], to say nothing of our staggering war debt, are, in my opinion, concrete evidence that we have been more than "decent" to the people of foreign countries.

WLB SAYS RADIO MUST HIRE 12 IT DOESN'T NEED

Refuses a Reduction in Quota of Musicians.

New York, March 21 (AP).—The regional war labor board today denied the request of radio station WOV here for a reduction in the quota of musicians hired under its contract with local 802, AFL American Federation of Musicians.

Thomas L. Norton, board chairman, disclosed the regional WLB had ordered continuation of the present quota of 12 musicians, and directed a 15 per cent increase in wage scales in accordance with the little steel formula. A hearing officer recommended the minimum quota of musicians be reduced from 12 to 5.

More Than Needed.

Industry members, dissenting only from the order retaining 12 musicians, declared that the hearing officer "found as a fact that radio station WOV has no need for and cannot use 12 musicians."

The majority opinion said that "bluntly stated, the issue is whether or not we shall destroy or diminish privileges won by a local union thru collective bargaining—privileges which, it may be assumed, the employer unaided could not now withdraw."

The WLB, the opinion continued, is not empowered to depart "from the plans which have been reached thru the free play of opposing economic pressures in pre-war days." The 12 musician quota was established in a contract signed July 11, 1944. Wages of the men had remained the same since Jan. 1, 1941.

Will Ask Review.

Sanford H. Cohen, attorney for the station, said it would petition the national WLB for review of the regional board decision.

The dissenting opinion, asserting that the quota was established after a strike, said that "to uphold the union's right to force this feather bedding upon the company in time of war merely because thru its economic power the union compelled its inclusion in a peace time contract, is to hold that all unions in time of peace have the right to freeze man power regardless of the subsequent need for that man power to safeguard this country."

JANE MORTON DIES; RITES SET FOR TOMORROW

Miss Jane Morton, 46, member of a prominent family, died in Lake Forest hospital yesterday. An autopsy showed the cause of death was an extradural hemorrhage, Coroner Garfield R. Leaf of Lake county said. An inquest will be held today.

Jane Morton

Miss Morton, who lived alone at 420 N. Washington rd., Lake Forest, was found unconscious on her bedroom floor Saturday. She was attired in night clothing. Her mother, Mrs. Martha Morton, who also resides in Lake Forest, said her daughter had acted strangely since bumping into a door several days earlier.

Miss Morton also is survived by her father, Mark Morton, of Wheaton, retired vice president and director of the Morton Salt company, and a brother, Joy, and a sister, Mrs. Helen Morton Swift, widow of William E. Swift, who lives in Geneva. Miss Morton was married in 1928 to Frank Royal Gammon of Cedarhurst, N. Y., but she obtained a divorce several months later at Santa Fe, N. M.

For many years Miss Morton was in the automobile sales business on the north shore and recently she was active in volunteer war services. She was known for her interest in animal welfare. Services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the First Presbyterian church in Lake Forest.

$5,864,000 GIVEN TO RED CROSS AS 10 DAYS REMAIN

Yesterday's recorded gifts of $834,000 put subscriptions in the Red Cross fund campaign up to $5,864,000, or 51.9 per cent of the Chicago chapter quota of $11,300,000. The contributions were the highest for a single day. Only 10 days are left.

Martin H. Kennelly, drive chairman, warned that the second 50 per cent is the hardest to raise.

Howard T. East and Joseph W. Kehoe, co-chairmen of the county communities division, reported 30 towns and suburbs had gone over the top. County communities with the highest percentages are: East Chicago Heights, 200 per cent; Dearborn Heights, 195 per cent; Kenilworth, 138; Skokie, 129; Hinsdale, 125; Flossmoor, 124, and Lombard, 120 per cent.

Others reaching their quotas include Park Ridge, Glenview, Glen Ellyn, Glencoe, Northfield, Mundelein, Palos Heights, Palatine, Dixie Gardens, Itasca, and Kenneyville. The Chicago chapter area includes all of Cook and Du Page counties and the south half of Lake county.

HALTS EVICTION OF WOMAN WITH TWO HERO SONS

Superior Judge John P. McGoorty yesterday restrained John and Frank Cantore, trustees of a building at 1718 Lake st., Melrose Park, from evicting a tenant, Mr. Amelia Betian, 55, mother of two soldiers who are casualties of the war in Europe.

One son, Herbert, 23, has been reported missing in action, and the other, Reinhold, 30, lost an arm and is a patient in an army hospital. Mrs. Betian is caring for Reinhold's daughter, Diane, 5.

Atty. John Pakenham told Judge McGoorty that the Cantore brothers' father, Joseph, 89, of 1710 Lake st., Melrose Park, is suing them to recover the building on the ground that they obtained it from him by fraud. "Don't these men have any patriotism?" the court commented.

ATTY. M'CALLUM IS DISBARRED FOR 2D TIME

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday ordered the disbarment of Atty. William Wallace McCallum, 7 W. Madison st., for "unprofessional, unethical, and dishonorable" conduct.

The latest proceedings against McCallum, who lives at 1200 Lake Shore dr., were instituted by the grievance committee of the Chicago Bar association, which charged him with failure to account to clients for money, soliciting business thru agents and attempting to influence a presiding judge.

OBSTACLES MAR LAKE CALUMET'S AIRPORT PROJECT

Tall Buildings Ring Site in Industrial Area.

BY FRANK STURDY.

High buildings and other obstructions in the vicinity of Lake Calumet supplied the principal objection raised to that site by the committee of air lines engineers which recommended the Douglas airport near Park Ridge for development into Chicago's post-war major air terminal.

The Lake Calumet proposal would involve no direct cost for purchase of land because it is planned to fill in enough of the lake to provide an airport area of about 2,300 acres. There are some legal complications, however. The federal government has jurisdiction over the lake as navigable water, and the state also has legal rights. Acts of the legislature and of congress might be necessary to clear the way for the city to convert the lake into an airport.

Filling Cost Is Four Millions.

Ralph Burke, director of the mayor's post-war economic advisory council, estimated the cost of filling Lake Calumet to the required area at $4,000,000. In the same report, he estimated the cost of acquiring 2,254 acres at the Douglas site at $3,381,000.

Illustrating the number of obstructions that would have to be eliminated around the Calumet industrial area to furnish an adequate flight path for transport landings and take-offs. Burke's report estimated it would cost from $1,100,000 to $1,252,000 to get clearances for a 1 to 40 glide angle.

[The term means that any obstruction in line with a runway must be at least 40 feet from the end of the runway for each foot of its height. Thus, a building 100 feet high would have to be at least 4,000 feet distant].

Few Obstructions at Douglas.

There are few interfering structures at Douglas, and these could be adjusted to the 1 to 40 glide angle, Burke estimated, at a cost of $140,000. The report gave cost estimates of $22,003,000 to $22,405,000 for Douglas, and $23,467,000 to $23,658,000 for Lake Calumet, based on comparable developments.

Another objection raised by the air lines to the Lake Calumet site is its proximity to the smoke generating industrial area at the south end of Lake Michigan. Smoke detracts from the utility of any airport, and while radio aids to navigation after the war will minimize its effect to some extent, operations always will be easier and probably safer where weather is best and smoke absent.

On these scores Douglas has an advantage, located as it is in territory with no big industries, and with weather conditions on the whole a little better.

Calumet Area More Accessible.

The Burke report rates Calumet higher than Douglas in accessibility, on the ground that it offers greater possibilities for transportation of large numbers of people, both by highways and railroad. The Illinois Central tracks skirt Calumet to the west, and a connecting spur might be built.

Transportation to Douglas would be by the proposed northwest expressway, a $46,000,000 post-war project. Some highway construction and street relocation would be required to furnish Calumet with high speed motor transportation.

The Chicago Plan commission considers Calumet ill suited to airport development, it is understood, reasoning that the area long has been devoted to heavy industry and that to locate an air terminal there would, because of the inevitable zoning restrictions, seriously handicap industrial expansion, if not prohibit it entirely.

TARRANT DROPS ADULTERY PLEA AGAINST WIFE

Berrien Tarrant, 35, of 2229 Kenilworth av., Wilmette, an insurance company representative, filed a new suit for divorce yesterday in Superior court, charging his wife, Jean, 24, with desertion. They were married Feb. 9, 1929, and separated Feb. 29, 1944. Atty. A. F. W. Siebel, representing Tarrant, said he would ask the court to dismiss Tarrant's first suit, filed last January, which charged Mrs. Tarrant with adultery. Alan E. Ashcraft Jr., 38, an Evanston attorney and master in chancery of Circuit court, was named co-respondent.

SALES OF CHICKS AS EASTER GIFTS CALLED 'CRUEL'

Also Waste of Food, Doctor Says.

The sale or gift of a baby chick as an Easter novelty is a "shameful waste of the nation's food supply," it was declared yesterday by Dr. W. A. Young, managing director of the Anti-Cruelty society.

"For years we tried to educate the public to realize that giving baby chicks to children constituted cruelty to the chicks and endangered the sanitation of the household in which the chicks were kept," he said. "The situation was aided immeasurably by the passing last summer of a city ordinance prohibiting the sale of ducklings or chicks, either colored or in natural form, as novelties, but there still are many cases outside the city."

Dr. Young predicted that there will be violations of the ordinance in Chicago before the Easter season has passed.

Live Only Few Days.

"Whereas the sale of chicks formerly was cruelty to the fowl, it now has the additional evil of killing off potential food for a war time nation," Dr. Young said. "Most of the chicks live only a few days after being taken from their brooder. If properly cared for, they would grow and eventually be a substantial contribution to America's food supply."

Most humane societies are working for laws against the practice of selling chicks as pets, Young said, and many states have laws prohibiting their sale as novelties. A bill was introduced in the state legislature on Feb. 13 to prohibit the sale of dyed or colored baby chicks or other fowl and to prohibit the sale of baby chicks or other fowl as novelties. It has been approved by the house committee but has not come up for a vote.

Oppose Sales for Pets.

Young said the Anti-Cruelty society is making every effort to eliminate the sale of the baby fowl as pets. In order to educate the public to the harm done to the chicks and ducklings, the society is passing out a pamphlet printed by the American Humane association. The pamphlet's illustrations give a description of the change in baby chicks from the time they leave their brooders to the time of their death, a few days later, after being kept in cool homes and being mauled by small children.

SEEK CHANGES IN LAW, CLOSED NURSERIES TOLD

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, yesterday told the owners of half a dozen nurseries that they would have to seek modifications and clarifications of governing ordinances if they wished to prevent closings because of violations.

Represented at the conference were the South Shore Nursery school, 7858 Coles av., the Jolly Fun house, 4754 N. Paulina st., and the Whiler pre-kindergarten, 411 N. Long av., all of which were closed Tuesday by police on Dr. Bundesen's order. Each was found to be violating fire and building department requirements.

Ald. Lancaster [37th] said that he believed that under a resolution introduced Tuesday at the council meeting, the health and building committees could start hearings on the modifications and clarifications.

3 Gas Dealers Suspended for Bogus Stamp Trading

Three gasoline station operators were ordered to suspend their businesses for the duration of rationing by Chief Hearing Commissioner Kenneth Lemmer of the office of price administration when they were found guilty yesterday of possession and transfer of counterfeit gasoline coupons. Suspended were Ted Kolas and Nick Sofiak Jr., operating the Streamliner Service station, 15th and Virginia sts., Gary, Ind., and John Spann, operating Bob's garage, 5631 State st.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BEN MARKLAND

March 21, 1945.

NORTHERN Illinois farmers and home owners are hoping the weather man is right in his statement that there are no heavy frosts in view. The warm days of last week-end gave trees and shrubs such stimulation that there is danger of damage if they should now be nipped by cold weather.

Lilacs advanced almost to the point of exposing their leaf and flower buds; silver leaf poplars on the Wheaton farm provided the season's first mass display of flowers when their fluffy silver catkins came out Monday; the Arnold crab and Harbinger cherry trees in the farm arboretum exposed their green buds, and the star magnolia was showing the velvety olive colored buds soon to become handsome white flowers.

Some Oats Are Planted.

A few farmers in the west and central parts of the state planted oats Monday morning, and hundreds of gardeners seeded peas, onions, lettuce, radishes, and other hardy vegetables.

One of the men on the Fox river farm, recalling eccentric weather conditions of other years, remembered the March of 1930, when the temperature soared to 72 degrees on March 16 and was followed a few days later with a 19 inch snowfall, the heaviest single snow ever recorded by the Chicago weather bureau. The men aren't expecting another snowstorm, but it wouldn't be unusual if we had a light frost or snow in late March or April.

The occurrence of frost or snow does not necessarily mean that all early shrubs and trees are going to be damaged; neither does such weather always injure early plantings of vegetables or field crops. In 1936, the gardens on the Wheaton farm had been planted with hardy vegetables before April 5 and then were covered with five inches of snow around April 12, but none of the plantings was injured.

Melted Snow a Benefit.

In fact, they were helped by the increase of moisture content in the soil after the snow had melted. Oats and all of the hardy vegetables can stand light frosts and snows, altho severe ground freezes may necessitate replanting.

Ground seeds are in less danger from spring frosts and snows than are tree and shrub buds. A stretch of warm weather, resulting in premature opening of these buds may result in serious losses if followed by heavy frosts. The southern Illinois and Michigan peach crops have been lost several years by this type of spring weather.

★ The GARDEN ★

THE large sample garden on the Wheaton farm now is ready for planting. The plot, 60 feet wide and 510 feet long, was plowed last fall after a moderate covering of rotted cow manure had been applied. The soil was left in rough condition all winter, then treated with a tractor drawn rotary tiller last Monday morning. The men planned to plant six hardy vegetables Monday afternoon, but were able to get only a few onion sets and onion seeds into the ground before rain stopped the work.

The tiller used in fitting the ground is a large machine similar to the small gasoline powered rotary tillers used in many gardens. It performs in one operation the work usually done by a disc and harrow.

The machine is equipped with 10 cultivating wheels on a five foot axle, each wheel bearing four blades. The blades were set to penetrate the top six inches of soil, creating an extra fine seedbed. With its large tractor, the machine covers the length of the garden in three minutes.

DIVORCE, THREE CHILDREN GIVEN TO TARNOWSKY

Judge Michael Feinberg in Circuit court today granted a divorce to Capt. Alexis De Tarnowsky from Mrs. Alice Rand De Tarnowsky McIntosh, Barrington heiress, on the ground of adultery and gave the army officer custody of the couple's three children, Marie, 15; George, 5, and Bertha, 3.

The divorce was granted in the absence of both principals. Capt. De Tarnowsky is in France and the heiress is in California with Pvt. Charles L. F. McIntosh, 30, the red haired soldier to whom she was married after she got a divorce in Mexico on Nov. 8, 1943, from De Tarnowsky.

Judge Feinberg held that the Mexican divorce was a "sham and a fraud," and said Mrs. De Tarnowsky's marriage to McIntosh was illegal.

In his permanent orders, Judge Feinberg awarded Capt. De Tarnowsky $200 a month support for the children, to be paid for Mrs. McIntosh by a trust company.

CHILDREN'S CAR DESIGNED FOR PLAY ON TRAINS

Plans to build a children's car, to be called the junior club car, for the train of the future were told yesterday by Ellis W. Test, assistant to the president of the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing company. The car would have a slide, cave, puppet show, piano, toys, and other things to delight children.

Wide windows with cushions before them will make window gazing a delight. Entrance to the slide will be thru a cave. At the bottom, a cushion will assure a happy landing. A huge papier-mache man-in-the-moon will blink its eye. A blackboard with plenty of chalk will be at hand.

The children's playroom, which will be in charge of a stewardess, will occupy about 20 feet—or a fourth the length of a car.

CITY TO REQUEST AID OF WPB IN ITS WAR ON HORDES OF RATS

A city council subcommittee on health, investigating Chicago's rat extermination program, yesterday directed Lloyd M. Johnson, commissioner of streets and electricity, to petition the war production board in an effort to obtain sufficient steel to provide a light weight, metal garbage can for every family in Chicago.

So great is the shortage of such receptacles that garbage in many parts of the city is being dumped into alleys to become food for a growing number of rats, Ald. Cowhey [41st], chairman, told the group. He moved, with other members of the committee, to recommend an increase in the $100,000 extermination appropriation now being spent on the services of 27 rat catchers assigned to fight the rats with red squill poison and cyano gas assaults.

Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt also stressed the need of proper garbage receptacles and said he would recommend a steel can for every family even if the city has to buy the containers.

Ald. Waller [43d], who requested the hearing to learn what was being done with the original $100,000 extermination appropriation, said that if other means proved impractical he would buy garbage cans at his own expense for families in his ward without such containers.

STRIKE HOLDING UP B-29 ENGINE PARTS IS ENDED

A wildcat strike by 231 core assemblers in the aluminum foundry of the Dodge Chicago plant which began last Saturday and threw 1,193 other employes in the foundry out of work, ended yesterday when a majority of the core assemblers returned to work on the first and second shifts, plant officials said. The strike stopped production of aluminum cylinder heads for B-29 Super Fortress engines.

Rent Violator Ordered to Refund $1,087; Pay $937

WIFE ASKS WRIT TO BAR HUBBY'S SPRING LOVES

Mrs. Jean Hein, 35, of 3563 Cortland st., whose husband, Harold, 35, works on left wings in the Douglas airplane plant, sought a court order yesterday to restrain his flights of fancy in the spring.

Mrs. Jean Hein.

"Almanacs are not in it with Mr. Hein when it comes to predicting spring," she told Judge John A. Sbarbaro in Superior court. "As soon as the vernal equinox occurs, Mr. Hein gets that dreamy expression in his eyes again and he goes around thinking he is in love with somebody else. It's somebody different every year."

Mr. and Mrs. Hein, who have two children, Roger, 9, and Gary, 6, were married Sept. 6, 1932, and separated March 17 this year. Mrs. Hein, represented by Atty. Victor Frohlich, filed a suit for divorce on the ground of cruelty. She was granted temporary support of $22 a week for the children.

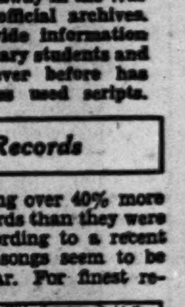
Folks are buying over 40% more phonograph records than they were a year ago, according to a recent report. Novelty songs seem to be especially popular. For finest recorded music of all kinds, watch for Majestic Records, soon available at most record shops.



The new Majestic Records will bring to your home the music of America's favorite artists. You'll like the freedom from distracting "surface-noises" in Majestic recordings. You'll cheer the faithfulness with which they reproduce tone-colors, the personality of musicians.

This technical excellence is achieved by recording under ideal conditions. Majestic uses the finest equipment. Its records are made in special "acoustic" rooms whose insulated walls ban distracting echoes and outside sounds. Buy Majestic Records for music at its best.

Their Name Goes Places

Douglas Aircraft named a plane for the Hoosier Hot Shots, of the National Barn Dance, when they appeared at Douglas to open its 1945 Red Cross Drive. They got their start in radio through a Red Cross Benefit performance 12 years ago. They, like millions of other good Americans, today remember the Red Cross.

The Knitting Widder Brown

Several servicemen would be rather surprised to discover that their sweaters had been knitted by NBC's "Young Widder Brown." Florence Freeman, nicknamed "The Knitting Fool" by the cast, has knitted enough sweaters, gloves and scarves to outfit an Army platoon—45 in the last two years.

Mrs. Henry G., Chicago—When we decided to paint the walls in a couple of bedrooms last month we were discouraged over many small hairline cracks, and a few patches. We stippled the walls, which made the cracks and even the patches much less noticeable.

Georgia C., Madison, Wis.—We tied some discarded fruit jar rubbers together and made a nice rubber mat for my sink drain. It's a good protection for the sink and insurance against dish breakage.

Mrs. Daniel H., Moline, Ill.—To roll out a small dent in an aluminum utensil I use a chair caster, fitted with a small handle, which my husband made for me.

Emma K., Rockford, Ill.—If cold water does not remove an egg stain, I sprinkle pepsin powder over the spot and work it in well. Then I let this stand for a half hour and rinse thoroly.

Mary S., Detroit, Mich.—When we are painting around our house in the spring we mix all the "odds and ends" of paint, never throwing any left-overs away. The mixture can be used for the underside of porch stairs, step ladders, clothes props, and other often neglected surfaces.

Jewish Board Offers to Buy Club's Building

The Chicago Woman's club received an offer yesterday for the purchase of its clubhouse at 72 E. 11th st. from the Board of Jewish Education. The board's proposal was presented to the clubwomen by Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher.

Club members generally were favorably disposed toward the sale after the preliminary discussions, Mrs. Henry Barrett Chamberlain, the club's president, said. The Board of Jewish Education, Judge Fisher explained, would use the building as an adult education center. Now under lease to the army, the building is occupied by the WAC, and the club has quarters in the Fine Arts building.

In an election to fill vacancies on the board occurring at the end of the season in May, Mrs. Albion L. Headburg was chosen to succeed Mrs. Chamberlain as the club's president. Mrs. Alexander Cowie was elected corresponding secretary and Mrs. Frank H. White chairman of the department of education and philosophy.

Elected to standing committee chairmanships were Mrs. Edith M. Reynolds, legislation; Mrs. Frederick E. Hutchins, membership; Mrs. Thomas O. Wallace, publicity; Mrs. Claude I. Palmer, revisions, and Mrs. Robert E. Lanestrem, special activities.

Mrs. Fred B. Frizell and Mrs. M. X. L. Trainor were made members at large of the important program committee, and Mrs. Edward E. Johnson, Mrs. William J. Bogan, and Mrs. R. W. Harms were elected directors, respectively, in the art and literature, the education and philosophy, and the home and public welfare departments.

Girl Will Not Catch Boy by Chasing Him

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

on the SOLID side

Q.—"Do boys like girls to call them on the phone just to talk?"

A. — A gal should never call a boy on the phone [except for a very special reason] unless he is her brother, air raid warden, or some Joe whom she doesn't want to date anyway. No other boy would want a girl to call him "just to talk," nor would most boys consider dating a girl who did. Boys still like to be the ones to suggest the dates, make the phone calls, and send the flowers. And a gal can never catch a good Joe by chasing him.

Q.—"I have three younger sisters and I often have to stay home with them in the evening when my mother and dad go out. My parents do not mind if I have two or three of my friends stay with me on those evenings, as long as they leave by 11. Sometimes two of the boys [the boy I go with and his best friend] come together. When it comes time for them to leave, I am always confused about whether or not I should help the boys on with their coats. . . ."

A.—Those big husky Joes can get their coats on by themselves. As hostess, you should bring their coats to them, let the boys put them on themselves, and then walk to the door to say "good-night."

Q.—"Do you think boys like jealous girls?"

A.—Strange to say, some boys do. Some fellows prefer an ever-lovin' doll who is all concern and questions when he forgets to phone before 8 in the evening, or neglects to ask her for a Friday night date. It's good for the ego and makes a boy feel like a fine hunk of heartbreak to find a girl "who cares." And other boys find a girl interesting only until she becomes possessive and jealous. They will like her as long as she doesn't interfere with their private dating lives, but as soon as she does begin to interfere —then those boys start singing "Don't Fence Me In."

JOURNEY UNDERGROUND

(Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.)

By Flight Officer David G. Prosser

SYNOPSIS: The author enlisted in the Canadian air force in 1941, at the age of 20, and became a navigator. In 1943 he transferred to the American air force. On his ninth combat mission his Flying Fortress was shot down over France, and the crew bailed out. A French family hid him in their attic for 13 days, until he was able to walk, then helped him go by railroad to Nevers, 135 miles south of Paris. In Nevers he got in touch with members of the underground movement who hid him in their homes for a week. Then he was taken into the country to the home of a prosperous family called Martain. After several days there, Prosser was taken back to Nevers and lodged with a family who lived above a shop.

INSTALMENT XXIII.

I was still feeling a little nervous after the trip back to town. Of course, nothing really upsetting had occurred, but the constant danger of being captured always seemed greatest when traveling. I saw another bottle of wine on the dresser, and drank two glasses. After the second, I felt quite at ease.

I passed the early afternoon quietly delousing myself, and looking thru some furniture catalogs, until I became aware of a man standing out in the drive who seemed to be looking at the windows of my room. At first his presence didn't worry me, but after he had stood there 20 minutes, I became very upset, and felt almost positive he was a Gestapo agent.

I had heard Madame moving about the shop, and decided that I should tell her about the man. I opened the door that led up to the shop, and cleared my voice audibly several times, but to no avail. Next I thought of going upstairs, but that seemed to be too dangerous, for I might have encountered a customer, so I finally resorted to knocking on my door three times. That was the signal she used when she wanted me to open the door, and I thought it would certainly bring her down, but I heard her open every door but mine. I did not want to signal her again immediately, for I thought it was probably upsetting her, so I waited another few minutes before repeating my efforts. During this time, the man strangely disappeared.

Twenty minutes later, I heard two men coming down the stairs. They tapped only twice on the door; I was terrified. They told me to open the door. I was unable to move, but then I heard Madame's voice, and opened the door. Two young men rushed into the room, talking both French and a little English. They were quite excited, and said, "We are taking you to Paris. Do you have the right clothes?"

One of them looked me over carefully, while the other looked to see what I was taking with me. They wanted to know if I were British or American. My first impression of these men was that one was an American airman, under the protection of the other. The American appearing man was called Johnny.

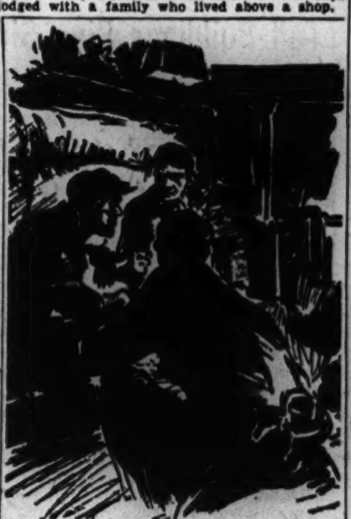
Alphonse said he had to go see some one in town who was to give him some bombs. Upon hearing this, the sight of the Lancaster aircraft a few nights before came to my mind, and I then felt certain I had been correct in identifying it as a British plane.

Johnny stayed with me and when his partner had gone, I told him about my lice, and asked if he could get me some medicine. Of course, I had a difficult time trying to make him understand, and we had to go thru the ridiculous "poux" business again.

He went out in search of some medicine, and quickly returned with a bottle which had a large poison label on it. In sign language, he told me to rub it in, not pat it in. I misunderstood, and in applying it did exactly what the directions said not to do. However, as this poison had absolutely no effect on the lice, the way in which I put it on made no difference.

Under the supposition that the lice had been taken care of, we relaxed until Alphonse returned. Johnny told me he was half American.

"My father was an American who came over here in the last war, and married my mother, who was French. He was the first American soldier to marry a French girl. I want to get my American citizenship after the war. I would have done so when I reached 21, but the war had started and the American embassy was closed."



"When darkness fell, our only light came from a blue, shaded lamp hanging from the ceiling."

When Alphonse returned he was very excited and couldn't wait to show Johnny the contents of the box he had with him. We stood over him watching box after box being unwrapped. They were made of metal. Alphonse opened one of the little boxes to show us the bombs.

Then Alphonse gave me another inspection. He was not at all satisfied with my clothes, but as there was no chance to get any others, he decided that I could wear them in Nevers, but would have to put on his dapper camel hair coat when we arrived in Paris.

He looked at Germaine's burlap bag, and said, with an air of disgust, "This isn't yours, is it?" I nodded, and he firmly declared, "Well, you can't take that on the train."

Next he demanded my papers, and I very proudly gave him the identity card that I had got at Mere Louise's. Alphonse took one look at it, and demanded, "Why did they give you the name David—are you a Jew?"

"I am not Jewish, and my name is David," I told him.

"They should have known better than to use your real name," he said irritably. "In France, David is generally considered to be a Jewish name, and any policeman or German who looks at your card and sees the name David may ask why you do not have a special Jewish identity card, and that would be very difficult to explain. We will have to take a chance now."

He took his identity card out of his pocket to show me how severe the anti-Semitic campaign was in France. On the bottom of his card was printed: "Non-Aryan." He explained that while this was not on all French identity cards, it should be, and if one's name is David, it is very necessary.

Before setting off, they told me I was to go to Paris.

Soon it was time to leave. We went upstairs to say good-by to Madame, and thank her. As we stepped out of the door, Johnny said, "She certainly was nervous, and relieved to see us go."

I wondered if this nervousness had been caused by our presence, or Monsieur's absence, for she said she had been expecting him ever since 11 o'clock that morning.

We arrived at the station almost half an hour before train time, but Alphonse had purposely come early in order to talk to some one who was going to meet him there. Johnny bought the tickets, and then after stopping to buy some magazines, we went over to our platform. A German troop train was standing on one side of it. A group of soldiers climbed out of one of the carriages and walked by us. They were amazingly young, and reminded me more of Boy Scouts than soldiers.

At the doors of several carriages stood soldiers dressed in greatcoats and helmets, and around their necks they wore a chain supporting a little plaque about 6 inches by 4. I asked Johnny if they were special troops.

"They certainly are," he replied. "They're German military police."

A lieutenant was in charge of these men. He had a face rather like Himmler's, and wore black horn rim glasses. I glanced at him several times, and invariably caught him staring at me. Just as I was beginning to get nervous, he strolled down to the other end of the train.

Alphonse brought his friend to meet us. As they approached, this man immediately went up to Johnny and said, "I am very glad to meet an allied airman. We have great admiration for you."

Johnny laughed, and told him that I was the American.

This took the man aback, and he mumbled to Johnny, "But you look like the American."

Just then the loudspeaker announced our train, and reported there had been an "accident" on the direct Nevers-Paris line, and that the train would go via Bourges. Many people looked pleased. I heard several whisper in low, exciting tones, "les patriots," or "sabotage."

Our train was very slow, and stopped at all the countless little stations along the way, sometimes staying half an hour in each. We were fortunate in having a compartment to ourselves, so that I could take part in the conversation without being afraid of exposing my American accent. The seats were wooden and uncomfortable, and draughts of cold air leaked into the compartment thru cracks around the windows.

When darkness fell, our only light came from a blue, shaded lamp hanging from the ceiling. It flickered on and off, making the faces of my companions look weird and unnatural.

Johnny told me he had been a painter before entering the resistance movement, but since then he had had time to do only an occasional canvas. His organization worked very hard in counter-espionage.

Johnny was completely different in appearance. His blond, rather unkempt hair, and beardless face made him look more like an innocent boy than a member of the French underground. His manners and preferences were surprisingly American. Johnny was the only person I ever met in France who did not like wine, beer, or coffee. He liked only milk, and was very sad to be without it in war time.

Spring Finery to Blossom at Easter Parties

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE flowers that bloom in the spring are being preceded as usual by a large crop of spring bonnets, which annually start to appear along with the first mild breezes. By a week from Sunday, millinery will be at its brightest and best, for nearly every feminine Chicagoan with a new chapeau will wear it to Easter Sunday services, and many of them will go on to Easter gatherings in the Casino, the Camellia House, the Mayfair room, the Saddle and Cycle, the Pump room, the Buttery, and other clubs and restaurants.

When Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy returns next Wednesday from Arizona and California, she will find everything in readiness for the Casino club's annual Easter luncheon at 1:30 p. m. Easter Sunday. In her absence Mrs. Robert M. Adams has been arranging some of the details, and Mrs. Alden B. Swift and Mrs. Cyrus G. Hill are planning the menu.

About 20 midshipmen from the naval training school at Northwestern university are being invited to the luncheon to be the partners of a group of pretty young women whom Miss Ellen Ryerson and Miss Jean Scharin are assembling. Strolling musicians will play for the party.

Both the Camellia House and the Mayfair room already are oversold for their traditional Easter bonnet breakfasts, at which new hats are awarded to the most suitably dressed women. In the Camellia House James C. Thompson, John Boles, and William M. Allison will select the winner. William E. Vogelback, Thomas M. Smith, and Georgie Price will serve as judges in the Mayfair room.

The Saddle and Cycle is trying to locate enough meat to serve the traditional Easter lamb at its buffet luncheon at 1 p. m. Easter Sunday. At 3 p. m. there will be an Easter egg hunt for the children.

The feminine guest who is judged the best dressed at the Key club's annual Easter hat parade Monday will receive a prize. Modeling the new bonnets after a 1 p. m. lunch-

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

There is current the impression that when partner doubles a contract of three no trump, the opening leader must lead the dummy's suit willy-nilly. This practice has been the cause of a great many ill-chosen leads. There is no such absolute command implied by your partner's double. Your partner's double suggests that if you have no better lead, try dummy's suit. Where you have a good lead of your own, you are under no compulsion to lead dummy's suit.

On the sequence of bids in today's hand, it is very probable that East has some strength in spades, and West should lead his best suit. Even after the opening lead, however, West has his work cut out for him. When the jack of spades wins the first trick, the queen will be returned and declarer ducks. If West thoughtlessly permits partner to hold the lead, it is very likely that the declarer will make the hand, because it would be almost impossible for East to shift to a heart. West should overtake partner's queen of spades for the purpose of abandoning the suit. West knows that his hand is now dead and it is sound advice that efforts should not be made to revive a corpse. Since he knows that no more spade tricks are available to his side, he should forget about his own hand and lead that suit which is most likely to promote partner's hand. Since clubs have been bid, and since the dummy's diamonds are five cards long, the process of elimination brings him to a heart lead. Declarer is now obliged to lose five tricks, since he must give up a trick in clubs and one in diamonds.

Milliners Put Imagination Into Creations

BY REA SEEGER.

Happily, all the hat makers are imaginative individualists. For this Easter, new skyline millinery creations vary not only in color and size but also in shape. There are flat top creations for tall women, and exceedingly high, even towering models for the shorter ones who crave additional height along with the flowers and veiling. And for the average silhouettes see the dozens and dozens of medium width brims and medium high crowns, all super-glamor ideas timed for pre-Easter shoppers.

Sensationally eye catching hats are made of net, from fine mist meshes to the gigantic squares, oval, and circle patterns. Some are cleverly twisted chous of net or veiling, others are fashioned with wired frames and in intricate designs like the hats formerly shown in felt, ribbon, or fabric. Straw, too, is twisted and draped like a fabric and the results are something particularly festive for a brand new spring season officially opened with the Easter parade.

Flowered hats will lead the parade. Balloons of huge roses in any desired color, geraniums, daisies, gardenias, poppies, cornflowers, and freezia will make the gayest, most effective, and most feminine hats. Bright spring colors, pastels, and the fashion important all-white flowers also make the first spring line-up, all devastatingly flattering creations.

White Collar GIRL

More Admonition from a Sourpuss.

I never saw a purple cow
As rare old Burgess sang
[It was he, was it not?] But, O,
I feel no pang.
For I have seen more dreadful sights
And queerer, eke, at work:
Elaborate frocks and jewelry
Upon ye filing clerk;
Blood-scarlet fingernails
That flash the typist's keys;
The chic receptionist whose skirt
Too far ascends her knees;
The office girl of embonpoint,
A purplecowish sight,
Alas! Beclad in dress and blouse
So patently too tight;
And tell me not, fair fellow workers,
Men don't observe the letter;
The fact, my dainty friends, is this:
Gals should, yes should, know

Paris Designer Goes All Out for Polka Dots

BY ANNE BRUYERE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 21.—Robert Piguet trims the majority of his spring 1945 models with polka dots of diversified colors, shapes, and materials. Some are printed on satin back crepe used for lapels, pockets, hats, or gloves. Others are included on wide decolletages, peplums, or ruffles of cocktail.

"Pois Blanc" is a glamorous formal of pink "satin duchesse," whose long train is covered with mounted polka dots of white sequins. More polka dots made of lotus pink and gentian blue spangles cover the collar and mutton leg sleeves of a dinner suit in white brocaded satin.

Yellow narcissuses edge the foot long pockets of a green and white polka dotted afternoon dress called "Narcisse." The same flowers fashion the high toque worn with the dress. Another unusual flower arrangement is the placing of red rosebuds around the fitted wristbands of a cocktail dress named "Roses de France," which is made of black and white polka dotted crepe. The peplum jacket is worn over an extremely full skirt. The neckline is cut square and low.

For street wear Robert Piguet presents shantung and linen suits with vivid stripes or oversized polka dots. A new style feature is the wide chain belt in back worn with a matching bracelet.

Thru the Looking Glass

When an adolescent's skin starts to break out in eruptions, some unenlightened parents may be inclined to discount the condition and let nature take its course, figuring that the phase will pass of itself. It's a deplorable attitude which can cause heartbreak and untold misery for the youngster who must suffer the embarrassment and mental anguish the blight of a bad skin induces.

It takes a bit of doing to fight the skin ills that so often beset a growing youngster. In the interest of good looks and peace of mind neither child nor parent can afford to let down on proper care for a minute. A mild case of facial eruptions may respond readily to simple treatment based on increased attention to proper diet and frequent washing with soap and water to help reduce the danger of infection.

When, in spite of treatment by ordinary methods, the eruptions persist, increasing in number with indications of the possibility of a real case of acne, it's time to consult a skin specialist. He is the person who can determine if the trouble is slight or if there is actual danger, and his advice and treatment should be followed to the letter. In either event, the money spent for professional counsel is seldom wasted for it may be the means of preventing serious trouble and prolonged treatment. It's worth it, too, for the child's peace of mind since the fear of skin infections is a secret dread with most youngsters. LOUISE DOOLEY.

New Uniforms Boost Morale of Injured Vets

There's nothing quite like a new uniform, complete with insignia, medals, and ribbons, to boost the morale of a convalescent veteran when he pays his first call on his mother, wife, or sweetheart, officers at the army's Vaughan General hospital at Hines believe. To replace the worn or fragmentary outfit the fighter wore on his way back from the battle front, an elaborate and efficient quartermaster unit has beer set up at the hospital, and will be used as a model for others to be organized soon at general hospitals thruout the nation.

Shortly after the first wounded began to enter Vaughan last summer, many of them wearing only remnants of the uniforms in which they did their fighting, the unit, under the general direction of Lt. S. A. Sutton, a Chicagoan of 150 N. Parkside av., went to work.

Under the system, each enlisted man is measured when he enters the hospital, and an inventory taken of the wardrobe he will need for his first pass or furlough. The stockroom has a steady supply of regular and supplementary sizes in all items, and facilities for obtaining special sizes on short notice.

It also has an inventory of 90 regular shoe sizes, from 3 to 15½, and from AAA to EEEE widths, plus 149 supplemental sizes. If, thru injury, a man's two feet aren't the same size, a foot imprint is made and special shoes made to order in time for him to wear them on his first public appearance as a hero.

The unit also stocks 22 regular sizes in shirts, 30 in trousers, 27 in blouses, 10 in hats, and six in socks. Standard sizes in overcoats, gloves, and underwear also are kept on the shelves.

After brief experience with tabulating the measurements of his G. I. patrons, Lt. Sutton learned that the veteran's standard measurements differ greatly from those of the army reception centers. The average veteran has gained or lost 10 to 25 pounds during his overseas duty.

The Vaughan quartermaster unit also replaces worn clothing for army enlisted men in the Chicago area who are stationed with the army specialized training programs at Northwestern and Loyola universities, and at the University of Chicago and the University of Illinois. Men at Gardiner General hospital on the south side also receive the services of the unit.

A well organized reclamation project also is part of the unit's work. In February, Lt. Sutton and his staff saved the army more than $4,500 by having tailors, dry cleaners, and laundry help reclaim salvaged clothing turned in by men whom it no longer fit properly. The workers are civilians, hospital duty personnel, and Italian prisoners of war.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 21.—Hal Wallis' next will be the life of Tschaikowsky, written by Ayn Rand, of "Fountainhead" fame. Hal hasn't yet any man in mind for it. I said, "What about the beaver Tschaikowsky wore? How about Monty Woolley?" Hal said, "Now you behave! Answer is no." . . . John Stahl is testing Kathleen Winsor for one of the court ladies in "Forever Amber" tomorrow. Special costumes have already been made for it. This must mean that Stahl will direct the sexy dish—meaning picture. . . . Since "Without Love" has been unveiled in New York, Kitty Hepburn is being called Katharine [Enchantment] Hepburn. . . . Tallulah Bankhead was pretty temperamental during rehearsals of her play "Foolish Notion" until Terry Helburn of Theater Guild said to her, "O, Tallu, stop acting like a female!"

Well, Have You?

Has any one at Warners thought of offering "Life with Father" to Margaret Sullavan? Can you think of any one who'd be better? Incidentally, Mrs. Day, whose family lived the story, has asked that Donald Ogden Stewart write the screenplay. . . . Some nasty things are being said about those strikers who carry placards, but I wonder if folks know they'll be fined $10 by the union if they don't. That, together with the loss of a pay check is pretty tough. . . . Wouldn't it be nice if George Cukor could direct Ethel Barrymore in "Miss Hargraves"? It might help Ethel get the Oscar for best acting of the year. George's direction got Ingrid Bergman hers.

From Angel to Cynic.

Charlie Bickford didn't remain good long. He's got the cynical role in "Fallen Angel" with Linda Darnell and Lynn Bari. It'll be a second "Laura," with Otto Preminger directing. Otto's returned from San Francisco where he picked out some locations for it. . . . With Helen Hayes, Ruth Draper, and Martha Raye all occupying different stages in our city, the theater's doing very well here. I recall Helen Hayes and Ruth Gordon coming to a lush party given by Billy Haines in the old days. The truth game was in its infancy then. Our people played it seriously instead of lying. When one of our leading stars at that time was asked a leading question and she answered in the affirmative, fainting bodies had to be picked up off the floor. Most interested listener was Helen Hayes.

So Maybe Jimmy's Coming Home.

I asked Leland Hayward if he knew that Jimmy Stewart was returning to Hollywood. He replied, "I haven't heard from him for six weeks. He made no mention of it. Jock Lawrence told me at Christmas he'd seen Jimmy. Jimmy had said, 'I'm not coming home till war's over.' Well, you can change your mind in those few months. Maybe Jimmy has. After all, he's been entitled to a furlough and could have had one six months ago." . . . Lana Turner, her daughter, Cheryl, and Turhan Bey caused no end of commotion when they dined at Beverly Tropics. The little one was presented with a doll, which she immediately tore into bits and kept the waiters busy cleaning up. . . . The Turnabout theater's new show will be called "Tom and Jerry," a take-off on "Go West, Young Man." Wait till you hear the new song sung by two sea gulls—"When a Girl's a Gull."

Roses for Civilian Easter Trade to Be Scarce, Says Florist

Civilians will find Easter roses extremely scarce, Hubert J. Wolfe, executive secretary of the Allied Florists' association, predicted yesterday. He said approximately one-third of the rose crop being grown for the Easter trade was brought to premature bloom by the temperatures which recent warm weather brought to the hothouses. There still will be enough roses to fill the orders of service men, he said.

Other traditional flowers for Easter will be available, Wolfe said, altho there will be fewer blooms than in peace time. American tulips, larger and more colorful than prewar imports from Holland, and native grown lilies will replace flowers whose bulbs formerly were brought from abroad.

Carnations will head the list of flowers purchased by persons with moderate pocketbooks, Wolfe said. Chicago grown gardenias, jonquils, and orchids also are expected to be popular.

Benefit Society to Honor 425 Members in Service

The Woman's Benefit Association of Cook county will dedicate a service flag to the 425 young men and women members now in service at a rally this afternoon in the Mural room of the Morrison hotel. Two gold stars for young men of the association who lost their lives in service also will be dedicated. Mrs. Bina West Miller, president-founder of the organization, will be a special guest at the meeting, which replaces the association's annual state convention and which will be climaxed with a dinner in the Terrace Casino.

Mrs. Frank M. Wright, who was instrumental in recruiting volunteers for the Daughters of the American Revolution war savings stamp and bond booth in the Real Estate Board building at 105 W. Madison st., has invited regular workers to a luncheon at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow in celebration of the booth's third anniversary. At the party, to be held in the Stevens building restaurant, special recognition will be given to Mrs. John B. Swift of the General Henry Dearborn chapter of the D. A. All families tire of the same foods served in the same ways, particularly vegetables. So why not try cooking them with something different—herbs for instance! The following recipes will give you some interesting ways of cooking and serving vegetables. With a little ingenuity and experimenting on your part you may discover many more.

String beans are the most neglected of vegetables and yet their delicate flavor readily responds to many herbs.

Savory Green Beans.

[Serves six.]

- 2 pounds string beans
- 1 teaspoon dried savory, marjoram, or sage
- 2 tablespoons margarine

Add dried herbs [tied in a piece of cloth] to boiling, salted water a few minutes before adding washed beans. Cook 15 minutes with lid off, drain off excess water and remove bag. Add margarine and continue to cook slowly until beans are tender.

Try marinating canned baby beets for 1 hour in vinegar to which you have added 1 teaspoon of caraway seed. Serve as a salad or dinner vegetable.

If you have one of those families who "go" for creamed dishes, try adding a good chive sauce to your cooked vegetables. Spinach and potatoes both are excellent served in this manner.

Cream Sauce with Chives.

- ¼ cup margarine
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups milk
- 2 tablespoons chopped chives

Melt margarine, add salt, and flour, then gradually add milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until smooth and thickened. Add chives and heat thoroly. Pour over hot vegetables.

The flavor of hot cooked carrots or any nonacid vegetable is enhanced by the addition of lemon herb margarine.

Lemon Herb Margarine.

- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ¼ cup margarine
- ¼ teaspoon dried basil
- 1 teaspoon minced parsley

Combine ingredients in order given and serve over hot cooked vegetables.

There are many herbs seldom mentioned which blend well with vegetables. A little marjoram is good with spinach or you might like to try thyme with peas. It is well to remember, tho, to use all herbs sparingly. A little goes a long way.

Herb sauces are good accompaniments for fish. Try this tartar sauce with grilled, baked, or fried fish.

Tartar Sauce.

- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1 teaspoon minced chives
- 1 teaspoon minced parsley
- 1 teaspoon capers
- 2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickle
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 3 ripe olives, minced
- 1 teaspoon paprika

Mix together in order given and serve.

The Adolescent Needs Parents' Kind Guidance

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Fathers can play such a splendid part in helping their sons and their daughters thru the adolescent years. Kindly guidance achieves the results most parents desire. It isn't really necessary to apply the brakes constantly or interfere when they begin to reach for the independence, that, to our minds, seems dangerous, but to them appears perfectly natural, which is their birthright.

"My husband is a good son to his parents and a fine husband to me, but he is so severe with the boys. He doesn't bother so much with 8 year old Carol, but with John, 15, and Bill, 14, he seldom speaks unless it is to find fault or to demand an explanation. He never forgives a mistake or understands their idea of fun or their desire for adventure," writes a troubled mother.

"There's a regular wall rising between the boys and their father. They try to keep out of his way, and I get into trouble if I try to fix things for them. They are good boys now, but I'm afraid they'll soon resort to doing things behind their father's back, because he doesn't listen to their explanations or give them any leeway."

Sometimes this attitude is adopted by a father from a mistaken idea that unless young boys are sternly dealt with they will not be manly men in later years. Or, perhaps, because he fears that if he yields in some things he won't be able to make his authority felt when the necessity does arise.

It is being proved every day that such fears are groundless when a boy knows that he can approach his father, no matter what the circumstances, sure of tolerant understanding and friendly interest.

Some restrictions are necessary for our 'teen-age children, but there must be elasticity in our control. Hidebound rules and regulations meet with poor success. Youth craves freedom, wants to be in the swim, and if we thwart these natural cravings arbitrarily and without supplying reasonable alternatives, things are bound to go awry. Don't make it necessary for your children to seek outside of their home the sympathetic, intelligent understanding they crave. An adolescent is plastic raw material which is ready to be influenced and molded by any one who catches his fancy or fires his enthusiasm, and it behooves us to see to it that he finds most of what he needs in his own home.

I don't mean, of course, that each and every request must be granted. Quite the contrary. Even at the risk of being dubbed old-fashioned, or even unkind, we must sometimes hold to what we consider best for them.

But neither is it necessary to be constantly unyielding in order to retain control of this period in our children's lives. Simply meet them half way, no matter how revolutionary their idea may be. The way isn't always as clear or as easy to them as it may look to us who have the advantage of experience.

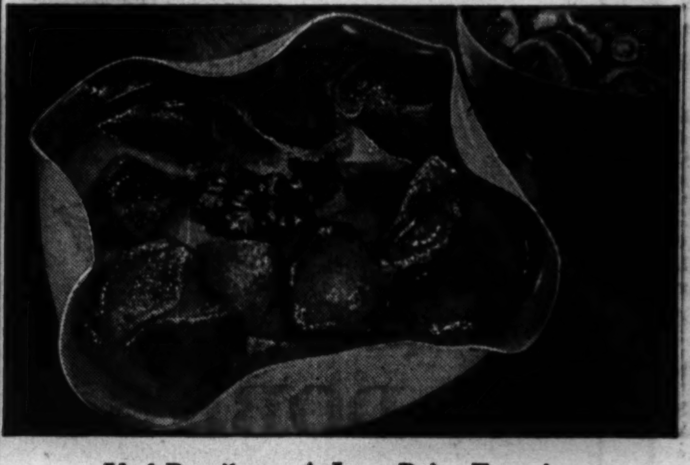
Save Points for Easter Ham

Ordinarily it is wise to use low point meats in order to get a sufficient amount of high quality protein every day. But to want ham for Easter is natural and excusable; and it can easily be yours if you have been using low-point and no-point meats during the month, as I have been suggesting. Here is another help.



Veal Paprika . . . A Low-Point Favorite

1½ lbs. veal shank (boneless) or heel
1 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. pepper
1 clove garlic
4 tbsp. Wilson's Bake-Rite
1½ cups hot water
1½ tsp. Wilson's B-V
2 tsp. paprika
3/4 tsp. evaporated milk
3/4 tsp. vinegar

Cut veal in two-inch pieces and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cut garlic in half and heat for 3 minutes in Wilson's Bake-Rite. Add meat and brown lightly on both sides. Add water and B-V which has been dissolved in a small amount of the water, cover and simmer until tender (about 1 hour). Remove garlic and add paprika and evaporated milk into which the vinegar has been stirred (sour cream may be used instead of vinegar and evaporated milk). Heat but do not boil. Serve at once. Serves 6.

REWARD FOR RATIONING

Meat rationing will not have been without its rewards if homemakers learn how to prepare tasty dishes from the less known cuts. Today's dish is one for which you will want to thank rationing if it's a new one to you. When cream was plentiful we used sour cream; the vinegar and evaporated milk is a present day economy . . . one you may use in other dishes calling for sour cream.

Add Nutrition with Flavor

A tempting dinner menu planned around veal paprika starts with a cup of hot B-V bouillon and includes crispy hashed brown potatoes, margarined peas, combination vegetable salad, lemon chiffon pie and coffee. The B-V in the bouillon as well as that in the gravy of the veal paprika, while improving the flavor also makes a real contribution to the nutritive value of the meal, as B-V is an excellent source of iron as well as the B vitamins, riboflavin and niacin.

MARCH IS NATIONAL BREAD & GRAVY MONTH

Other Point-Thrifty Treats

That old-time favorite, bread and gravy, is a real point saver when you use Wilson's B-V to add to the meat flavor. B-V is not rationed, you know.

Have liver sliced thin. Cut in narrow strips, roll in seasoned flour (1 tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, ½ cup flour), dip in slightly beaten egg and then roll in crumbs. Fry in Wilson's Bake-Rite, heated to 360° F., until browned.

Remove veins and arteries from baby beef or veal heart and cut in one-half inch slices. Dredge with seasoned flour and pan-fry in bacon drippings (Wilson's Certified Bacon has a deliciously mild, smoked flavor) for about 10 min. browning both sides well.

Yes, we can have meat every day. Meatless days are danger days . . . likely to be dangerously low in high quality proteins and the B vitamins.

Yours for better nutrition,
George Rector

GOLDEN GLOVES SQUAD RETURNS TO HARD WORK

Chicagoans Gather for Intercity Show.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Chicago's 1945 Intercity Golden Gloves entourage began to assemble yesterday for the toughest assignment of the young lives of its members—the 18th revival of the feud with New York's best, in the Chicago Stadium on April 4. They began checking in thruout the day for the two week session of rigid drills which will culminate in the biggest amateur fistic argument of the year.

Among the first to register were Bob Crosley, 31 and father of three, who distinguished himself in the Chicago finals as the lightweight representative of the Fort Wayne Journal Gazette, and Bob Manti, the Milwaukee Journal welterweight. Shortly thereafter, Jackie Boyd, the leggy Madison Athletic club 112 pounder who was one of three Chicagoans to win golden gloves in the final local battle on March 9, came in and allowed he was ready for New York's best.

Start Road Work Today.

The squad will go to work in earnest today in the gymnasium of the Illinois Athletic club. It will be under the direction of Capt. John Behr, returning to his long time position as head coach after receiving an honorable discharge from the army, and Co-Coaches Issy Kline and Freddy Caserio. Caserio will have the boys up betimes this morning for their first spell of road work in Grant park.

If any of the young men who will carry Chicago's hopes in the April 4 party were guilty of overconfidence when they reported, they soon changed their attitude after listening to Kline. Issy, a veteran conditioner of Golden Gloves talent, scouted the New York finals in Madison Square Garden last week. He made it plain that the easterners, who have won only four of the 17 Intercity shows, are more determined than ever to win this year.

Reports on Easterners.

"Forget that we've won 10 and tied three," he told the Chicago youngsters. "This year they not only mean it, but they've got it, too. Puerto Rico sent up a team of five boxers, and three of them won titles. It isn't only the boxers who aim to whip us. It's the coaching staff—Teddy Martin, Pete Mello, and George Gainford—as well. For the first time in history they are holding their drills outside of Manhattan. They've taken the team up to a special camp at Bear Mountain, N. Y., and they already are at work."

Kline particularly fears the Puerto Ricans, who captured New York Golden Gloves in the three lower weight divisions.

"All are good. We saw one—Flyweight Francisco Garcia—beat us in last year's Intercity in New York. He's a southpaw who is vastly improved since 1944. Adolfo Calderon, the bantamweight, is short, stocky, and sets a fast pace. He's the weaving type with a left hook that is inclined to be wild, but if it ever tags you—!

Praises Marine Champions.

"New York's lightweight, Eddie Murphy, is a tall, flashy type of boxer, who came off the floor to beat Elbert Highers of Charlotte, N. C., a solid puncher, in the final. And we might expect to look at Highers in the same class. La Verne Roach, the marine welterweight who was ranked the best in the New York finals, is everything they say he is.

"New York's middleweight is Howard Brodt, 20, a marine sergeant who is stationed at Cherry Point, N. C., with Roach. We all remember the light heavyweight champ, Roland La Starza, from last year. He and our 175 pounder, Corp. Adolfo Quijano, should put on the best fight of the night in the Stadium. La Starza is what you call a real club fighter, always coming in and able to take a punch. New York appears to have lost a good heavyweight in Gus Schlee, but will have a tough understudy in Roscoe Stout."

Mosconi Wins Two More Blocks from Greenleaf

Willie Mosconi, national pocket billiard champion, ran his string of successive victories over Ralph Greenleaf to five by winning yesterday afternoon's and last night's engagements in Bensinger's, 131 S. Wabash av. Mosconi won the afternoon block, 125 to 12, with an unfinished run of 77 and took the evening session, 125 to 104. The 12-block match will be concluded Saturday.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

ROBERT L. JOHNSON, who, at 17, was the youngest player in the 1944 Rose bowl game, is a private 1st class in the army. . . . Bob played guard for the University of Washington. . . . Ed Ignasiak, Toledo first baseman, bowls with either hand and is a switch hitter in baseball. . . . Sgt. Joe Di Maggio will see a lot of his Yankee buddies' training sessions if he can get away from his army duties. . . . Joe is at the Convention hall redistribution center in Atlantic City, the Yanks' camp site. . . . Iowa truly can claim the title "the state of champions" this year. . . . The state university captured the Western conference basketball crown and Iowa State college walked off with the honors in the Big Six race. . . . Wrestling is booming in Ireland, where, oddly enough, the headline grappler is a gentleman named Mandel Stein. . . . Chief Saunooke, the Indian wrestler, weighs 360 pounds. . . . West coast rumors have Stanford university preparing to receive a big contingent of navy trainees some time during the summer. . . . Fans out that way take it to mean that the setup might lead to a resumption of the football series with the University of California. . . . Capt. Pat Frizzell, former member of the Portland Oregonian sports staff, has been awarded the bronze star in France. . . . Every time he is in a musical mood Charley Grimm longs for a fellow like King Lear, Cub infielder of many annums ago, who was a wizard at the piano. . . . Charley, in case you've forgotten, is the best southpaw banjo plunker in baseball. . . . Most of the current fame of Outfielder Cecil Garriott springs from the fact that the Cub rookie played in 170 games for Los Angeles, starring in most of them, last summer. . . . But Illinois fans knew him before that—as a three letter man at Millikin university in Decatur. . . . Add signs of the times: In the "Ten Years Ago Today" section of yesterday's Wake it was recorded that 300 athletes reported for the start of spring football practice at Notre Dame. . . . The 1945 opening turnout was 54.

Nick Altrock is participating in the Washington Senators' spring drills. . . . The once great White Sox southpaw still has enough on the ball to fool most of the rookies. . . . Schoolboy Rowe, now in the navy, believes his playing days are past, but he would like to hook on with some big league club as a coach after the war. . . . Crosley field's playing area and field box seats were under water, as usual, during the recent rampage of the Ohio river. . . . Frank Kilroy, the Philadelphia Eagles' tackle, who landed on the Normandy beaches on D-day, has been reassigned to sea duty as a ship's doctor. . . . In addition to bombing Japs, B-29 crews find time to enjoy sports. . . . Lt. Dick Erdlitz, former Northwestern university baseball and football star, writes from China that his team recently won the 20th bomber command touch football league championship. . . . BILL TO SWITCH I.H.S.A. CONTROL IS TURNED DOWN

Springfield, Ill., March 21 (AP).—The state education committee voted 7 to 0 today to kill a bill to put all high school sports competition under the state superintendent of public instruction. A few minutes later the senate voted to table the measure.

The committee also indorsed an agreement signed by three Republican senators sponsoring the bill and officers of the Illinois High School association.

The mutual agreement calls for:

1. A change in I. H. S. A. policy relative to investment of its funds according to the laws of the state concerning trust investments.

2. Representation and participation by the superintendent of public instruction or his appointed agent at meetings of the I. H. S. A. board of directors.

New York, March 21 (AP).—Eight individual and team scoring records for Madison Square Garden were broken tonight as George Mikan scored 53 points in leading De Paul of Chicago into the finals of the New York Invitational Basketball tournament with a 97 to 53 triumph over Rhode Island State.

Mikan established six of the records and joined with his mates in setting two new team marks as the Blue Demons qualified to meet Bowling Green in the finals next Monday before a crowd of 18,253. Bowling Green eliminated St. John's, defending champions, 57 to 44.

Here are the new standards hung up by Mikan:

Most points in one game, 53; most points in two games, 86; most field goals, one game, 21, and two games, 34; most points in one half, 32, and most foul goals in one game 11. All except the foul goal mark beat standards set by Bob Gerber in the 1942 tournament. The free throw record of nine was held by Carl Ott of Ohio university.

Beats All-Time Standard.

While passing Gerber's tournament record, the 6 foot 9 inch Mikan, who played all except the last two minutes, also beat the all-time Garden standard of 45 points made by St. John's Harry Boykoff during the regular season, three years ago.

De Paul's team score was the highest ever made in the Garden, surpassing New York university's mark of 85 set this year during the regular season and the tournament mark of 82 held by Toledo in whipping Rhode Island State in 1942. The Blue Demons' 39 field goals also topped Toledo's tournament mark of 36.

Before the tournament ends Mikan has more new marks in his grasp as he already has surpassed several three game standards.

Lead at Half, 42 to 25.

Rhode Island State was in the ball game only the first 10 minutes, when the Rams trailed, 13 to 10. The midwesterners went on a scoring rampage with 20 points in the next five minutes and left the court at the half time on the long end of 42 to 25 count.

They added 19 more points in the first five minutes of the final period, but reached their greatest scoring heights in the last quarter of the half with 24 tallies.

Dick Hole and Ernie Calverley were the only scoring threats that Rhode Island had to offer, the former scoring 24 points and the latter 10. Lineups:

ST. PHILIP WINS CATHOLIC SENIOR CROWN, 38 TO 35

BY DAVID CONDON.

If ever there was any doubt as to who had the best senior basketball team in the Catholic league this season, that doubt has been cleared up to the satisfaction of the St. Philip Gaels who last night defeated Leo, 38 to 35, for the league championship.

Three thousand fans packed De La Salle gymnasium to watch the north section titlists deal the Lions their first defeat in 13 league games. After the Gaels had dropped behind, 4 to 2, in the opening minutes they rallied to regain the lead, never to fall behind again.

Third Victory Over Lions.

For Leo the game was a final chance to prove that it had a better five than Coach Clem Naughton's aggregation. St. Philip, however, decisively proved what it had done twice before in tournament and practice competition this season—that it could beat Leo.

St. Philip will now represent the Catholic league seniors against Senn High school, City league champions, on April 7 when the annual charity double header program sponsored by Mayor Kelly will be played in the Chicago Stadium. The second game will pit the City league junior champions, Marshall, against either St. Philip or Leo, who play Friday night in Loyola gymnasium for the Catholic junior title.

Lead, 21 to 11, at Half.

Guard Mike Joyce gave the Gaels a 2 to 0 lead with two free throws, but the Lions went ahead, 4 to 2, on two free shots followed by Marty Burns' basket. Duncan Pope scored a field goal to tie it at 4 all, and St. Philip regained the lead, 6 to 4, on Center Ralph Hinger's basket. At the quarter the Gaels led, 9 to 8, and increased their advantage in the second period to take a 21 to 11 lead at the half.

Nelson Wins 2d Play-Off at Charlotte

Charlotte, N. C., March 21 (AP).—Byron Nelson won the $10,000 Charlotte Open golf tournament today by defeating Sam Snead by four strokes in a second 18 hole play-off—a grim match played before an almost silent gallery of 1,500.

Byron Nelson.

Nelson shot a three under par 69 to clinch his fifth tournament of the winter tour. Snead, with a conceded putt on 18, carded a 73 in a futile attempt to turn in his fourth consecutive tournament victory and his seventh of the tour.

Each finished the regulation distance of 72 holes in 272 Monday and each had carded a 69 in the first play-off yesterday. First place was worth $2,000 in war bonds; second, $1,500.

Today's tension was more between the players and the gallery than between the two players. Snead, hurt because of criticism among spectators of their failure to go on a sudden death finish in extra holes yesterday, was openly resentful and badly off his game.

He had two big sixes and two three-putt greens in the worst round he has played in weeks, one of them on No. 17 where he missed a four foot putt.

On the last hole, already three shots ahead, Nelson, the great finisher, rammed home a 30-footer for a deuce to settle the issue beyond all dispute. The long putt, dead into the back of the cup, elicited the first real yell from the gallery.

BASEBALL HAILS WMC RULING AS BREAK FOR GAME

Baseball had its first chance to whoop it up in a long time yesterday when the war man power commission took the shackles off players engaged in off-season essential work, granting them the right to return to the sport without danger of penalties.

This action was hailed by most of the executives and field managers contacted, being viewed generally as assurance that the 4-F structure, backbone of war time baseball, would remain intact and that others would not jeopardize their status in the draft by quitting jobs for baseball.

Jimmy Dykes, manager of the White Sox, said in Terre Haute, Ind., that the WMC's ruling was the best news he had heard in a long time. He said at least five players—Catcher Mike Tresh, Third Baseman Grey Clarke, Outfielder Guy Curtright, Infielder Joe Orengo, and Pitcher Ed Lopat would be directly affected. All but Curtright, a school teacher in Missouri, are working in war plants.

Will Not Affect Cubs.

Oddly, the ruling is expected to have little or no effect on the Cubs' man power situation. It was pointed out that none of the missing Cubs is away from the French Lick, Ind., training camp because of war work. Pitcher Japhet Lynn, a brakeman, is concerned about preserving his seniority and may not play for that reason; Bill Nicholson is on his farm near Chestertown, Md.; Pitchers Hy Vandenberg and Henry Wyse are not in this cate-

DRAFT THREAT SOFTENED BY M'NUTT RULING

Nation Wants Game,' He Declares.

Eases Man Power

WILL HARRIDGE, president of the American league, yesterday expressed the belief that the war man power commission's action in freeing baseball players from war jobs during the season, will be important in helping solve the sport's man power problems. He said:

"Mr. McNutt's [director of the WMC] statement is very gratifying. It will undoubtedly give baseball the use of a number of 4-F players who upon reexamination are still found unfit for military service."

Ford Frick, president of the National league, said: "I think it's a great thing for baseball. It practically assures a successful operation this season. Most important, it gives baseball some standing."

[News of Cubs, Sox on next page.]

Washington, D. C., March 21 (AP).—Baseball got a big break today in a decision by the war man power commission that players may return to the game from off-season employment, such as war plant jobs. The WMC said, in effect, that baseball is the principal business of these men, in most instances, and that they have a right to work at it.

Under this ruling most players, coaches, and managers may leave off-season jobs and go back to the diamond without asking for a certificate of availability or referral card under WMC's job program.

Chairman McNutt of WMC said he took the action after satisfying himself that there is a widespread demand, particularly on the part of soldiers in this country and overseas, for the game's continuance.

Tells Game's Morale Value.

"There is considerable evidence that it adds to the morale on the home front in war time and that, therefore, there is real justification for this action," McNutt said.

In explanation, the WMC said that players who were in the game last year and have contractual relationships with any club, including an option for the current season, now may be recalled to their principal employment, which is baseball, without going thru the United States employment service.

This apparently removed any danger of such players being referred to their draft boards as job jumpers.

The WMC pointed out, however, that its ruling does not relieve a player's legal draft obligation, adding that he leaves off-season employment at his own discretion and responsibility in this regard.

Affects All Teams.

Some baseball sources felt that WMC's decision may cause selective service to have a more lenient attitude toward professional athletes who have been inducted in large numbers since War Mobilization Director Byrnes cracked down on them months ago.

The WMC's national policy decision, coming soon after President Roosevelt's recent remarks implying that he thought the sport should carry on, served as another shot in the arm to baseball leaders.

Every team in organized baseball probably will be affected by WMC's ruling. Many players have not reported for spring training, presumably waiting for some such decision.

A few already have left war plants to join their clubs. Among these was Ken Keltner, star third baseman of the Cleveland Indians. However, he was accepted yesterday for the navy.

An exception to the rule was made by WMC in regard to players in their first year of baseball, groundkeepers, ushers, and such workers. All of these may be hired only upon referral by uses, the WMC said.

GRIMM'S PIANO PLAYING WIPES GRINS OFF CUBS

Athletes Puff and Sweat with Jitterbug Tempo.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick, Ind., March 21.—They laughed when Charley Grimm sat down to the piano in the French Lick Springs auditorium today, but not for long. Charley played for the indoor calisthenics a slow cadence at first, but soon stepped up to a jitterbug frenzy. And did those fellers sweat pretty as they jackknifed, stooped, grunted, and puffed. But is was a fine workout, everything considered.

It was too chilly—42 degrees—to work out on the canopied pouring, scene of yesterday's didoes. As a consequence the squad worked out in two detachments in the auditorium and the adjoining caucus room. The latter has been rigged up as a pitching range and the seven casters present were able to toss the best they knew how.

Grimm in Fine Fettle.

Despite the latest flood, which still has the marine practice field under a foot or so of water, and the temperature drop of 43 degrees as compared with last Sunday, Grimm continued in fine fettle, at least in his reflections on the condition of his early birds, sharp from the 10 days of unbelievably fine weather in which they worked before the recent deluge.

Among those also worked on the pitching range today was Bob Chipman, who arrived yesterday too late to engage in any formal exercise. Grimm counts on using the lefty, obtained during last season from Brooklyn, as a regular starter. Last season Bob won seven in a row in combination starting and relieving assignments. Grimm thinks his other starters will be Paul Derringer, Eddie Hanyzewski, who are here, and Claude Passeau and Hank Wyse, who still are absentees.

Cubs Play Basketball, Too.

Grimm plans to make strategic line-up changes this season, now that he has more reserve power than any Cub team of recent memory.

Tonight a basketball team made up exclusively of Cubs played the local independent team in a Red Cross benefit game in the French Lick High school gymnasium. The S. R. O. sign went out early today.

Baseball Sees WMC Ruling as Fine Break

Following is a cross section of an Associated Press survey:

Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Indians, said the WMC ruling will help this club in a number of instances and listed the following who are working in war jobs and have been awaiting a clarification of their status: Pitchers Mel Harder, Jack Salveson, and Ambrose Palica; Infielders Stan Benjamin and Blas Monaco; Catchers Buddy Rosar, James Devlin, and James McDonnell, and Outfielder Roy Cullenbine.

Three Pittsburgh Pirates are affected—Infielders Al Rubeling, Lee Handley, and Pete Coscarart. William Benswanger, president of the Pirates, commented: "It's further evidence that Washington recognizes that the American public and the American service men want baseball continued."

Joe McCarthy, manager of the Yankees, said: "It's the best news we have had this year. We ought to have enough fuel now to keep the green light burning for baseball for the next six months. Players now will have no excuse for not reporting unless they are salary holdouts." [Russ Derry, Frank Crossetti, Ernie Bonham, and Nick Etten are war workers who have not reported.]

It's the American Way.

Bill McKechnie, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, said the ruling should be an asset, but that none of his players had failed to sign because of war work. Jack Zeller, general manager of the Detroit Tigers, said that tho 12 of the club's 35 players have not reported for training, none of the absences is due to fear that leaving war jobs for baseball would mean induction.

Said Sam Breadon, president of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals: "I think it clears up a somewhat muddled situation for those players who were not sure they could leave off-season jobs to return to baseball. The Cards' secretary, Leo Ward, had this succinct comment: "Very good news for baseball. Typical of the American way of life to let a man continue in his own business." The Cards said they are not directly affected since no players not in camp are on war jobs.

HOPPE SETS CUE RECORD; LEADS COCHRAN BY 16

Boston, Mass., March 21 (AP).—Willie Hoppe set a new world record today and then, in tonight's match, passed Champion Welker Cochran in the final Boston block of their 5,400 point transcontinental championship three cushion billiard match at the City club.

In the afternoon block Hoppe set a new three-cushion championship match record by running 20 straight points as he defeated Cochran, 60 to 36, in 24 innings, and in the night match scored a 60 to 38 victory in 32 innings.

Hoppe, who entered tonight's match six points behind Cochran, now has a 16 point lead, 832 to 816.

MOSES, WEARING TAG OF DRAFTEE, REPORTS TO SOX

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Terre Haute, Ind., March 21.—A little more major league tone was added to the White Sox training college today in the shape of the veteran Wally Moses, thus making Boss Jim Dykes the happy possessor of three fly chasers. However, the manager's joy over the arrival of his 33 year old right fielder may be short lived.

Along with his baseball shoes, extra shirt, etc., Moses brought the information that he had been accepted for limited service in the army. He was advised by his Philadelphia draft board that he could play ball until called, which might be anywhere from tomorrow to never.

Moses' appearance swelled Dykes' official squad to 22, which is a fairly impressive total for these times.

Still 13 Holdouts.

There are still 13 [the superstitious Dykes doesn't like that total] fellows on the absentee list, the most important being Orval Grove, Bill Dietrich, Johnny Humphries, Joe Haynes, and Mike Tresh, all holdouts. Other absentees include: Third Baseman Grey Clarke, Rookie Pitcher Ogden Wise, Catcher Tom Jordan, and Joe Orengo, prospective tenant for the first base vacancy.

The spring rains were on the job again today and the professor was forced to limit the pupils to another session of plain running and throwing on the golf course. His preference would have been batting practice but the condition of the stadium field made this impossible. That makes three days in a row in which the bats have been kept in the clubhouse. However, batting practice or no batting practice, Dykes plans a camp game for Sunday so as to provide a free treat for the townsfolks.

Dykes Looks for Games.

Except for the loss of batting practice the Sox have fared mighty well in the matter of getting themselves toughened up for whatever happens. They have had 10 straight days of outdoor work and most of the candidates are in better shape now than anticipated. But Prof. Dykes would be delighted if he could book a few exhibitions that wouldn't violate the no-travel agreement.

Meisters Sweep Series from Monarchs; Take 2d in Classic

The defending Champion Meister Braus were rewarded for their consistent shooting in last night's Classic league roll-down in Gateway Recreation by vaulting into second place, one game out of the lead. In bettering their standing, the champions swept the series against the Monarch Beers and in so doing gathered in the highest total of the evening with a 3,031 on games of 1,004, 1,003, and 1,024. Paul Krumske lead the winners with a 666 series.

The Prima Beers retained their one game lead by taking the odd game from Sunkist Pies. In other matches Keeley Half and Half dropped to third position, losing two to Chapin and Gore, the last game by the narrow margin of nine pins. George Sandberg of C. & G., did most of the damage with his 674 series, which included a 286 opener.

Thompson's Restaurants rolled a 3,004 total against Washington Shirts with the latter forcing the winners to extend themselves thruout as they collected 2,898, helped along by Art Butler's 666.

In the other match Congress Arcade took three from Du Bouchett Liqueurs, elevating themselves into fourth place, and sending their opponents deeper into the cellar.

OSBORNE HEAPS PRAISE ON PRESS AID TO SPORTS

"Sportsmen and sports enthusiasts thruout the nation should be grateful for the gallant part which the press of America has played in the preservation of sporting events for the duration," declared Livingston E. Osborne, vice president of the Illinois Athletic club, last night.

Addressing more than 400 members of the club at a buffalo dinner, which marked the second monthly meeting of the club members to promote post-war athletic activities, Osborne, who is also director of the Illinois state department of conservation, said:

"During the hysteria of war many orders are issued by the government which are usually well-intended but sometimes ill-advised. The sporting editors of the nation zealously watched sports and sporting events in this regard. Those of us who are interested in the continuation of amateur sports are greatly indebted to the pres. No other force in our national life has done more to encourage and revive amateur sports than the newspapers of the country."

Jack Lamotta Underrating Costner? No!

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Despite the fact he is the favorite to beat George Costner, Cincinnati welterweight, in a 10 round bout in Chicago Stadium Monday night, Jack Lamotta is not underrating Costner.

Lamotta, who arrived from Norfolk, Va., yesterday morning with his welterweight brother, Joey; Manager Jimmy Murray, and Atty. Harry Lee, had an experience with Vic Dellicurti in New York in 1942 which made him realize that so long as an opponent has two hands he is dangerous.

Lamotta beat Dellicurti, but only after one of the closest and hardest battles he ever has encountered.

Lamotta, however, is not a cinch to beat Costner, according to Ever Hammer, inspector for the Illinois athletic commission, who watched George spar four rounds in the C. Y. O. center yesterday afternoon with Al Jackson, welterweight, and Jimmy Bishop, middleweight.

Hammer believes Costner will spring an upset against Lamotta and score his 24th victory in 26 starts. George was knocked out in the first round by Ray [Sugar] Robinson in the Stadium on Feb. 14, the defeat snapping the Ohioan's chain of 23 straight triumphs, 22 by knockouts.

Jack did only loosening up exercises after his belated arrival yesterday morning from Norfolk, Va., where he knocked out Lou Schwartz of Brooklyn in the first round. It was his fifth start since last appearing in the Stadium against Sgt. Lou Woods of Fort Sheridan.

Pekin Group Offers Tackle for Veterans

BY BOB BECKER.

The first response to this department's appeal for fishing tackle for wounded veterans in hospitals comes from William S. Prettyman of Pekin, Ill., chairman of the Tazewell county chapter, American Red Cross. Mr. Prettyman writes:

"Pekin is quite a fishing community and there ought to be quite a bit of fishing equipment which could be gathered together for the benefit of wounded soldiers. Please give me the name of the army lieutenant at Yuma, Ariz., who wants tackle for the wounded veterans who are recovering their health down there."

Helps Morale and Health.

The officer at Yuma is Lt. A. F. Davidson, Box 203, Y. A. A. F., Yuma, Ariz. Please write to him direct and ask him how many bait casting and fly rod outfits he can use. Any reader who wants to help a wounded veteran get some fishing also may write Lt. Davidson.

We are also trying to locate tackle for 240 soldiers guarding prisoners of war in the woods of the upper peninsula of Michigan. Their only main recreation this summer will be fishing.

And there are some 5,000 wounded marines at Klamath Falls who need fishing outfits.

Tribune to Aid Collection.

This department has asked the army to consider the idea of having tackle made solely for the men in service who want fishing equipment and must rely mainly on fishing or casting for recreation.

THE TRIBUNE has volunteered to aid Capt. L. E. Watters, chief of the athletic and recreational branch of the 6th service command, in collecting such material as may be contributed for soldiers in this area.

Responsive to present needs, Leo Seltzer, manager of the Chicago Roller Derby which opens in the Coliseum next Wednesday night, has offered a reserved box to the patrons who bring adequate fishing equipment to the box office.

FIGHT AND EAT: THAT'S EASTERN GLOVES ROUTINE

BY BILL MURTHA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bear Mountain, N. Y., March 21.—The New York Golden Gloves team is now on a two and two basis—two workouts and two meals daily.

Their first day at this resort was a revelation to most of the youngsters. There was no heavy work and the rain washed out the Brooklyn Dodgers' workout, which most of them had planned to attend, but they made their own fun in the Bear Mountain inn.

The inn management is missing no chances to please the eastern squad which has a date with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S champions on April 4 in the Chicago Stadium. The gymnasium which has been fitted up for them originally was a cafeteria seating 1,000. Now it is complete with rings, punching bags, and mats.

Determined to Win.

Tomorrow, the New Yorkers will start sparring seriously. So bent on beating the Chicagoans are the New York coaches that every boy on the squad will be kept busy in the gymnasium or running outdoors much of the time.

The Glovers feasted last night, but there'll be a famine from now until the day after the Intercity bouts. They'll get a hearty breakfast and a hefty supper but there'll be no lunch as long as they're here.

The program as set up by the coaches includes a long run in the morning before breakfast and sparring in the afternoon. At present there are 16 boxers in camp and the other 15 are expected in a day or so as soon as furloughs for the military representatives and leaves from work for the civilians are cleared.

La Starza Joins Squad.

The New Yorkers got an unexpected break when Rolly La Starza, the 175 pound champion, showed up on the opening day of training. It had been expected that he would attend his classes at City College of New York and work out in a Manhattan gymnasium for the first week, but he's so anxious to get in top shape for his match with the western light heavyweight champion, Corp. Adolfo Quijano, that he arranged his affairs and came up for the first day.

The New York coaches respect Quijano's ability but feel they have at least the equal of the western power house in La Starza. For one thing, they promise that if La Starza hurts the Los Angeles soldier as did Corp. Tom Attra in the first round of their final bout in The Chicago Tournament of Champions, it will be curtains for Adolfo.

St. Philip Wins Title from Leo Seniors, 38-35

Lions scored nine points before St. Philip tallied on Duncan's field goal. A few seconds before the period ended, Frank O'Grady scored his second consecutive basket for the Lions to tie the score at 24 all.

The Gaels moved out as the fourth period opened, with Hinger and Dick Kluck scoring field goals. St. Philip ran up a 38 to 27 count, and staved off a blasted Leo rally that netted eight points.

Kluck, a forward, led the victors with 12 points, while O'Grady, Leo center, scored 15 points.

BUNGLED FOOD POLICY BLAMED FOR SHORTAGE

New Deal Controls Are Denounced.

Washington, D. C., March 21 (AP). — Administration officials today tried to put a damper on complaints of a food shortage, but meat packers and Republican senators kept the fire of criticism roaring.

The administration's argument: Things may be a little tough, but nobody is going hungry in America.

The opposition's cry: Controls are so badly handled that packers are losing money and civilians' food choices are getting slimmer.

"Our armed forces will continue to be well fed," War Food Administrator Jones said in a statement. "We will continue to help our fighting allies. Our own people will continue to have plenty of good, wholesome food, and we will continue to contribute our share to the relief of starving people, even if it means a new hitch in our belts."

"Best Fed," Says Bowles.

Price Administrator Bowles, undergoing a rough session with Republicans on the senate banking committee, took much the same stand. The committee is considering a measure to extend the life of the OPA beyond next June 30.

"We remain the best fed nation of the world," Bowles said. "Certainly civilian meat will be shorter than at any time during the war, but that arises from the extraordinary needs of the war."

Senators Taft [R., O.], Hickenlooper [R., Ia.], and Reed [R., Kas.] said they knew of packers who were losing thousands of dollars a month while the OPA studied what to do about meat price ceilings.

"I think you are directly violating the law," Taft told Bowles.

The American Meat institute asserted in a statement that packers have to pay $14.75 per hundred pounds for live hogs, but that their own sales ceilings are based on the supposition that they pay only $14.

Refuses to Be Stampeded.

Bowles had asserted that "the OPA will not be stampeded into giving price increases" and that "the shortage would not be relieved in any degree by higher returns to the packers. We've already taken certain measures to correct the situation."

The meat institute, in reply, expressed regret "that our industry's effort to obtain the 'fair and equitable margin' promised to it by the law should be construed by any one as an attack on price control."

Committee members manifested opposition as Bowles pressed a request for ceilings on movies and barber and beauty shop prices.

Sen. Taylor [D., Idaho] said he was getting many communications from barbers and beauty shop operators arguing that if ceilings were placed on their services, ceilings should be placed also on physicians and dentists. Taft also indicated opposition.

"Man Has Razor on Their Necks."

Joshingly, Sen. Millikin [R., Colo.] told Bowles he should not expect senators to vote ceilings on "the man who has a razor on their necks every morning."

To a prior argument that movie prices are an important item in the average family's budget Bowles added: "The neighborhood merchant resents what seems to him the unfairness of seeing his prices controled while the neighborhood movie, barber shop, and beauty parlor are free to raise their prices at will."

Chairman Thomas [D., Okla.] of a senate agricultural subcommittee, which is going to look into the food situation, told reporters:

"Everywhere I go the country is alive with cattle, yet meat and butter doesn't reach the dining tables of the people. There's plenty in the black market."

He disclosed that state agriculture commissioners thruout the nation will be enlisted in an inquiry into food shortages.

Differ on Crop Acreage.

Food Administrator Jones said farmers themselves set goals this year that call for an even greater crop acreage than last year. An agriculture department report yesterday on farmers' planting intentions, however, indicated that this year's acreage would be below last year's.

Jones' promise to "continue to help our fighting allies" came as Prime Minister Churchill was discussing Britain's food stocks in the house of commons.

President Roosevelt, who a week ago said Americans would have to take another notch in their belts, has promised a food discussion at his news conference Friday.

A proposed house investigation of the entire food situation was approved by the rules committee for house consideration. The committee indorsed a resolution by Rep. Anderson [D., N. M.] to create a special seven member investigating group.

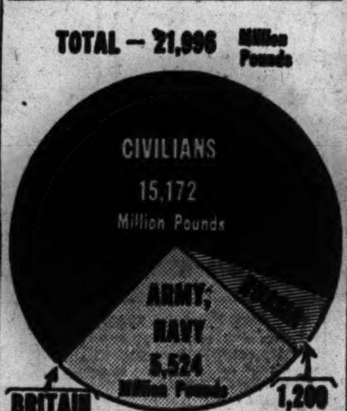
Sharing U. S. Meat



Of an estimated 5 billion 499 million pounds of meat expected to be available from United States production in the next three months, civilians will receive 3 billion 793 million pounds, or 68.9 per cent, the war food administration said yesterday. Army and navy needs, including relief feeding in liberated countries, will account for 1 billion 381 million pounds, or 25.1 per cent, and Russia and Great Britain will receive 300 million and 25 million pounds, or 5.5 per cent and 0.5 per cent, respectively, thru lend-lease.

Altho production may vary and needs of the various claimants will depend on the course of the war, projection of second quarter figures would give civilians 15 billions 172 million pounds of meat for the entire year; the army and navy 5 billion 524 million, Russia 1 billion 200 million, and Great Britain 100 million.

OPA Seeking New Ways to Ease Scarcity

The office of price administration grasped at new straws yesterday in the hope of finding a way to relieve the meat shortage. The developments included:

1. The Chicago area OPA asked army procurement department officers to order the seizure of meat shipments out of Chicago which are suspected of being en route to the black market. The army officers promised a decision within a few days.

2. The OPA pressed its investigation of two Chicago packing companies which have made large shipments to New York in recent weeks. This inquiry was aimed at determining whether federal price and rationing regulations were observed.

Another Inquiry Started.

3. Another inquiry was under way on reports that meat prices in kosher markets have skyrocketed beyond ceilings. Some kosher meats have been selling at 175 per cent of the ceiling price, it was said.

4. Rae E. Walters, regional OPA administrator, warned that fresh fish prices, which he said were 50 per cent higher than a year ago, may be put under ceilings unless rolled back soon.

5. Five more suits were filed by OPA in Circuit court charging meat retailers with selling above ceiling prices.

OPA officials said a major reason for Chicago's meat shortage was the diversion of large supplies processed here to other markets. An important factor, Marion W. Isbell, Chicago area director declared, is that black market meat in New York City is selling as much as $1 a pound above ceilings.

Shipments Under Scrutiny.

The packers whose eastern shipments are under scrutiny are the Russell Packing company, 3946 Normal av., which has sent more than 250,000 pounds to new customers in New York City in the last three weeks, and the Empire Packing company, 3840 Emerald av., which has been sending 60,000 pounds a week to New York, Henry Clay, chief OPA enforcement attorney in Chicago, charged.

Five retailers sued by the OPA on charges that ceiling prices were exceeded are Mike Nitch, 1950 S. Kedzie av.; B. and B. Packingtown market, 131 E. 47th st.; Joseph Cobl, 3334 W. 26th st.; Albert Gallins, 220 W. 31st st., and Irving Blumenthal, 130 E. 26th st.

BRITAIN'S FOOD STOCKPILE CUT, COMMONS TOLD

Help Feed Europe, Says Churchill.

LONDON, March 21 (AP). — Prime Minister Churchill, asserting that allied military operations were being rushed with the aim of preventing mass starvation in many parts of Europe next winter, said today that Britain's built-up food stocks were being reduced to aid liberated peoples on the continent.

He made his statement on Britain's food situation, he told the house of commons, because there were "suggestions in some quarters in the United States" that Britain's stockpile consisted of 700 million tons, altho it was "rather less" than 6 million tons, not including retailers' stocks.

Under 5 Million Tons by July.

"These food stocks," Churchill said, "would be reduced to 4,750,000 tons by the end of June as a result of aid to liberated countries."

[English newspapers did not identify the source of the 700,000,000 tons report, but the Washington Post said last Saturday, "Rumors about the British food stocks have floated up and down the government halls for several weeks and have variously placed Britain's warehoused supplies anywhere from 100 to 700 million tons."]

Cheers greeted Churchill's explanation that Britain's food stocks had been built up "by foresight and self-denial over five years and under bombardment."

Earlier John J. Llewellin, minister of food, announced that full debate on the allied food situation would be held in commons next week.

Bars Private Shipments.

Llewellin explained that the government had decided it must continue to prohibit the export of food from Britain except on governmental account but he added that "all possible provisions" had been made for supplying liberated areas.

This statement, however, brought a retort from Miss Eleanor Rathbone, Independent, that there was a growing feeling of uneasiness that the British government was "behaving very selfishly" by refusing to permit individuals to send food from their own rations to people on the continent. Cries of dissent greeted her assertion.

No Comparison With U. S.

Laborite Aneurin Bevan said he understood a complete table had been prepared showing the consumption per head of the population in this country compared with the consumption per head in the United States in various categories of foodstuffs.

"Will you have that statement available to us before debate?" Bevan asked Churchill.

"No," Churchill replied. "I would deprecate debate being carried on on a basis of invidious comparisons." The house cheered the remark. Churchill added:

"The usual process of patience, goodwill and interchange of fair argument will have the effect of enabling us to reach full agreement about what is best to do in a common cause."

RFC ORGANIZES UNIT TO POLICE SURPLUS SALES

Washington, D. C., March 21 (AP). —More policing was arranged today to keep the sale of surplus property free from criticism.

Reconstruction Finance corporation, whose surplus disposal activities came in for a lot of attention before a senate committee, announced the establishment of an investigation unit headed by Paul J. Cotter, former chief of the espionage unit of the justice department's criminal division.

RFC said the unit will "devise controls and other measures that may tend to prevent irregularities."

[SENTINEL RADIO.]

The capital stock of Sentinel Radio corporation, Chicago, formerly Electric Research Laboratories, Inc., chartered in 1931, was introduced to the market last month. Of the 150,000 shares publicly offered, half was supplied by the corporation and the remainder came from the personal holdings of Ernest Alschuler, president and treasurer, who previously was the sole stockholder. There are 320,000 shares outstanding.

An increase in sales and earnings resulting from war work provided the background for the public distribution, which was made at $7.25 a share. In Sentinel's most profitable pre-war fiscal year—that ended March 31, 1936—its sales totaled $1,643,476 and its profit $84,873, equal to 27 cents a share on the present capitalization. The ratio of the offering price to pre-war earnings is relatively high, especially as in most fiscal years the net income was well below that of 1936. In 1935 it was $61,046; 1937, $57,064; 1938, $5,707; with a net loss of $9,543 in 1938.

Yet an oversubscription was reported, and subsequent sales of the shares at $2 or so above the original offering price were reported in the over the counter market, with a more recent quotation of 7¾ to 8.

Since May, 1942, the company has been engaged in production of war equipment exclusively. Sales expanded to $16,924,939 in the year ended March 31, 1944, and the profit after setting aside a renegotiation reserve was $316,965, equal to 99 cents a share on the present stock.

The company's prospectus asserted that as of Nov. 30, 1944, its net tangible asset value, after giving effect to the new financing but excluding $44,896 deferred charges, was equal to $4.31 a share. Net working capital [before giving effect to the financing] was only $603,447, with current assets amounting to $5,775,360 and current liabilities to $5,171,913. From the subsequent sale of 75,000 shares, the company received $6.35 a share, or a total of $475,250 before deducting $33,032 expenses. There is no long term debt.

After the war the company intends to make, in addition to its former line of radio sets and radio-phonograph combinations, frequency modulation receivers and, "as soon as market conditions warrant," television receivers.

With the stock at its present price, it becomes a pertinent question whether it is conservative to count on post-war earnings substantially larger than the unimpressive results in the immediate pre-war years. Deferred demands for radios have accumulated, but the Sentinel prospectus said: "Competition in the radio industry has always been keen and the company anticipates that this competition will be maintained or intensified in the post-war years."

Merge Money Fund, World Bank: Burgess

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 21. — Congress can save American taxpayers 3 billion dollars by rebuilding the proposed Bretton Woods world monetary program on a sound basis, W. Randolph Burgess, president of the American Bankers association, told the house banking committee today. He warned against bowing to demands of Treasury Secretary Morgenthau to approve the plan immediately without change.

Burgess predicted that congress, by combining the proposed world bank and world monetary fund into one establishment, could cut the 18 billion dollar total cost in half, and safeguard American interests in the post-war economy. This would reduce the United States' share to 3 billion, compared with about 6 billion now contemplated.

Fund "Loosely" Organized.

The Bretton Woods program, drafted last summer by delegates from 44 nations, calls for two separate agencies. They are a 9.1 billion dollar bank to make reconstruction loans to war ravaged nations, and an 8.8 billion monetary fund from which nations could borrow to help stabilize their currencies.

Burgess reiterated the A. B. A.'s previous position that the world bank is desirable. But he declared the proposed fund would be so "loosely" organized as to allow loans of United States dollars for use directly against American interest in world trade.

American dollars or other currency could be loaned to member nations by a majority decision of the directors, he explained, with no veto power by the nation whose currency was advanced. By contrast, loans by the bank would be subject to veto by the nation involved.

Uses Italy as Example.

"The United States has certain definite national points of view and interests," Burgess said. "There is no provision in the fund to avoid the use of our dollars by countries which are following policies directly contrary to ours or for purposes to which we are opposed.

"For example, if Italy were a member of the fund, and attacked Ethiopia, as she did once, the United States would be helpless to prevent Italy's use of American dollars borrowed from the fund to finance the attack."

Burgess said transfer of the monetary fund's proposed lending power to the bank, with its lending safeguards, "would assure wiser and better lending policies." He explained that loans to stabilize currencies need not involve the "huge sums of money" contemplated by the Bretton Woods plan.

UPHOLDS ORDER TO SELL STOCK OF BANKERS LIFE

The Illinois Appellate court yesterday upheld a Cook county Circuit court decision ordering a sale for the benefit of former policyholders of the Illinois Bankers Life association of 2,000 shares of capital stock of the Illinois Bankers Life Assurance company and recovery of $699,678 in cash.

The stock, estimated to have a market value of 2 to 3 million dollars, is to be surrendered by the estates of Hugh T. Martin, former president of the assurance company, and Arthur T. Sawyer, former treasurer—1,600 shares by the Martin estate and 400 by the Sawyer estate.

The Martin estate must pay the cash. The estate of William H. Woods, president of the original company, did not appeal the Circuit court order to pay $160,000 and made a settlement.

These assets were ordered distributed to approximately 28,000 persons who were policyholders of the mutual association on Nov. 19, 1929 when its assets and good will were transferred to the stock company.

The trial court said the objective of the transfer was fraudulent and resulted in bribes paid to Woods and other officers by Martin.

Vernon R. Loucks, attorney for the policyholders, said the Appellate court made one minor change in the Circuit court's ruling. It directed that the assurance company have a lien of $150,000 on proceeds from the stock sale.

SUPPLY OF HOGS SHRINKS AGAIN; SETS NEW LOW

Receipts of hogs, which had increased slowly in the last two weeks, went into another slump yesterday that sent volume below any midweek day in many years. Farmers shipped only 8,500 head to Chicago, including those sent direct to packers, representing declines of 19 per cent from Wednesday last week, 71 per cent from a year ago, and 62 per cent from two years ago.

Strong to higher prices were paid for other types of meat animals. A $17.60 steer top was the highest since the middle of January and within 15 cents of the peak March sale since 1919. The lamb top rose 5 cents to $16.90.

ORDERS AUCTION OF SEIZED ALIEN DRUG SECURITIES

Washington, D. C., March 21 (AP).— Alien Property Custodian Markham today announced a public auction of stock of the Winthrop Chemical company of Delaware, large drug producer, on terms forever prohibiting its return to German control.

The 6,151 outstanding shares of class B common stock to be sold April 23 are owned by the General Aniline and Chemical corporation, he said. Ninety-eight per cent of the stock of General Aniline was seized by the government on the ground it was controled by the giant German chemical cartel, I. G. Farben Industrie.

WAR RESEARCH BETTERS STEEL, SAYS PRODUCER

Olds Predicts Use Will Broaden.

Important advances last year by United States Steel corporation in fundamental research and in the application of technological findings will aid in the development of new and improved steel products for the post-war period, Irving S. Olds, chairman, said yesterday in his annual report to stockholders.

"Undoubtedly there will follow an expanding use of light weight steel structural shapes in residences and small buildings, and of corrosion resistant high strength steels in the construction of rolling stock and other mobile equipment," Olds asserted.

Stainless Steel Improved.

"Stainless steel with enhanced properties will be ready in the post-war era for more general use in residential and commercial construction and equipment. Steels for superior performance at high temperatures will be available."

Olds said that expenditures last year for additions, improvements, and replacements of properties were $46,900,000, bringing the total since Jan. 1, 1940, to more than a half billion dollars. He explained that the company has sought constantly to improve its facilities so it will enter the post-war period with equipment at peak efficiency.

He said that despite a man power loss of 25,610 in 1944, the company's operating subsidiaries last year broke all previous records with production of 30,800,000 tons of ingots and castings. This was the fourth consecutive year they set new tonnage records.

Less Retained by Company.

Altho production was at a peak and total revenue of $2,082,200,000 for products and services sold was the largest in history, increases in costs were larger than the gain in revenues and as a result only $758,596, or 70.8 per cent less than in 1943, was retained for future needs by the company after taxes and dividends, Olds explained.

"Financial results for United States Steel in 1944, despite the record volume of business done, thus showed a downward trend," he said. "This was occasioned in large measure by the retroactive wage increases [estimated to amount to 30 million dollars last year] ordered by the war labor board in November, 1944."

Net income was $60,791,281, or $4.08 a share, an upward revision from the previously announced preliminary figure of $60,292,513, or $4.03 a share. Net income for 1943 was $62,631,742, or $4.30 a share.

Labor Costs Rise; Taxes Dip.

The report reviewed a five year history of sales, taxes, and other costs, which showed that labor costs of all kinds rose from 464 million dollars in 1940 to 957 million in 1944. Last year's increase over 1943 was 44 million. Taxes reached a peak of 201 million in 1942 and had dropped to 106 million in 1944.

"It is apparent that the increases in wage costs since 1941, largely brought about by directives of the war labor board, have been primarily at the expense of the public as taxpayers," Olds asserted. "The WLB directive of Nov. 25, 1944, increased United States Steel's costs for 1944 an estimated 30 million dollars. This works out to reduce the taxes by $25,700,000 and to reduce its income by $4,300,000.

"Therefore the public must assume 85.5 per cent of the increased cost, less the small amount paid in additional taxes by the employes receiving these increased wages."

ILLINOIS UTILITY FILES 14 MILLION MORTGAGE ISSUE

A 14 million dollar issue of first mortgage bonds, due 1975, and 30,000 shares of series A $100 par value cumulative preferred stock were registered yesterday with the securities and exchange commission by Central Illinois Electric and Gas company. Proceeds would be used to redeem $14,500,000 of first mortgage bonds, $85,000 of 3½ per cent debentures, and $1,190,000 of 4 per cent debentures.

May Department Stores company filed a statement for an issue of 150,000 shares of new preferred stock. Hytron Radio and Electronics corporation registered 225,000 shares of $1 par value common stock to be offered at $5 a share.

A banking group headed by F. S. Moseley & Co. today will offer 130,000 shares of Sprague Electric company common stock at $15.50 a share. Proceeds will be used in part for the retirement of all outstanding preferred.

RAILWAYS ADMIT CAR SHORTAGE REMAINS ACUTE

Washington, D. C., March 21 (AP). —The Association of American Railroads today reported the shortage of freight box cars remains critical in the west. A tremendous volume of grain on farms and in country elevators must be marketed in advance of the new grain harvest starting in early June, Warren C. Kendall, chairman of the car service division, reported.

Recent embargoes to relieve congestions caused by weather enabled railroad freight houses in some areas to get their operations on a current basis, the report said.

ADDRESS L D 401, TRIBUNE

Release Tax Funds Collected on Sales, Ward Warns Army

In another step toward regaining control of its funds from the army, Montgomery Ward & Co. yesterday notified army authorities that unless sales, excise, and use taxes collected and held by the army are turned over to the company by tomorrow, Ward will cease making returns or payments of the taxes on sales in the seized properties, and will notify all taxing authorities immediately.

The ultimatum was sent to Maj. Gen. Joseph W. Byron, in charge of Ward's seized properties, by Harold L. Pearson, vice president and treasurer. The army on Tuesday had promised that future collections from customers on goods sold on a time payment basis before the seizure would be turned over to the company's treasurer.

Total of $346,433 Involved.

Altho the army has continued to collect sales and retailers' occupational taxes from customers in the various states, it has neither paid them over to the proper authorities nor to Ward, Pearson said. Meanwhile Ward has advanced its own money on the assumption that the army in due course would turn over the tax funds to the company.

In an itemized statement Pearson said total excise tax funds due from the army amounted to $67,235 for January and $60,076 for February, and total state sales and use taxes were $107,903 for January and $111,219 for February, a total of $346,433.

Demands Payment by Tomorrow.

The company called the matter to the army's attention six weeks ago without receiving a reply, Pearson said.

"Ward therefore demands that you repay the amount which Ward had advanced in payment of the taxes you have collected, and that you assure Ward that future tax collections will be paid over to it," he said. "Unless Ward has this payment and this assurance by Friday, March 23, 1945, Ward will cease making any further tax returns or tax payments on sales made in the seized properties. If you force this change in procedure, all taxing authorities will be notified immediately."

PackardProfit Slides Despite Peak Volume

Net earnings of Packard Motor Car company last year were slightly lower than in 1943 altho net sales, billings, and other income rose 34 per cent to $455,692,753, a record, George T. Christopher, president, reported yesterday.

Profit was $4,117,910, or 27 cents a common share, against $4,754,587, or 32 cents a share, in 1943. Christopher attributed the decrease principally to closer pricing on fixed price contracts, reduced percentages on cost-plus-fixed-fee contracts, and a reduced ratio in volume of fixed price contracts to cost-plus-fixed-fee contracts.

Explains Policy on Prices.

Government policy permits higher earnings on fixed price contracts to compensate for the business risk involved in fixed price operations, he explained.

Unit costs to the government for record production of PT-boat marine engines and Packard built Rolls-Royce aircraft engines were reduced about 10 per cent, said Christopher, and the company's 48 field service technicians at various battle fronts reported improved quality.

Passes War Volume Peak.

He said the company believed it had passed its peak war volume. Varying conditions reduced production during the last half of 1944 after the company had reached peak schedule on both its engines. By the end of the year Packard had completed more than 55,000 combat engines since beginning war production. Unfilled war orders at the end of the year totaled 700 million dollars.

"Our volume for 1945 should be approximately 350 million dollars, which will equal our volume for 1943 and be more suited to our plant capacity," he said. "Our efforts in 1945 will be primarily war work, with a secondary job of keeping essential service parts available for Packard cars. These service parts needed for 1945 are going to be difficult and expensive to obtain."

2 CONTINENTAL FIRMS ELEVATE R. TUCHBREITER

Directors of Continental Casualty company and Continental Assurance company yesterday elected Roy Tuchbreiter, president of Continental Casualty, chief executive officer of both companies, and directors of Continental Assurance elected him president to succeed the late H. A. Behrens. The chairmanship of Continental Casualty, formerly held by Behrens, was abolished.

Roy Tuchbreiter.

Rollin M. Clark, first vice president and secretary of Continental Casualty, was elected first vice president of Continental Assurance to succeed Tuchbreiter. J. M. Smith, vice president in charge of Continental Casualty company's accident and health departments, was elected to the newly created office of second vice president of Continental Casualty.

WPB GIVES COLLYER FULL CONTROL OVER TIRE, RUBBER OUTPUT

Washington, D. C., March 21 (AP).— With the rubber supply programs again described officially as critical, the government today called on a veteran of the industry and gave him full powers to tackle the situation as special director for the next three months. He is John L. Collyer, president of B. F. Goodrich company, Akron, O.

John L. Collyer.

Announcing the appointment at a news conference which Collyer attended, WPB Chairman Krug said it had the "full support" of President Roosevelt and James F. Byrnes, director of war mobilization and reconversion.

Krug and Collyer agreed that one of the major problems is that of bringing the production of many materials, such as carbon black, rayon and cotton cord, fabrics and bead wire into balance with synthetic production and manufacturing capacity.

Stocks Slump Again, Recoup Part of Loss

New York, March 21 (AP). — The stock market break was extended today in a new selling wave which brought losses of 1 to 3 points for the leading issues, but a general recovery from the lows occurred in the final hour of trade. Closing losses in key groups ran from fractions to more than a point. A few issues made a strong finish under special support.

Analysts said weakness of the list was traceable to the same factors held responsible for other declines this week and the sharp break two weeks ago—reconversion uncertainties and the possibility of new federal controls on speculation.

Dealings totaled 1,340,000 shares, largest volume since March 9, compared with 920,000 yesterday.

RAIL LINES LOSE MORE.

New York, March 21 (AP).—Railroad bonds were under modest pressure again today tho other groups developed more stability than yesterday. Declines predominated at the close, however, running from small fractions for many rails and utilities to a point or so in a group of secondary carrier loans. Trade expanded to $8,370,000 face value from $8,094,000 yesterday.

CHICAGO STOCKS SAG.

Prices declined on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in turnover of 40,000 shares. Volume leaders closing fractionally lower included Chicago corporation common, Sinclair Oil, and Admiral corporation. Libby, McNeill and Libby and Peabody Coal were unchanged.

American Stores Sales Dip 1.3 Pct. in February

American Stores company yesterday reported February sales were $16,095,113, compared with $16,311,981 a year earlier, a decrease of 1.3 per cent.

WARD EARNINGS FOR YEAR RISE TO 21¼ MILLION

Net Sales Increase 4.2 Per Cent.

Net income of Montgomery Ward & Co. in the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, including two periods of operation by the United States army, amounted to $21,285,839 or $3.81 a common share, Sewell L. Avery, chairman of the board, disclosed yesterday in the annual report to stockholders. In the preceding fiscal year profit was $20,677,098 or $3.69 a share.

Net sales in the latest year rose 4.2 per cent to $620,968,523, and earnings before taxes increased to $49,065,839 from $31,932,098 the year before.

Inventory Value Decreases.

Avery said 1944 earnings reflected profitable operations by all divisions of the business, meaning a continuation of satisfactory retail store performance and a substantial betterment of mail order operations. He added, however, that merchandise inventories of $117,530,922 were $7,047,057 or 5.7 per cent below a year earlier, and that it was necessary to return more than 77 million dollars to mail order customers who ordered merchandise which was unavailable.

The company paid $11,845,172 in cash dividends, $1,410,878 going to class A shareholders and $10,434,294, or $2 a share, to holders of common stock. Earned surplus was increased by $9,440,667 to $109,518,265.

The report also reviewed the second period of army operation which began Dec. 27, 1944, and has continued in varying degree since in spite of Federal District Judge Sullivan's decision Jan. 27 holding that "the possession by the President of the United States of the properties and facilities . . . of Montgomery Ward & Co. . . . is illegal and unlawful."

Plans Increase in Board.

The government has appealed the decision, and the army is continuing in control during pendency of the action.

In a proxy statement notifying shareholders of the annual meeting April 27, the company said that the board has been increased from 13 to 15 members, and urged defeat of resolutions to be offered by two stockholders who are critical of the company's refusal to comply with orders of the war labor board.

For the new posts on the board of directors, the company nominated George A. Eastwood, president of Armour & Co., and Rowland S. Stevens, a Ward vice president.

In asking shareholders to reject the resolutions, the management said the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia has held that directives of the war labor board are merely "advice" which no one has any legal duty to obey.

Dissenters Linked to Hillman.

The proxy said proponents of the resolutions are Frank W. McCulloch, Chicago, owner of 100 common shares, and Miss Zara du Pont, Cambridge, Mass., owner of 23 shares. McCulloch was described as having sought public office unsuccessfully on a ticket supported jointly by CIO and AFL unions in 1938, and as holding membership last fall in the National Citizens PAC [political action committee] headed by Sidney Hillman. Miss du Pont also was a member of the Hillman organization in the last campaign, the proxy said.

LEWIS, KEY COAL OPERATORS OPEN PRIVATE PARLEY

Washington, D. C., March 21 (AP). —United Mine Workers and soft coal operators recessed main conferences today to permit informal talks between key operators and John L. Lewis. Progress at these private discussions will determine success of the negotiations, many of the conferees said.

Edward R. Burke, head of the Southern Coal Producers association, said the more intimate discussions between the principals had been decided upon as "a different tack" because the main conference appeared deadlocked.

Charles O'Neill, representing the northern Appalachian operators, and George Campbell, Illinois operator, met with Lewis and John O'Leary, vice president of the United Mine Workers, and they were joined later by Burke.

CASH RYE SALE HALTS SLUMP IN GRAIN FUTURES

Confirmation of sales of 1¾ million bushels of cash rye in the last few days, understood to have been to the Commodity Credit corporation for export to Europe, caused a strong rally in grain futures prices in late trading yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Good war news and weakness in securities caused a break of 1 cent or more a bushel in rye and wheat futures early, but rye finished ⅜ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower, the former on May. Wheat was ¼ to ⅝ lower. Corn closed unchanged to ⅜ lower, oats lost ¼ to ⅞, and barley ended ⅛ higher to ⅛ lower.

Announcement that the CCC would make no allocations of wheat for feed in April, because the shortage of cars prevents equitable distribution thruout the country, will result in a drive by feed manufacturers to purchase wheat in the open market soon, brokers said.

NAT. TEA ELECTS BOARD PLEDGED TO END DISCORD

Cuneo, Rasmussen Name New Directorate.

Stockholders of the National Tea company yesterday elected an unopposed, nine man, compromise board of directors pledged to end long standing differences between the management and certain stockholders over the operation of the large midwest food chain.

Four of the directors were chosen by John F. Cuneo, leader of the objecting stockholders, who charged that the company was being managed ineffectually; four by R. V. Rasmussen, president, and one approved by both groups.

Two Groups Named.

In the Cuneo group are Cuneo, president of the Cuneo Press and owner of Hawthorne-Mellody farms; Guy A. Thomas, chairman of the Colorado Milling and Elevator company, Denver, Colo.; Harley V. McNamara, former manager of the Chicago branch of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company, and Raymond P. Fischer, vice president and director of Cuneo Press.

Besides himself, Rasmussen selected Arthur J. Hansen, vice president; William E. Russell, secretary-treasurer, and John V. Farwell III., president of the Sanitary Scale company, Belvidere, Ill., and a director of the La Salle National bank.

The ninth member is Robert E. Straus, vice president and director of the American National Bank and Trust company.

Board Reëlects Rasmussen.

Following a course of action agreed upon previously by Cuneo and Rasmussen, the board elected McNamara executive vice president, and reëlected Rasmussen and all other officers. Cuneo was made chairman of an executive committee, including Rasmussen and McNamara, which replaced the former post of chairman of the board.

In the old organization this post was held by John McKinlay, who resigned under pressure but not before releasing an annual report which included a reply to Cuneo's mismanagement claims. The company issued a subsequent report.

In a late afternoon session the directors voted to redeem on May 1 the company's 200,000 shares of 5½ per cent cumulative preferred stock. They did not disclose what the redemption price would be or whether the shares would be replaced with a new issue of preferred or some other form of securities.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 21 (AP).—The Insurance Company of North America announced today that it had set aside 2½ million dollars for the development of aviation insurance. John A. Diemand, president, told stockholders at the annual meeting that the step was taken because private and commercial aviation can be expected to grow after the war.

BOWLES TELLS PLAN TO VARY TEXTILE CEILINGS

Washington, D. C., March 21 (AP).—Price Administrator Bowles today said OPA expected to adopt a cotton textile pricing system under which ceilings would fluctuate with movements of the cotton market "below and up to parity." He testified at a senate banking committee hearing on legislation to extend the price control act.

Congress amended the price control act a year ago to direct that textile price ceilings be based on a parity price for cotton. Bowles said the object was to encourage a cotton price rise to parity, but that the result was a big "windfall" for mills because they continued to buy cotton below parity while their ceiling prices were tested "by assuming a parity cost for cotton."

He said he had decided that the amendment "does not require that price ceilings should continue indefinitely to be based upon an assumed parity cost for cotton." Details of the new ceiling plan would be determined after consultation with the industry.

Lake Erie Iron Ore Stocks Are Lowest in Four Years

Cleveland, O., March 21 (AP).—Total stocks of iron ore at furnaces and Lake Erie docks on March 1 declined to the lowest point in four years, the Lake Superior Iron Ore association reported today.

SHAKE OF HAND SCHREIBER BOND FOR EGG DEAL

With Ludwig D. Schreiber, city clerk of Chicago and head of L. D. Schreiber & Co., butter and egg dealers, a handshake was better than a written contract in a transaction involving the sale of one million pounds of powdered eggs to the United States government, according to testimony yesterday before Judge Philip L. Sullivan in federal District court.

Schreiber's company is being sued by Ray L. Elster, an egg broker, who asks half of the $212,000 Schreiber made on the deal. Elster testified that he "brought the deal to Schreiber" on the same basis as he had been getting him business for many years—a 50-50 split.

Schreiber denied that Elster was entitled to any share of the $212,000. On the witness stand Elster said he had agreed in December, 1943, to accept 5 per cent rather than start a lawsuit, but that Schreiber said he would only make a token payment—$1,000 or $2,000.

Schreiber Chosen for Financing.

John W. Nunamaker Jr. of Indianapolis, Ind., president of the Midstate Frozen Egg company, gave Judge Sullivan and a jury the details of the transaction. He said Elster arranged to have Schreiber finance it.

Nunamaker identified several documents shown him by Atty. Edward B. Casey, representing Elster. One, which was not admitted as evidence, was described as "a commitment from the government to buy 1,000,000 pounds of powdered eggs at $1.25 a pound."

"I want to show that Schreiber was taking no chance of losing on this transaction," Casey told the court. "I want to show he was engaged in a sure thing. The eggs were sold to the government before he advanced the money with which Nunamaker bought them."

Hand Shake, No Contract.

The other documents were contracts drafted by Nunamaker's attorney. Schreiber had objected to some of the provisions of the first one drawn, Nunamaker said, so a new draft was made.

"He didn't sign it," Nunamaker said. "He told me if it was agreeable to me we would just shake on it. I was flattered, but later, when dealers wouldn't believe Schreiber was financing the deal, I told him I would like to have something in writing to show he was behind me, he told me to have all such persons telephone him."

Nunamaker testified that, in all, Schreiber furnished about $8,000,000 in transactions that involved the sale of about 10,000,000 pounds of eggs to the government to be sent to Europe. Schreiber testified Tuesday he had agreed to bear one-third of the losses, if any, as well as to take one-third of the profits of the deals, but Nunamaker said there was no such arrangement and he had to stand one $20,000 loss all by himself.

The trial will continue today.

MENTAL EXAMINATION ORDERED.

Mrs. Freda Carney, 32, of 3933 Clarendon av., who appeared yesterday before Judge George B. Weiss in Women's court on a disorderly conduct charge, was ordered to be examined by the Municipal court psychiatrist, Dr. David B. Rotman. She told the court that she had taken a dozen sedative tablets on Tuesday.

The search for Mrs. Betty Charrier, 17, who disappeared Monday, leaving notes hinting at suicide after she learned that her husband had divorced her, was extended yesterday to Memphis, Tenn.
